To a very large extent the success of gardening work DEPENDS UPON THE SYSTEM OF FERTILISING that is followed in cultivation, either in the Kitchen Garden or Flower Garden. HUDSON'S EUMENTHOL TOOTH POWDER,

THE GREAT ANTISEPTIC POWDER, which contains no Acid, and is Guaranteed ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS TO THE ENAMEL. In contact with moisture the Powder liberates free active Oxygen, and it is the Oxygen which whitens the teeth so wonderfully and wards off decay as no other preparation for the Teeth can or will do.

"The Lancet," London, January 17, 1914, states:—
EUMENTHOL TOOTH POWDER.
"This tooth powder is designed on sound principles, and is very agreeable to use. The distinctive feature about it is that in addition to some approved germicides it contains magnesium peroxide, which readily parts with free oxygen, as our experiments have shown. This probably leads to a favourable cleansing action upon the mouth, and a slight whitening effect upon the teeth. The powder is finely divided, and is free from harmful constituents and gritty substances.

SIMPLE IN CONSTRUCTION LIGHT IN WEIGHT, POWERFUL IN OPERATION, COMPACT IN SIZE, DURABLE IN WEAR. These essential features, combined with high quality, material, and interchangeability of Parts, have made FERRO ENGINES the recognised World's Standard Two-cycle Motors for every class of pleasure and power working boats. The popularity and success of the FERRO in Australia is borne out by the many hundreds of testimonials from New South Wales owners, available for your perusal.
WHY FERRO ENGINES are the best to buy.
THE ENGINE can be installed in any boat, as the cylinders are offset, and there is little or no vibration. THE ACCESSORIES, propellers, etc., supplied are of latest pattern and design, and the best obtainable. EVERY FERRO ENGINE is guaranteed to develop its rated B.H.P. THERE ARE NO complicated parts, such as valves, tappets, halftime gear, etc. THE OILING SYSTEM is by pressure feed, and requires no attention. THERE ARE NO leaky water pipes, and the pump is bolted to the crank-case. JUMP SPARK IGNITION is fitted, and if required "Wizard" Magneto is supplied to provide current to start and run the engine and lights for the boat. THE CARBURETTOR has only one adjustment, and is automatic in its action. THE PRICE of the "FERRO" Engine Outfit is less than that of any similar first-class installation on the market. FERRO REVERSE GEAR is of planetary type, simple in construction, and absolutely reliable. THE CYLINDER HEAD is detachable, and every bearing is adjustable. Call and inspect the "FERRO" before purchasing an engine, or send for Catalog.

UNION MARINE ENGINES.
The Schooner HAWK, of Melbourne, was recently fitted with a Set of Twin "UNION" Engines, each 40 B.H.P.

WE GUARANTEED these Engines would operate for continuous periods on Kerosene.
A trial run took place on March 31 last, and the day after we received the following telegram from our Engineer, Mr. Jackson:—
"THREE HOURS' RUN ON KEROSENE AS GOOD AS PETROL."
Mr. Jackson is always brief and to the point, and when we get advice like the foregoing we know it is worth something.
We are prepared to guarantee our "UNION" Engines on KEROSENE, and this means reducing running costs by about one-half.

TO-NIGHT,
MUSICAL COMEDY.
MUSICAL COMEDY.
You have heard about all the fine things that are in store for you on Easter, but to miss
GEORGE WILLOUGHBY'S
AMERICAN MUSICAL COMEDY COMPANY
in the greatest musical comedy success of New York, THE TENDERFOOT,
THE TENDERFOOT,
is to cheat yourself out of the most welcome Easter Egg you ever had.
NOW, LISTEN HERE.
New York and Chicago audiences have simply considered "The Tenderfoot" the best and most tuneful musical comedy since the days of "The Belle of New York," and have shown their great fondness of "The Tenderfoot" by refusing to let it get away from them until it had played in New York for two years, and one year in Chicago. Mr. Lester Brown, the general stage director for George Willoughby, Ltd., himself a New Yorker, has been specially selected to produce this latest importation for Australian audiences, because he produced it in New York. The principals, who were brought out here especially from the United States, are artists of high reputation in the musical comedy field in their own country. Here is a list of just a few of them:—

Carrick Major. Bobby Wollsey.
George M. Bogues. James Donnelly.
Don Hancock. J. Monte Crane.
Myrtle Jersey. Grace Ellsworth.
Eva Olivetti. Hans Behauser.

Now, Herr Hans Rebauser, is the musical conductor of "The Tenderfoot," and under his baton the augmented Orchestra will delight Sydney audiences with sparkling melodies, "whistly" tunes, dreamy waltzes, and the latest musical hits of America. A full chorus and ballet, carefully trained and chosen from among the best material to be obtained will furnish a harmonious and enjoyable setting, that is guaranteed to make "The Tenderfoot" the musical comedy success of the season.

TO-NIGHT. TO-NIGHT.
THE IRISH DRAMA OF THE CENTURY.
Return of the Popular Irish Actor,
ALLEN DOONE,
in a Revival (owing to Numerous Requests) of the Patriotic Irish Drama,
"THE WEARING OF THE GREEN."
The Patriotic Irish Drama "THE WEARING OF THE GREEN" provides an attraction theatrically that at the present heated thermometer of Irish Home Rule should prove a veritable Mascotte. Australia's sympathies, and, better still, her help, has been, and is, for Ireland being her own governor and "The Wearing of the Green," dealing, as it does, with National Sentiment and Aspiration, must appeal forcibly to all alike.
The Tour of the Commonwealth has been one Long Triumphal March.
Proof that the Public wants the Pretty Plays of Allen Doone.
To-night Mr. Doone will sing:—
"Ireland, My Ireland," "Nora M'Namara," "A Four-leafed Clover," and the patriotic Irish Song which gives the play its title,
"THE WEARING OF THE GREEN."
PRICES, 4/, 2/6, 1/. Early Door Stalls and Gallery, 6d extra. Early Door Gallery Saturday and Holidays, 1/ Extra.

A DAY OF PERIL.

BY MORICE GERARD.

(ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.)

Anne found the streets thronged with people, full of barely suppressed excitement; on leaving the various places of worship the news had been bruited about that Captain Jose had performed another act of daring, almost under the very cannons of the castle. He had raided a merchant vessel before the dawn, seized the goods it was conveying to the port, and turned the master and crew adrift in an open boat. The tide had brought them sufficiently near to be sighted; a ketch had run out to their assistance, and conveyed them into the harbour.

Coupled with the stress of apprehension and disturbance which had been in the minds of the citizens before, this new and daring exploit had seemed the coping-stone of misfortune. They were all eagerly discussing this last item of news.

Ware, seeing Mistress Anne and her serving-maid, came to their side, and informed them of the circumstance. Anne was only too pleased to accept the escort of the big seaman to the jetty, from which she and Thirza were to take boat again to The Flower of Cornwall.

It is a mistake to imagine that time can be measured like drops of an essence distilled by a chemist, or like cloth by the ell. Time is a matter of feeling, of experiences, an hour may be lived in a minute; a life-time in a day.

Mistress Anne could hardly believe that only a bare three hours had passed since she left The Flower of Cornwall, when her brother assisted her over the gunwale into the vessel once more.

Behind her lay a complex web of experience, which helped to differentiate her mental condition from anything which had gone before. She had been plunged suddenly into a wave of intense feeling; she had felt the pulsation of men and women, who realised that they were on the outworks, in the place of danger, in the high road to great events. Mistress Anne knew now what the watchman feels, as he looks out from some solitary tower, and recognises the coming of a storm, before it sweeps the sea; she understood what the sentinel experiences, as he stands alone, with the camp sleeping behind him, guarding his particular sphere from sudden attack, while the enemy is close at hand imperceptible, but ever menacing; while the mystery of night envelops nature.

Fresh from this mingling with the wave of feeling, which was sweeping not only over Dover, but over the whole southern coast of England, Anne had ascended to the Castle, stood beneath its immemorial keep, looked out over land and sea, felt the inward touch of that history, which the castle represented in stone. Then she had taken her place on the outer fringe of the worshippers in the fortress—church, grey, grim, severe, in its architectural outlines, enclosing a congregation worshipping, with an intensity of earnestness, perhaps only possible in times of stress. Then had come the remarkable sermon, which had moved her as no other eloquence had ever moved her.

In the ecstacy of this feeling, Anne had suddenly been plunged into something totally different, like a cold douche in the midst of a hot summer's day; she had recognised Juan Marcia, and shuddered as she did so, the enemy of her country, the potential assassin of her queen, her own would-be lover.

As if all this were not sufficient, she felt the touch on her arm of the thin fingers of the preacher; his words still sounded in her ears, his appeal, through her, to the womanhood of England.

Sir Giles, loving his sister as he did, reading her moods as nearly as a brother can ever interpret the emotions of a sister, saw by her face that she was greatly disturbed. He wondered what it could be; he had expected to see her refreshed and comforted by the service, which he knew she had looked forward to with eagerness; instead, he found her a-quiver, with tense feelings, not wholly past, but throbbing in her veins.

He drew her across the ship, until they stood together in the stern, which happened at that moment to be deserted by the seamen.

"What it is, Anne?" he asked, "you look as if you had seen a vision, a ghost!"

"Do I?" she answered; "I did not know I carried it in my face."

"Perhaps not to others," he answered, "but to me, who knows you so well, your face betrays its secrets."

She stood looking out sideways over the lower bulwarks, in the middle of the ship, from whence the town of Dover was visible, stretching away from the harbour in a long line of grey-white houses; then she turned towards the circular battlements of the castle with its guns peeping out, gleaming in the fitful rays of the February sun.

In a few broken sentences, Anne related in outline the various experiences which had made up that morning's story. Sir Giles understood something of what she had felt in the streets, for he was one of those who shared the responsibility of that time. There have been, of course, periods in history when nations have been subject to the stress of invasion, of national danger; but more often than not, almost invariably in fact, the few have borne the burden of responsibility, the many have been only too glad to obey, to occupy their small space with what courage and skill nature may have provided them with.

This was emphatically not the condition of affairs in this year—the annus mirabilis—of 1588. Every sea-captain, from the smallest merchant vessel to the largest man-of-war, faced the responsibility daily, of the outlook; every man, who owned his strip of land on the seaboard felt he was a sentry, in the van-guard of an army, upon whom depended the safety of the land, the protection of the hearths and homes of its people. The beacon-piles were there on every eminence, on tor and cliff, on mountain-top, tended daily to see that all was ready for the great conflagration which would rise to the skies, when Spanish ships were first sighted, rearing their proud crests, brandishing flag and pennon to the heavens; advancing to the conquest of that sturdy isle of the sea, which had dared to oppose the might of Spain, in the zenith of its power.

Sir Giles showed his keen interest and sympathy throughout; but it was when Anne mentioned that solitary figure, half-hidden in the shadow of the doorway of the church, that he laid his hand upon hers.

"I ought never to have allowed you and Thirza to go without escort. I might have suspected the presence of Juan Garcia in Dover, for I have no doubt that I saw Father Anthony last night. He must have followed you when you went to the castle. The brothers seem to know everything."

Anne shook her head. "Juan was not looking at me," she said. "I do not believe he was aware of my presence in the church; his eyes were towards the preacher, and I could see the gleam of hate, with which he regarded him."

"Perhaps so. Garcia is the enemy of our country, and would undoubtedly wish to advise our enemies as to the extent of our resources, and the feeling of our people. May God frustrate his evil counsels."

That Sunday wore on till nightfall; then, when darkness brooded over land and sea, so that only the dim illumination of the lanterns, attached to the mastheads of the vessels, and the inadequate lamps over the doorways of the houses along the quay, dissipated the gloom, preparations were made to lower the boat. Captain Christopher Stone was taking with him, in a knapsack, the few things he would require for the expedition, which lay before him.

Silently the boat was lowered; two sailors descended with the coxswain. Sir Giles followed. Mistress Anne, enveloped in her long cloak, held out her hand to Christopher.

"God keep you, and bring you back in safety." Her tones were unsteady. In silence he raised her hand to his lips.

CHAPTER XIX.

"MOSES."

The Golden Hind lay anchored at the edge of the eastern side of the harbour, the furthest from the shore, the nearest of all the ships to the full tideway.

It had been arranged that three lanterns were to be hung over the bows, in the shape of a triangle. It was most important that the boat from The Flower of Cornwall should not hail the wrong vessel.

Captain Christopher sat alone in the bow, as the boatmen pulled away from the side of The Flower of Cornwall; Sir Giles Treluce having taken his place by the side of the steersman, to assist him in taking the course aright.

Stone watched the solitary figure of Mistress Anne Treluce silhouetted in outline, by the lantern on the main-mast, until he could no longer distinguish her; he still felt the touch of her hand as she bade him good-bye; as she wished him, nay, prayed him, a safe return, her voice had quavered, although she had striven to keep it steady, there was a sense of foreboding, which she conveyed without intention. He knew she rang true, that hers was no conventional friendship, that she gave it when she did, as the result of mature reflection, and would not lightly take it away.

He was thankful that he had this friendship, it was a jewel worth living for, and although friendship is not synonymous with love, and may in some cases be almost a bar to it, in this instance it was possible that the one might merge into the other.

As the boat proceeded at a steady swing in the direction for which they were heading, the night, with its sense of mystery, seemed to close in; he felt as if he was living apart from his fellows, looking back over his past, trying to peer dimly into a future as indistinct as the night itself.

He was not given to introspection; few men of incessant activities are; he was no dreamer, he just faced duty as it came, following the clear path, neither turning to the right hand nor the left, asking only to see that portion of the way which had to be traversed immediately.

That night he was surprised at himself, for his thoughts went out, not to The Golden Hind, for which they were now making, not to the perilous expedition, fraught with infinite danger, upon which he would, in all probability, depart at this very hour on the morrow; instead, his imagination was carried forward to a time when he would have won for himself, as he hoped, a place in the world; when he might regard the adventurous part of his existence to a great extent closed, when he could settle on some fair domain, with a home and all that it meant.

In the centre of this night-dream stood the slim, beautiful figure of the girl, whose voice was still ringing in his ears, whose touch was still playing with his heart-strings.

A low call, answered by a whistle; the prow of the boat grated against the side of the larger vessel.

They had reached their goal.

Captain Christopher stood up, and stretched himself, banishing the reverie which had absorbed him, and deliberately facing the palpitating present, represented by The Golden Hind, and its master.

Captain Tom Flemyng gave them a hearty welcome, and conducted them to his cabin, on the lower deck of the ship. Here a substantial meal was laid out. Very little was said until the repast was ended.

Stone noted, with approval, the abstemious way in which Flemyng partook of the home-brewed ale, as well as of the food before him; here was a man who could let himself go while on shore, but who had perfect control over his appetites when he deemed it advisable.

(BY W.W.A.)

In the middle of 1851 gold was discovered on the Turon River, and before the end of that year many thousands of diggers were at work there. I well remember my first visit to the place; the route I followed being from Rylstone through Ilford, which was then known as Keen's Swamp, over Cherry-tree Hill, past the Black Springs, and Running Stream, then following the track to the top of Razorback, I descended to the bed of the Turon River and on to Sofala. Leaving Rylstone at daybreak, I got as far as the Black Springs just before sunset; here I camped for the night. There were wild cattle about in those days, and about midnight a wild bull set up such a roaring in the swamp that my young and freshly-broken-in horse took fright, and galloped away in hobbles, with a bell on. I spent the rest of the night following him up, but could not catch him till daybreak, when I saddled up and made a fresh start. When I got to the top of Razorback, I could scarcely credit the evidence of my own eyes, when I saw the tracks of vehicles that had gone down that terrible range. It was a long way from the top to the bottom, and tracks had been made in all directions, but they were thickly strewn with the remains of broken vehicles, and not a few dead horses and bullocks. Scores of trees had the bark rung off them where ropes and chains had been wound round them in lowering the drays.

Near the bottom, at no great distance from the river, was a sheep station, belonging to Mr. Arthur, of Bathurst. One or two flocks of his sheep were still depastured there, although the place was overrun with miners. The hut-keeper, Jim Cronin, had about half an acre of white-heart cabbages growing in an old sheep yard, for which he obtained a ready sale, at one shilling each. The air was keen, and I was hungry. Cronin took a hot damper from the ashes, fried some delicious mutton chops, and gave me some quart-pot tea. He also fed my horse. I have never forgotten the good old soul.

I travelled down the river to Sofala, the banks most of the way were thickly lined with diggers, all hard at work. Very primitive were the methods of those days. Nothing but cradles, in which the rattling of stones produced a noise and din that was almost deafening. In and around Golden Point every inch of ground was occupied; some of these claims were rich. Numbers of Sydney people were there; the late J. T. Ryan, afterwards member for the Nepean, with his two brothers, John and Maurice, was working a good claim. Mr. James Ryan gave me a butcher's knife and told me to help myself. The gold could be seen in pieces between the cracks in the rocks. Being modest, I only took a few shillings' worth.

On reaching Sofala I found one long street, closely packed on each side with habitations and places of business. The buildings were composed of all sorts of materials, principally calico, tin, and bark. Teams were coming in from the Bathurst side, laden with stores, etc., every one of them having to use a "drag" when descending the steep hill. A "drag" is a large log of timber, one end of which was made fast to the back of the dray, by a rope or chain, and the other end was allowed to drag on the ground. Numerous were the applications from the youngsters for the teamsters to drop the drag at their door for firewood, there being little or no timber near the town. There was not much to eat, except bacon and ships' biscuits; but, after a time, some butchers started, the late Mr. John Blackstone, of Rylstone, being one of the first. He brought over a team of fat bullocks, the slaughtering being done by yoking them up and shooting them. The beef was sold at 6d per lb.

There were several gold commissioners at the diggings, one being Mr. William Essington King, a son of Governor King. Most of their time was taken up in hunting up the defaulters for the non-payment of the license fee, which was 30s per month. Many of the diggers were too poor to pay it, as a lot of the claims were valueless. When a commissioner would be sighted, these fellows would hide in old workings or crawl into hollow logs. A gentleman there who was clerk of petty sessions, and who afterwards held a distinguished position under the Government of New South Wales, was fond of practical jokes. The police magistrate used to wear a white "billy" hat. On one occasion, after a sitting of the Court, on his attempting to put on his hat he discovered—but not till it was too late—that someone had filled it with beer. Of course, nobody knew who did it.

The late Mr. William Cummings, of Clear Creek had a quantity of cattle on the Turon at the time gold was discovered. For a long time he urged his claims against the Government for the loss he sustained by the miners having driven away and dispersed his cattle. I believe he afterwards received some compensation for his losses. At the time to which I refer the water of the Turon was very unwholesome to drink. It was so stirred up by the water from the cradles flowing back into it, that it was more like liquid clay than water. Dysentery was very prevalent, and numbers of the young fellows lost their lives. The roads were lined with people, some going to the diggings, and others returning. I have seen parties making back to Sydney, six, seven, or eight together, and not one shilling between them, travelling in forced marches over the mountains. Some of the inn-keepers were very good to them. I have seen the late Mr. George Bloodworth, when he kept an inn at Blackheath, call in a small detachment of them and give them a square meal, telling them that they could perhaps pay him for it some day.

ANIMAL PAINTING.

THE ART OF MR. STAINFORTH.

Mr. Walter Stainforth, who is long known for his skill in animal painting in this country, is exhibiting an interesting collection of water-colours at his studio in Norwich-chambers, Hunter-street. The pictures, which were for the most part painted to the commission of Mr. Anthony Hordern, include beautiful studies of some of that gentleman's prize horses and cattle. Perhaps the most striking of these portraits is that of the champion bull, "Golden Dream," a magnificent animal, whose massive dignity and dark shimmering hide are admirably painted. A fine portrait of Duke Foote confronts the visitor on entering, and a well-painted head and shoulders reveals the features, familiar to students of the cup, of Trafalgar. The portrait of Mr. Hordern's Clydesdale stallion, "Baron Rupert," is also peculiarly interesting. A remarkable feature of Mr. Stainforth's painting is the manner in which he uses his water-colours, which, especially in his backgrounds, are laid on so thickly that they resemble oils. The colours are indeed frequently laid on with a palette knife, and the result slightly impressionistic is unusually effective. Mr. Stainforth's backgrounds are, it should be noted, an essential factor of his pictures, and, while in no way diverting the attention from the central portrait by a superfluous wealth of detail, remove any possibility of monotony which might otherwise be created by a series of animal portraits.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

REMINISCENCES OF TWO VETERANS.

The volume of reminiscences entitled "Bar, Bat, and Bit," by Sir Edward Chandos Leigh, belongs to a type of literature which is peculiarly characteristic of England, and can, indeed, be produced nowhere else. There is no other nation where men of distinction in their various walks of life take their relaxations so seriously, or attach even more importance to sport than to their achievements in the world of affairs. The author quotes a remark of Lord Palmerston to a lady who was seeking his interest on behalf of her husband. The latter's only credential was that he had stroked the Eton Eight. "I would rather have stroked the Eton Eight," replied "Pam," "than have been Premier of Great Britain." Yet this pre-occupation with sport apparently does not interfere with eminence in the sterner business of life in the case of these energetic individuals. Indeed, as far as Sir E. Chandos Leigh is concerned, his autobiography proves the contrary, for through this tale of strenuous doings on the hunting field, the racecourse, and the oval, runs the record of a distinguished career in the courts.

The author seems to have found life an easy and a pleasant business. At Harrow, he came to the conclusion that a certain amount of industry was advantageous, because it meant that he was freed from school at an earlier hour, and, consequently, had more time for cricket. Both at Harrow and at Oxford, by the way, he was a contemporary of C. S. Calverley, and he has some good stories to tell of the irrepressible "Blayds." He went up to Oriel and took a degree, which, though creditable, was by no means brilliant. He continued to play cricket, and was not averse to joining in the social activities of the university. He remembered how once at Dean Stanley's it fell to Dr. Liddell (the famous scholar and part-author of the Greek Lexicon) to take Fanny Kemble into dinner. As they went downstairs the doctor made the somewhat banal observation: "What beautiful weather we are having;" whereupon "she turned on him with those rolling eyes and said, 'I expected a more original remark from the great Dean of Christchurch.' " The poor doctor was utterly crushed, and did not venture upon a single remark throughout the rest of the meal.

Next Sir Edward was elected a Fellow of All Souls. Under the new regime only the highest academic distinction qualifies a man for this, but the author was the last under the old order of things when the essentials were merely that a man should be "bene natus, bene vestitus et moderate dictus—well-born, well-dressed, and moderately learned." By and by he decided that he ought to earn his living. He had no particular leaning to any profession. The stage was not without its attractions, but the most important thing was that his vocation should leave him plenty of time for cricket and hunting. He happened to know some men who were reading law at the Middle Temple, and simply and solely on this account he resolved to become a barrister.

He proved a great success in this profession adopted in such a casual manner. Moreover, it suited his sporting proclivities admirably. On circuit he could hunt; during the long vacation he played cricket, and he could always snatch an afternoon to run out to Epsom or Newmarket. However, he was no briefless barrister. He soon got a practice together, and was counsel in some notable cases, both civil and criminal. Gradually he specialised more and more in election petitions, and finally taking silk, he became one of the leaders of the Parliamentary Bar.

His legal reminiscences are perhaps the most interesting part of the book, but those relating to sport run them close. At the age of 15 he played against William Clarke's famous All England Eleven; he was for long secretary of I Zingari, and president of the M.C.C. His interest in the game has never waned, but he confesses that brightest in his memory shines the cricket of bygone days, when it was a much more unsophisticated affair, and single wicket matches were a favourite test of skill between rival players. Here is his account of one for the championship belt of England. One Bob Grimston claimed to be the champion single-wicket player, and he was challenged by Fred Micklethwaite. A condition of the match was that no-balls were not penalised, inasmuch as though Micklethwaite could throw twenty-two yards he could not bowl a ball. "Micklethwaite went in first, and got 17. He was a portly, middle-aged man, weighing nearly 16st, and he trundled a medium-paced ball underhand. He kept coming over the crease, and when Bob had got 14 runs, Fred ran up to within three yards of the wicket and bowled him clean out. Naturally Bob was furious, but the great Mr. Warde, who was referee, and sat in a bath chair, on being appealed to, answered, 'Grimston was out, but it wasn't cricket on the part of Micklethwaite!' So a return match took place. I should add that in the first match each of these veterans was allowed a ground boy to field for him, but in the return match the boys were barred. Bob went in first, and when he made a hit Micklethwaite would say, 'You needn't run, Bob; I'll give you one for that.' Presently Bob made a much bigger hit. 'I'll give you one for that,' said Micklethwaite. 'No, you don't,' said Bob, 'it's worth more,' and started to run. One of the boys who had fielded in the first match happened to be sitting on a bench, and Micklethwaite sang out to him to run after the ball. The boy did so, and Bob, seeing this, ran after the boy, who dropped the ball. Micklethwaite picked it up and ran Bob out! Again, furious, he appealed to Mr. Warde, who again replied, 'Grimston was out, but it wasn't cricket on the part of Micklethwaite.' Whereupon Bob said, 'If I'm out, I'll kill that boy.' " and proceeded to carry his threat into effect. Fortunately the boy was too active, and peace was restored by a dinner given at the Blue Posts, in Cork-street, with the stakes. (John Murray: G. Robertson.)

Mr. Wilhelm Ganz must be the doyen of conductors. Eighty years ago he was born in Mainz, where his people were well known musicians. At a tender age he was resolved to follow in the family tradition, and when he was 14 years old he went to England. His first instrument was the triangle; from this he graduated to the bass drum, thence to the cymbals, and so on up the orchestral ladder until he reached the dizzy heights of conductorship. For many years he has been recognised as one of the great conductors of the day; he is also a composer of some note, and now, from a mind stored with reminiscences of music and its exponents he has written "Memories of a Musician."

Mr. Ganz's book is packed with good stories of great composers. For instance, he recalls how Wagner wrote a brochure called "Judaism in Music," and sent a copy of it to Offenbach, who acknowledged it thus:—"Dear Wagner,—You had better stick to writing music." Not long after Wagner sent him the score of the "Meistersingers," and prompt came the reply:—"Dear Wagner,—You had better stick to writing books." And here is a story of Verdi. A friend went to see him at Moncalieri, and found him in a room which, Verdi said, was his drawing-room, dining-room, and bedroom combined. He added that he had two other large rooms, but they were full of things he had hired for the season. Verdi threw open the doors, and showed a collection of several dozen barrel organs. "When I arrived here," he said, "all these organs were playing airs from 'Rigoletto,' 'Travatore,' and my other operas, from morning to night. I was so annoyed that I hired the whole lot for the season. It has cost me about a thousand francs, but at all events I am left in peace."

"I pride myself," writes the author, "on being the first to introduce Madame Melba to the English public." She came to him shortly after her arrival from Australia, and won his admiration by the manner in which she sang the grand aria from "La Traviata." Then she completed the good impression she had made by her diplomatic choice of a second song. It was one composed by the author, and, as he naively observes, "Her rendering of my 'Sing, Sweet Bird' pleased me very much. She told me that she had sung it a great deal in Australia and made it very popular there." Here is something that may be news to Australians:—About this time Melba visited Sir Arthur Sullivan and Signor Alberto Randegger in order to get an engagement from the one and lessons from the other. The former heard her sing and "put her off by saying that he would give her a part in the 'Mikado' next year, and the latter told her that he had no time to give her lessons." Needless to say the Mikado was staged without her name being in the cast, but "in after years, when she became famous and met these two musical gentlemen, she and they had many a good laugh on these (to them) unflattering events." Mr. Ganz also arranged a meeting between her and Carl Rosa in the hope that the great entrepreneur might find a place for her in one of his touring companies. But he forgot the appointment, and she failed to get an engagement. Madame Melba's disappointment then must have been a trifling thing beside that of Carl Rosa subsequently.

NAVAL WARFARE.

In "Naval Warfare" Mr. J. B. Thursfield has written an admirable monograph upon the philosophy of sea-fighting. It is curious how little the essential principles governing this branch of warfare have changed throughout the centuries. Of course the technique has altered. Sail superseded the oar, and steam superseded sail. Weapons of precision have put an end to the old tactics of ramming and boarding. The invention of submarines and aeroplanes may necessitate further changes. But though tactics may vary from age to age the essential principles of strategy remain the same. Mr. Thursfield can draw a moral applicable to modern naval warfare from Caesar's campaign against Pompey in Dalmatia or Napoleon's invasion of Egypt.

He begins by analysing and explaining some well-known but frequently-abused terms, such as "command of the sea," "blockade," a "fleet in being," and so forth, and supports his arguments with illustrations drawn from the naval history of various countries—ancient and modern. This paves the way for the discussion of problems of invasion, commerce in war, the differentiation of naval force and its distribution and supply in warfare. He corrects a number of popular errors and explodes some common superstitions. For instance, he scouts the alarmist theory that although one Power has command of the sea another Power could invade it by means of an unexpected foray. This theory "assumes that some naval Power suitably situated as regards this country might, without either provocation or overt international dispute, clandestinely take up transport—either a comparatively small number of very large merchant vessels or a very large number of lighters, barges, or what not, to be towed by steam vessels—might clandestinely put an army with all its necessary impedimenta on board the transport so provided, and then clandestinely, and without either notice or warning, send them to sea with intent to effect a landing at some suitable point on the English coast. The whole theory seems to me to involve at least three monstrous improbabilities: first, a piratical intent on the part of a civilised nation; secondly, a concealment of such intent in conditions well nigh incompatible with the degree of secrecy required; and thirdly, a precision and a punctuality of movement in the operations of embarkation, transit, and landing of which history affords no example, while naval opinion and experience scoff at them as utterly impracticable." The critical situation of England waking up one morning to find herself invaded by a Teutonic host used to be a favourite theme for writers of fiction. Mr. Thursfield has dispelled an illusion which scaremongers have not willingly let die. (The Cambridge University Press.)

Mr. Archibald Hurd is a well-known authority upon naval affairs, and in "Our Navy" he has written an interesting and a useful book. It is a comprehensive history of the Royal Navy from 832 A.D., when, so runs tradition, Alfred built the first fleet, down to the present day, especially as regards its increase and development during the last 20 years, and the magnitude of the task now laid upon it. The stirring story of the victories of the past and their far-reaching influence is clearly and vigorously told with much new matter in a retrospect which ranges from Viking ships to super-Dreadnoughts. The navy of to-day, its composition and distribution; its manning and administration in all branches and grades are fully discussed, as are also the newer aspects of Imperial defence policy and the attitude of the Dominions to naval needs. Among the appendices there is a glossary containing concise explanations of naval terms in current use. (F. Warne and Co.)

FEMINIST LITERATURE.

"Conflicting Ideals," by Miss B. L. Hutchins, is an interesting discussion of the question whether it is socially desirable that women should work for money. "Economic independence for women" is the modern cry of the feminist, but how far is such an aspiration consistent with the logic of experience, and how far is it capable of practical realisation? Some regard woman's work (other than domestic) as a modern innovation; others as a relic of barbarism, which should be made to disappear by social progress, and by educating women so that their interests should centre in the family. Others, again, hold that woman is the originator of industries and manufactures, and declare that she has been excluded from the skilled mechanic arts and crafts of to-day by the jealousy and domineering spirit of man.

However, in the last generation issue has been joined between two antagonistic theories, the patriarchal and the individualistic. According to the former, man, as a sex, has undertaken the burden of supporting his women folk. The only way he can escape it is by handing the womenfolk over to the care of other men, as in marriage. In return for this support he expects woman to perform certain domestic services for him, and hence the family becomes the unit in the structure of society. The individualistic theory takes little or no account of the family as such, and asserts the right, nay the duty of woman to join in the struggle for existence. Miss Hutchins examines each theory, and finds advantages and disadvantages in both. However, she comes to the conclusion that the individualistic theory is most suitable to the conditions of modern society. Indeed, as everyone knows, the patriarchal theory is breaking down. Countless girls and many married women do, in fact, work, not because their earnings are needed for the home, but because they like to feel independent. There seems little doubt that the sphere of woman's occupations will be greatly extended.

But when one comes to domestic services, which, after all, will always constitute the chief form of woman's work, one is faced by innumerable difficulties. Miss Hutchins approves of the idea of economic independence, but she cannot suggest any satisfactory method by which it can be realised. To give wives a statutory share of the husband's income may sound simple enough in theory, but in practice would not be workable. Also, it would not be conducive to domestic harmony, and it would penalise the legal tie. Miss Hutchins seems to think the Insurance Act might be developed so as to provide maternity grants and even marriage portions; but the economic independence thus would be very scanty and temporary. Miss Hutchins, like everyone else, has failed to show us how the idea of economic independence can be realised; but her book is a very reasonable and temperate analysis of the position, and will help to clear the ground of the debris of outworn traditions which still encumbers it. (Thomas Murby.)

"The Great Scourge, and How to End It," is Miss Christabel Pankhurst's contribution to the campaign against venereal disease. Her remedy—chastity for men and votes for women—is a neat formula. But there are countries in which female franchise has been the rule for years, and yet doctors tell us that in these the ravages of venereal diseases are as great as ever. "Chastity for men," and, Miss Pankhurst might have added, "for women" (for the one cannot be unchaste without a corresponding act of unchastity on the part of the other), is a much more certain specific. Indeed, therein lies the solution of the whole problem. Miss Pankhurst writes with a bitter, and somewhat hysterical, hostility against men, and is often guilty both of exaggeration and of positive misstatements. However, her book may do good by helping to destroy the conspiracy of silence which surrounds the subject. (E. Pankhurst.)

THE FAR EAST.

Several books about the Far East have recently appeared, and if none of them is of overwhelming importance each of them possesses points of interest. First and foremost is "The Evolution of New Japan," by J. H. Longford (Cambridge University Press). In this, within the compass of 160 pages, the author traces for us those developments which in a few years changed Japan, the stronghold of medieval ideas and jealous insularity, into a modern and progressive state, and a world-power into the bargain. The process of "occidentalisation" is still going on, and the following quotation suggests that what is gained in one direction is being lost in another. "Tokio of the present day has all the amenities of the London of George V. It is a more comfortable, convenient, safe, and healthy place in which to live, but all that made it so picturesque has gone. The son of the stately silk-robed samurai now hurries in a tweed suit and felt hat to his desk in a bank in a noisy, crowded, tram car. At night the main streets are as brilliant, populous, noisy, and safe as Piccadilly; the danger that confronts the peaceful pedestrian is no longer the sword of the samurai, but the motor of the road-hog."

In "Buddhist China" Mr. R. F. Johnston gives an account of Mahayanist Buddhism, a faith with which he appears to feel considerable sympathy. Much of the book is taken up with discussions of questions of creed and dogma, and these will necessarily appeal to the student of religion rather than to the general reader. But the descriptions of his travels are interesting, particularly in the case of his visit to Pulushan and Kuan Yin Risa, two of the sacred mountains of China. (Murray; G. Robertson.)

"Missionary Joys in Japan" by Paget Wilkes (Morgan and Scott), and "In the Year in the Far East" by Miss Edith M. E. Baring Gould (C.M.S.), are both the work of missionaries, who write pleasantly about their work and their lives in the Orient, and who give interesting descriptions of the manners and customs of the inhabitants thereof. The point of the title of Miss Baring Gould's book is that she landed in China just after the Republic had been proclaimed, and in the first year of the new era.

PEEPS AT THE PAST.

"Peeps at the Past" is an interesting compilation published under the auspices of the Australian Historical Society. It consists of a number of papers, notes, and so forth, which have appeared locally, and which relate to the days of "early and later settlement in the colony, of exploration and adventure, and to other aspects of that picturesque period known as the colonial period." The task of compilation and supervision has been undertaken by Messrs. C. H. Bartlie, E. A. Aucher, and C. T. Burfitt, and the book is a perfect mine of out-of-the-way information about New South Wales during an epoch of which it is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain authentic records. An improvement would be that the material dealing with each subject should be printed continuously instead of being scattered throughout the volume; however, an excellent index to some extent mitigates the inconvenience of this. A feature of the compilation is the numerous reproductions of old prints. (James R. Tyrrell.)

SOME NEW NOVELS.

Mr. Eden Phillpotts is at his best when he writes about the moors and tors of Devon, and the dwellers thereon, and in "The Master of Merripit" his setting is his native heath, and his period a century ago, when law and order were honoured in the breach rather than by the observance. The plot is set in motion by a local beauty, who promises her hand to whichever of two wooers succeeds in capturing two highwaymen who are terrorising the neighbourhood. Each lovelorn swain sets about the task after his own fashion. Saul Copleston, the innkeeper, huge, powerful, self-confident, but with what Americans call a "yellow streak" in his composition, indulges principally in talk; John Goole, the master of Merripit farm, has less to say, but does more. He realises that he must call strategy to his aid, and he embarks upon a course of cold-blooded daring which eventually wins the day. Incidentally he pays back with interest an insult which the burly publican has put upon him, and, like the hero of "The Lady and the Lions," realises that in the performance of the exacting quest which his lady has imposed on him, he has ceased to love her. So he releases her from a bond which has become odious to both, hands her over to his defeated rival, and marries her sister instead. The tale of his exploits is excellent, but even better are some the characters to whom Mr. Phillpotts introduces us. The Rowland family, with its four generations, is a delightful creation, and we are provided with a never-ending fund of entertainment in the conversations of the pessimistic grandfather and the centenarian great grandfather who, though always prepared to look upon the bright side of things, is always constrained to admit that the race had degenerated since the golden days of 90, or even 80, years ago. (Ward, Lock, and Co.)

Mr. John Oxenham has made the Channel Islands his own in fiction, and in "Red Wrath" he has ventured even closer towards France. The group of islands off Brittany supplies him with his setting. Chausey, with its myriad channels, its granite quarries, its loves and hates, its industrial conflicts—this is the background before which Ronan Kerzee and Aliette Keralio prove the saw that the course of true love never runs smooth. Ronan has to serve his time in the navy, and while he is doing it the Franco-Prussian war breaks out. Mr. Oxenham gives a graphic picture of the siege of Paris, and of the part played in it by the naval brigades. Then comes an even more graphic picture of the hectic fury of the Commune. Ronan is in the thick of it all, and more by good luck than good management he survives. He has even sufficient spirit left to climb down the perpendicular wall of a fortress and escape to the arms of Aliette. It is a capital story, which contains a good deal of excellent characterisation. (Hodder and Stoughton, Angus and Robertson.)

The latest addition to the N.S.W. Bookstall Series is "In the Last Stride," by Mr. Arthur Wright. Mr. Wright has already written several novels of the turf and ring, which have appealed strongly to the sporting proclivities of the Australian reader, and in his newest effort he betakes himself to the football field. It is all very up to date. The hero is a mighty forward, and the villain a referee, whose machinations bid fair to disgrace his rival's reputation and shatter his romance. Mr. Wright hurries us from incident to incident. There are football matches and boxing contests and burglaries and opium smuggling expeditions, which he describes with a great deal of vigour, and no reader will be able to complain that he has not received his money's worth of sensation. (The N.S.W. Bookstall Co.)

Mrs. George Wemyss has followed up "The Professional Aunt" with "Grannie-for-Granted," a story much in the same vein. We are introduced to a number of pleasant people with pleasant children, who live and move and have their being in a pleasant atmosphere. Grannie is the confidante and the benevolent dea ex machina of all, and though the book is an unsubstantial trifle, it is a very agreeable one. (Constable and Co.)

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

On March 5, one of the possibly important events of the year took place at St. James's Theatre in the production of Alfred Sutro's new comedy-drama "The Two Virtues." The playwright's last effort was "The Firescreen," in 1910, but he has not always been successful, and the two pieces which reached Australia, "The Walls of Jericho" and "John Glayde's Honour" still represent his best work. This new piece is highly satirical, and we read that the characters, "whilst perfectly recognisable, are such as never really lived." The hero, Jeffrey Panton (Sir Geo. Alexander), is a wealthy bachelor at work on his great "History of the Historians;" and there is an egoistical poet (Mr. Herbert Waring), the historian's sharp-tongued sister (Miss Henrietta Watson), and a bewitching Mrs. Guildford, who is slandered by the said sister. It is then that the historian reminds her that chastity is not the only feminine virtue, she has forgotten charity. "The Two Virtues" was cordially received, and the press notices are friendly. On March 2 Adeline Genee reappeared at the Coliseum Theatre in the ballet-scene at the ruined castle in "Robert le Diable," which was staged during her season here. As then, M. Volinin at the Coliseum "proved a graceful dancer who shared her triumph in no small degree."

Paderewski has been sometimes compared with Harold Bauer, the great pianist who will visit Australia during the present winter season, though there are no two men who are more temperamentally dissimilar. Paderewski is pre-eminently the romanticist amongst pianists. He is of the same school as such romantic giants as Rubinstein and Liszt. He is imaginative and emotional, and stands for the sentimental phase of his art in its highest expression, a fact freely recognised by Australian audiences in 1904. Bauer, a world-famous player whose name has hitherto been less known here than it should be, is, on the other hand a classicist—an artist whose only ambition is the correct meaning of the composer he is interpreting. His aim is to give the best of the composers in all their beauty, without any sentimental colouring of his own. Critics in Europe and America are at one in declaring that, with the aid of a surprising technique, he succeeds in his aim.

Miss Ellen Terry's last Shakespearian discourse before leaving England for these shores was at the University of London, in the presence of a distinguished audience, her subject being "The Triumphant Heroines of Shakespeare," and this is likely to form her opening lecture at the Melbourne Town Hall on May 7. Mr. Joseph Blascheck, the humorist and entertainer, who was here about two years ago with "Society Snapshots," is representing the English syndicate which is bringing out the great actress, and is now nearing Adelaide on the Moultan. Besides assisting on the platform, Mr. Blascheck, who has made many London appearances since his youthful beginnings in Victoria, will direct the tour. Miss Terry is on board the Omrah, which will arrive three days before her opening date.

The Sydney Amateur Orchestral Society, which will open its season on May 13, under Mr. Alfred Hill's baton, reminds its subscribers and friends that it is in a fortunate position as regards music. This society purchased the orchestral library of its founder Signor Hazon, received as a gift the orchestral library of the late Sydney Moss, and has had so many donations of scores that it now possesses one of the largest and most valuable collections of orchestral music in the Southern Hemisphere. At the opening concert, an item of especial interest will be the first performance in public of Mirrie Solomon's "Pagan Concerto" for pianoforte and orchestra, with Mr. Lawrence Godfrey Smith as soloist.

Mr. Edwin Brett, whose last appearance in Sydney was as the burly "Sergeant Brue" four years ago, has made a welcome return here as Dame Cogia Baba in "The Forty Thieves." He is a Dame who has appeared all over England, and runs very close his present colleague, Mr. Barry Lupino, who boasts 28 seasons in pantomime! Playgoers here who remember the gentle refinement of Mr. Brett's portrait of old Mr. Hook, will be pleased to know that the comedian, like G. P. Huntley, the original exponent of the role, is a product of the provincial stock system. Many fine actors have been evolved from it, and in any case they must learn their art thoroughly. Besides his experience as principal comedian in many musical comedies, amongst which one of his best characters was Captain Coddington, in "In Town," Mr. Brett has played "heavy lead" in modern Drury Lane drama. On leaving Australia in 1910 he was engaged as Tom Lambeth, the trainer, in "The Whip" during an important tour. After that, he was with his wife, Miss Emmeline Orford, an Australian favourite four years ago in Cinderella, and later both artists were in "Aladdin" at Brighton. Mr. Brett appeared as Count Lothar, with his wife as Fifi, during a first-rate tour of "The Waltz Dream," lasting 18 months, after which both artists joined the Moss Empire Circuit for London and the big centres, and continued in vaudeville until they sailed under engagement to J. C. Williamson, Ltd. In order to do this, they cancelled about 30 weeks at the halls after a world of trouble, cheerfully undertaken in order to renew acquaintance with the sunny side of the globe.

On March 5 twelve plays had passed 100 performances in London. So far, the most successful were "The Great Adventure" at the Kingsway, 391; "Diplomacy," at Wyndham's, 389; "Within the Law," at the Haymarket, 346; "The Marriage Market," at Daly's, 288, "Never Say Die," at the Apollo, 197; "The Pearl Girl," at the Shaftesbury, 181; "Magic," at the Little, 140; "The Girl from Utah," at the Adelphi, 137; "Mr. Wu," at the Strand, 109. All these pieces were still running.

Mr. Oswald Anderson, the young song-composer, who left Sydney for England some months ago, writes from London to record his impressions of Arnold Schonberg's "Futurist" music, which he heard the Viennese composer conduct with the Queen's Hall Orchestra. Herr Schonberg is described by the writer as a cheerful and active man of 40, who does not in any way suggest the "crank," yet his music appears to represent anarchy. "The principal impression that remains with me is that the composer appears to be working with new tonal matter, which carries with it a peculiar effect of 'deadness.' The music contains a mysterious and subtle fascination, and creates in me an indefinable feeling of intense unrest and sadness. You might almost say that the music stirred psychic forces which are no doubt within us in a more or less marked degree. It gave one a curious feeling to see him conduct the orchestra, and work them up to the different climaxes, and draw the subtle effects so apparently desired, but which were to the average hearer total discords. Schonberg, however, relished the performance, and has since complimented the members of the orchestra on their splendid rendering. Personally the music had a most upsetting effect, and created a feeling of pessimism which made me long at the moment for the wholesome atmosphere and the sunny skies of my native land to dispel."

Although Easter is not, perhaps, the holiday festival in Melbourne, that it is in Sydney, still the reigning attractions at the leading theatres have been supplemented by concert and vaudeville entertainments. "Come Over Here" is reported to be drawing crowded houses at Her Majesty's, and the new French drama, "Madam X.," has caught on at the Theatre Royal in the hands of the "Within the Law" company. At the King's Theatre, the Bert Bailey direction has substituted the American comedy-drama, "What Happened to Mary" for "On Our Selection." Harry Lauder opens his season at the Princess's Theatre to-night, and although he has brought over half-a-dozen new vaudeville artists from London, his own contributions will occupy an entire hour. Paul Dufault, the Franco-Canadian tenor, will open his concert season on Monday, supported by Pauline Bindley, a new soprano; Ernest Toy, violinist; and Harold Whittle, pianist. Mme. Mary Conly gave a concert at the Auditorium on Good Friday, when also Philip Newbury, after some years' absence, appeared at the Princess's Theatre, with Maggie Stirling and other artists. Mr. Walter Kirby, another tenor who belongs to this side of the world, gave a concert at the King's Theatre.

THE CHURCHES.

AN ANGLO-CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Archbishop Clarke, of Melbourne, in the course of an interview on the Church of England in Australia, observed: "It has now been discovered that nothing that has been done by us in any State in Australia has finally severed us from the Church of England. Legally, therefore, we are everywhere in the Commonwealth a part of the Church of England. This has been the means of bringing home to the minds of the leaders of the Church that no power exists to alter the Prayer Book, or to carry out some other smaller acts that would affect the Church in its working.

"As the years pass the inevitable consequence of a growing Australian sentiment will be felt in an imperious demand for some action. For my own part, I foresee great difficulty in selecting any name that shall assert at least our full Communion with the Church of England at home, and at the same time introduce the name of Australia. I have thought sometimes that the question might be settled in the future by the adoption of such a name as the Anglo-Catholic Church of Australia."

The present Dean of Newcastle, Bishop-elect of Kalgoorlie, is to be consecrated in St. Andrew's Cathedral on St. Mark's Day, April 25, and will subsequently be enthroned in St. John's, Kalgoorlie, on Ascension Day, May 21. At the consecration the preacher is to be Bishop Stone-Wigg.

The Rev. Arnold Connolly, rector of St. Paul's, West Maitland, who has been asked by the Bishop of Newcastle to represent the diocese at the enthronement of Dean Golding Bird as Bishop of Kalgoorlie, leaves Melbourne on May 6 by the Katoomba.

On the invitation of the Bishop of Grafton, Mr. H. Minton Taylor has accepted the position of chancellor of the diocese. The Revs. D. J. Davies, principal of Moore College, and W. F. Wentworth Sheilds, rector of St. James's, Sydney, have been appointed by the Bishop as examining chaplains.

The newly-appointed rector of Adelong is Rev. J. J. E. Done, formerly of West Monaro. Mr. Done has been acting rector of Cootamundra during the absence of Archdeacon Simpson.

A recent departure from Sydney is that of the Rev. S. C. O'Bresnen Hall, registrar of the Bathurst Diocese, who, together with his wife, has left on an extended visit to England.

Prior to his induction to the rectorship of Kangaroo Valley the Rev. E. Shipley was the recipient of several presentations and gifts by his former parishioners of St. John's, Annfield.

The Rev. A. G. Rix was recently appointed rector of Moruya, after being rector of Adelong for the last 12 months. Before leaving Adelong, presentations from the parishioners, the choir, and the C.E.M.S. were received by Mr. Rix.

The Rev. C. Newton Mell was recently inducted as rector of Gresford by Archdeacon Luscombe.

Archdeacon Regg recently inducted the Rev. G. M. Brown to the parish of West Wallsend. Mr. Brown, whose son, Rev. G. W. Brown, is rector of Bulahdelah, of which his father had charge 30 years ago, was presented with two purses of sovereigns and several substantial cheques before leaving his former parish of Gresford.

The Rev. T. J. Heffernan, Rural Dean of Penrith, recently performed two inductions in the diocese of Sydney. The Rev. W. R. Bowers was indentured to the parish of St. Mary's, and the Rev. L. R. Connell to the parish of Blackheath.

A meeting of the parishioners of St. Hilda's, Katoomba, was convened last Sunday by the rector, Rev. W. E. Godson, to discuss the question of raising funds for the new church. A sum of about £3000 is needed to put up the first portion of the building, with seating accommodation for 300. Over £80 was promised in freewill offerings, and it is hoped that outside help will speedily enable sufficient funds to be raised.

The Rev. Harold Woodger, rector of Coonamble, who was the victim of a serious accident some months ago, has been staying at Ballarat, but will spend the rest of April in Sydney and Armidale. He hopes to return to his parochial duties at the end of the month.

The Rev. P. J. Simpson, formerly rector of Cootamundra, and Archdeacon of Wagga, has been appointed vicar of Norton, Radnorshire. Mr. Simpson, who only recently sent his resignation to the Bishop of Goulburn, was at one time Precentor of St. Andrew's Cathedral.

Archdeacon Howell, of Blayney, who has completed 25 years of work in the parish, was recently the recipient of a presentation from his parishioners, at a celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Archdeacon's appointment. The presentation was made by the Bishop of Bathurst, who added a kindly episcopal injunction to take a good holiday.

The Rev. C. H. Money, of the Church Socialist League, arrived from New Zealand by the Manuka last Tuesday.

The Right Rev. Dr. Dwyer, Roman Catholic Bishop of Maitland, and Right Rev. Dr. Carroll, Bishop of Lismore, are on a visit "ad limina" to Rome. They are staying at the Irish College.

Dr. Kelly, Archbishop of Sydney, is to preside at Mass on Easter Monday, when the Cathedral choir will be supplemented by an orchestra. Dr. Kelly will also preach the sermon, while a special discourse at the evening service will be delivered by Rev. P. J. Murphy, of the Cathedral staff.

The Rev. Father Sheridan, who has been parish priest of St. Patrick's, at Lithgow, for over five years, has been compelled to resign his position owing to failing health. He had been 42 years in the priesthood.

Among the passengers by the Orontes, reaching Sydney this week, was Rev. Brother Osmond, B.Sc., Director of the Marist Brothers' High School at Darlinghurst, who left for Europe last June to visit the Mother House of the Order.

The delegates to the Catholic Federation Conference have arranged to call on Dr. Kelly next Thursday, who will entertain them at tea.

On Saturday last a new primary school hall was opened at Chatswood South by Mrs. Ludowici, for the local Methodist Church. She was subsequently presented with a key by the Rev. F. Colwell, President of the Conference. The building cost between £5000 and £6000, and was built expressly for the primary department to assist Sunday School work in the district. The honorary architects, Messrs. Ross and Rowe, were accorded a vote of thanks. The Rev. Harold Wheen, secretary of the Sunday School Department, gave an address.

The Rev. Principal Thatcher delivered an address on Monday morning before the Methodist Ministers' Association. A large gathering was present, and the address was much appreciated. A general discussion followed, and a vote of thanks was accorded to Principal Thatcher.

The President of the Methodist Conference has made arrangements for Mr. Cutler, of Waverley, to go to Coff's Harbour as agent of the Methodist Church.

On retiring from the superintendency of the Lindfield Methodist circuit, the Rev. J. E. Carruthers completed a term of 46 years in the active ministry of the Methodist Church. The recent conference placed on record its sense of the value of the services rendered by him to the Connexion as a whole, and at the Lindfield circuit quarterly meeting on Tuesday last the members present took advantage of the opportunity to pass a resolution of appreciation of his work in the Lindfield circuit, as well as of recognition of his long and distinguished career in the ministry generally. At a meeting of the Ladies' Church Aid Association, several presentations were made to Mrs. Carruthers. Mr. Carruthers now becomes a supernumerary minister, and will reside at Cremorne.

On the eve of their departure for Port Macquarie, a farewell social was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Steel by the residents of Chatswood on Tuesday night. During the past five years Mr. Steel has been circuit missionary in the Chatswood-Willoughby circuit. In the absence of Rev. M. Maddern, the chair was taken by Mr. J. Waterhouse, M.A., who presented him with a cheque. Presentations to Mr. and Mrs. Steel were also made by the girls belonging to Mr. Steel's religious instruction class at the Chatswood Superior Public School.

"Olivet to Calvary," a cantata by J. H. Maunder, which recalls some of the incidents of the last days of the Saviour's life on earth was rendered by the choir of the Newtown Methodist Church on Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance. Mr. Percy French and Mr. Stanley Leadley lent their aid in making a pronounced success of the cantata. Mr. William Pigeon conducted and Mr. G. Vern Barnett was the organist.

Miss Davey, who recently arrived in Sydney from the Methodist Mission in the Solomons, is leaving shortly for China under appointment to the Methodist Women's Auxiliary of England.

The Rev. J. W. Holden conducted a memorial service for the late Trevor D. S. Walker at Newtown last Sunday evening, which was largely attended.

The Rev. A. Brown, of Ipswich, Queensland, has been apointed as the first minister of the new Congregational Church at Sale (Vic.), and will take up his ministry on the first Sunday in May.

In St. Enoch's Presbyterian Church, Newtown, on Monday evening, the choir of the Petersham Congregational Church rendered Stainer's sacred cantata, "St. Mary Magdalen," before a large audience. Misses Grace Tilley (soprano) and Lily Davies (contralto, St. Enoch's), and Messrs. Harry Neil (tenor) and Charles Schmeidt (bass) were assisted by a large choir, under the conductorship of Mr. G. Vern Barnett.

The Rev. A. Fisher-Webster has been called to the pastorate of the Congregational Church at Granville. Mr. Fisher-Webster was formerly pastor of Waterloo Church.

The choir of the Petersham Congregational Church, assisted by Miss Jean Cocks, Miss Grace Tilley, Miss Nellie Felton, Mr. H. Neil, Mr. H. S. Messiter, Mr. Chas. Schmeidt, and Mr. Percy Herford rendered an Easter choral festival in the church, Croydon-street, Petersham, on Thursday evening last.

At the annual meeting of the Camden College constituency, held at the Y.M.C.A. Hall on April 2, the Rev. Geo. Campbell (president of the council) occupied the chair. A new rule was proposed by the council and adopted, allowing the admission of students for a probationary period of not more than 12 months to enable them to matriculate and so proceed to the full college course. The annual report as presented by the secretary, Mr. C. H. Slatyer, and the financial reports by the treasurer, Mr. A. L. Mullens, were adopted. The warden gave a brief address on points of special interest in the reports. Votes of thanks were passed to Rev. R. A. Thompson, B.A., who had resigned as honorary secretary, and Mr. C. H. Myles, who resigned from the council, also to Mr. C. H. Slatyer for special services as acting secretary. Prof. S. H. Barraclough was elected a member of the council.

In July last the council of Camden College determined to mark the jubilee of the college (the first steps to found it were taken August 6, 1863) by securing permanent quarters. A house in Hereford-street, Glebe, was purchased, and is to be enlarged by the addition of a building containing lecture room, library, students' common room, and eight bedrooms. When this is completed the college will be residential. Of the £4500 required for the scheme, £1850 has been promised, and an appeal is now being made to the Congregationalists of New South Wales for the balance. The warden is now living in the house, where also classes will be conducted until the new building is erected. It should be added that two candidates are applying for admission this year, and six more are taking steps to qualify for admission. For a regular supply of students the college is largely dependent on the interest taken by the ministers in the young men of their churches.

The council acknowledged with thankfulness the generous response with which their appeal for funds had been met. The Misses Amy S. E. Fairfax and A. Caroline Fairfax had given £100 to a fund in memory of their mother, the late Mrs. Anne Fairfax. Mr. George Sidney Buzacott had given £100 to a fund in memory of his father, the late Rev. Aaron Buzacott, B.A.; and Mr. Edward Lloyd Jones and Mr. Charles Lloyd Jones were giving £50 each to the Edward Lloyd Jones memorial fund.

A sacred concert was successfully given on Friday last week at the Presbyterian Church, Pymble. A number of artists assisted, the "Calvary" of Rodney being given with fine effect.

The Rev. A. Macaulay Caldwell, of Timaru, New Zealand, has accepted a call to the Cairns Memorial Church at East Melbourne.

It has been found necessary to alter the dates of the twelfth bi-ennial Australasian C. E. Convention in Sydney to September 24-30. The Rev. W. P. Phillips was elected secretary at a meeting of the convention committee. It is hoped that Dr. Charles M. Sheldon who will be visiting New Zealand in August, and Rev. Wm. Carey, of India, will be able to attend.

The Rev. G. O. Cocks, N.S.W. president of the Christian Endeavour Union, intends to be present at the annual C. E. Convention to be held at Newcastle from April 24 to April 27.

The Open-air Gospel Mission are arranging to conduct services at Manly on Easter Monday. The afternoon service will be held on the Reserve near the Ocean Beach, and the evening service near the fountain, ferry wharf.

The annual meeting of the Open-air Gospel Mission is to be held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Monday week, when the speakers will include the Rev. A. E. Talbot, M.A., Dean of Sydney, Mr. G. H. Harward, Evangelist of the City Temple, and Mr. William Arnott, president of the mission.

A meeting of the Newtown and district Ministerial Association was held during the week at the Congregational Church Vestry, Newtown, and was attended by deputation from the Evangelical Council. It was resolved to arrange for a Christian conference to be held in Newtown early in August, the topic chosen, "Christian Service." The Evangelical Council has undertaken the whole of the arrangements for the conference.

The Rev. Harry Owen will commence a mission in Bulli-Woonona to-morrow evening. The mission is under the auspices of the committee representative of all local churches. Subsequently Mr. Owen will conduct missions in Richmond and Windsor, and afterwards proceed to Newcastle to conduct a six weeks' mission in the city and district.

The local advisory board of the Chapman-Alexander Bible Institute are arranging for a series of meetings to be given by the Rev. J. H. Elliott, D.D., the newly-appointed principal of the institute. He is to arrive in Sydney on May 9. The meetings will take the form of Bible conferences. It is hoped that Dr. Elliott will have time to visit Newcastle and Bathurst and conduct a conference at each place.

The Y.M.C.A. placed its field service equipment in the Liverpool military camp, and during the eight days' encampment, 3115 letters were despatched by the association, all of these having been written in their tents. Stationery, reading matter, and games were provided by the association, and a sing-song was held every night. On the Sunday in camp, an evangelistic meeting was held, at which the two association representatives in charge (Mr. H. Armstrong and Mr. S. L. Peck) spoke. The accommodation was taxed to its fullest capacity every night, the marquees being too small to meet the demand made upon them. The association will place the same equipment in the forthcoming camp at Liverpool from April 9 to 16.

An Easter camp for members of the Young Women's Christian Association will be held at Austinmer from April 9 to 11, under the leadership of Miss Mary B. Hill. A short course of Bible study will be entered upon for one hour each day, the remainder of the time being given up to rest and recreation.

The monthly meeting of the Sydney Seamen's Mission was held at the Rawson Institute on Wednesday, under the presidency of Archdeacon Gunther. The report of the chaplain, Rev. Allen Pain, showed that much good work was being done among the sailors visiting the port, but that it was impossible to cover the whole field without an assistant chaplain, whose office was now vacant owing to insufficient funds. It was also pointed out that there was a splendid opening among Asiatics, which the committee could not, for the same reason, undertake at present. After discussion, it was resolved that the chaplain be authorised to look for a suitable assistant, and that special efforts be made to raise the funds required.

At the last monthly meeting of the Seamen's Mission, it was announced that owing to his having taken up permanent work in England, the Rev. H. Saumarez Smith had resigned his position as hon. chaplain to the mission. On the motion of Archdeacon Gunther, it was resolved that the resignation be accepted with much regret.

The Rev. C. E. Burgess has been appointed rector of Tumut, and the Rev. R. J. Ross Edwards rector of Marulan.

LENTEN MUSIC.

The Lenten music rendered at St. Andrew's Cathedral during the week has been of special interest. On Tuesday evening Gounod's motet "Gallia" was sung as the anthem by the choir, after a brief address by the Dean of Sydney. On Thursday the Passion music from the same composer's "Redemption" was impressively given, the choral work being of a high standard. The soloists were Mr. Max Way (tenor), Messrs. A. S. Orchard, and J. Cochran (bass), and Chorister Oliver Hole (soprano). The descriptive organ part, which forms one of the principal features of the work, was admirably played by Mr. J. Massey. At this evening's service Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be sung.

THE BACK WARNS YOU.

"Don't Neglect Your Kidneys."

Pain in the back is the kidney's Signal of distress. If this timely warning is ignored, kidney disease silently fastens its deadly grip—for kidney sickness first shows itself in pains and disorders in other parts, and the real cause is too often hidden until fatal Bright's disease or diabetes has set in. Suspect the kidneys if you are rheumatic and nervous, or have lame back, painful, too frequent or scanty urination, weak heart, dizzy spells, headaches, bloating, or neuralgia. What you want is a special kidney medicine—not an experiment, but one that has stood the test for years. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills relieve weak, congested kidneys, drive away backache, and regulate the urine. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills have been relieving lame backs and sick kidneys for years. Doan's Pills are made from only the purest drugs, and are absolutely non-poisonous. They are used and praised all over the civilised world.

DOAN'S BACKACHE KIDNEY PILLS

GIVE PERMANENT RELIEF.

SYDNEY PEOPLE SAY SO.

PADDINGTON.

Mr. J. H. Pelgrave, 45 Gipps-street, Paddington, Sydney, writes:—"I think it my duty to say, for the benefit of other sufferers from weak kidneys and urinary trouble, that I have found nothing so effectual for these ailments as Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and I hope the publishing of this testimonial will be the means of benefiting many. Nearly all my life I have suffered a lot from weak kidneys and urinary trouble, and have taken all sorts of medicines in the hope of finding a cure, but none of them did me any good. I have also been under medical men, but their treatment also failed to benefit me in any way. I was advised to take a course of Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and I am delighted to tell you these Pills cured me, and I feel in better health now than I have done for years. I cannot praise this remedy sufficiently for the good it has done me."

Two years later, Mr. Pelgrave says:—"Doan's Backache Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble over two years ago, and I have still the same good opinion of this grand remedy."

WATERLOO.

Mrs. W. Benn, 12 Turner-street, Redfern, Sydney, says:—"I am quite convinced that I owe my life to Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, for this remedy cured me of dropsy and other symptoms of disordered kidneys. My ill-health started with backache, then I got urinary trouble and dropsy. My back was always aching, the sharp, shooting pains being so bad I would have hot flannels put on to try and get ease. The secretions were thick, and caused intense pain. I was fit for nothing, feeling tired out always, and I had bad headaches. My legs and feet swelled to twice their natural size; I could not put my boots on, and I practically lost the use of my legs. I was really very ill, and nobody thought I would ever get well. I tried every remedy I could hear of, but got no better. The doctors whom I consulted could do me no good, and gave up my case as hopeless. A friend advised me to use Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and I procured some. The first few bottles gave me relief, and 12 bottles completed my cure. I am now quite free of the dropsy and backache, and the secretions are regulated. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills have cured me completely, and permanently, for I have been quite well for two and a half years now. I cannot sufficiently praise Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, they saved my life."

Mrs. Benn makes a second statement five years later:—"I am pleased to add that I have had no return of dropsy or any other symptom of kidney trouble since Doan's Backache Kidney Pills cured me over seven years ago."

ROOKWOOD.

Mr. Robert Larcombe, Monumental Mason, Rookwood, says:—"Off and on for years I suffered agony from backache and kidney trouble. I would go to bed feeling fairly well, but on rising in the morning my back would ache terribly. The pains were sharp and shooting, and often so bad that I used to scream out. I always had great difficulty in stooping, and it was agony for me to straighten up again, if I had been in one position for any length of time. The kidney secretions were also much affected. I was advised to try Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and I sent for some at once. After using the first couple of bottles I felt better, and five bottles completely cured me. I can recommend Doan's Backache Kidney Pills to all sufferers from kidney trouble, and feel sure they will benefit by taking them."

Two years later Mr. Larcombe says:—"It is over two years since Doan's Backache Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble, and I have had no return of the complaint all that time."

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are sold by all Chemists and Storekeepers at 2/9 per bottle (six bottles 15/3), or will be posted on receipt of price by Foster-McClellan Co., 76 Pitt-street, Sydney.

ART INSTRUCTION.

(BY A. J. DAPLYN.)

In this age of individualism, when old methods are in everything making way for new, the artist is little considered, unless he develops fresh ideas and renders them by novel methods. This being so, the question arises, Should the young artist seek to acquire his art education in a school or "on his own?" By the latter method he certainly may retain any originality he may possess; but, on the other hand, he will be in great danger of overestimating his own abilities, and developing a bad attack of "swelled head." Of course, as is well known, some of the great masters, such as Raphael, Rembrandt, or Michael Angelo, owed little to schools, nor did many celebrated Englishmen—witness Sir Joshua Reynolds, Romney, or Raeburn; but this was not from disinclination, but rather from the fact that there were no schools to go to. For nearly a century, however, most artists have received their art education in schools, especially in France, where the schools are deservedly famous for their methods, which are imitated in all parts of the world. There are many places in London whose boast is that they resemble the French ateliers, but I fail to see why anyone should be content with an imitation, when the real article may be had for the asking. Certainly not the young Australian, who is nothing if not up to date; and there is no reason why, having decided to leave Australia for a time, he should not make his way direct to Paris, and it is hoped that this article will be of assistance to him, as it contains the latest information on the subject.

When the young Australian arrives in a Parisian atelier he will very likely be disappointed, and disagreeably surprised to find that the majority of students paint little better than himself—that is, supposing that he has received his art education in such schools as the Melbourne National Gallery or that of the Royal Art Society of New South Wales, where the system is up to date. Australians from these schools, such as Longstaff, Fox, Lambert, and others, found themselves quite at home, and were the recipients of many prizes. Unless he has assimilated all that is to be learnt in Australia, he had better remain there, where the foundation of an art education may be acquired as well as and perhaps better than abroad. In Paris he would be a foreigner and have a difficulty in understanding the language of the master, who in any case would be too much occupied to devote to him much time. Certainly he might learn something from fellow students as to how a thing should be done, but more often how it should not be done. Before discussing the different schools, a word may be said as to the cost of living. The student should be possessed of some means, for he will not be able to earn anything in Paris, but for £3 a week he could with economy live well, i.e., of course, in the Latin quarter, or quarter of the schools. It might be done for less even, but he would have a rough time. In that part of the town his room should cost about 9s a week. Luncheon and dinner at a restaurant, 1s 3d each. With painting materials and school fees, he would not be able to indulge in many luxuries.

The young Australian arrived in Paris, and, anxious to commence work, has probably heard of the Ecole National des Beaux Arts, which is the Government school, and where there are no fees. This would suit him exactly, but the difficulty would be to obtain admittance. He must get a letter of introduction from the English Ambassador, and produce certificates of competence and specimens of work, after which he will have to compete with other candidates, and should he survive and obtain admittance will find the studio so crowded that he will have great difficulty in catching a glimpse of the model. The school next in importance is the Academie Julian, with ateliers is various parts of Paris. It is in close touch with the Beaux Arts School, and prepares students for admission. There are monthly competitions, at which the work is exhibited, and prizes awarded of the value of £6, £4, and £2 10s, and medals. The school for ladies is separate from that of the men, but the professors are the same, with Monsieur Jean Paul Laurens at the head.

This is one of the oldest schools in Paris, and is generally crowded. Around the walls of the atelier are hung many canvases, the gift of old students. Fees amount to about 40 francs per month, the franc counting as 9½d, English money.

Another school of which I can speak by experience is the Academie de la Grande Chaumiere, off the Boulevard Mont Parnasse. The student will there find every facility for study, the house having been built for the purpose. In it there are 12 or 15 studios, excellently lighted, and classes for the nude, costume, quick sketches, black and white, miniature, sculpture, and engraving. The morning class of Messieurs Lucien Simon and Rene Menard costs 60 francs per month; in the afternoon other masters have classes at 40 francs a month, and there are classes without a professor at 25 francs per month, and you can work in that for quick sketching at half a franc the sitting. The drawing class in the evening costs 15 francs a month. In all the studios men and women work together, and in many the ladies are in the majority. The costumes are well chosen, and the backgrounds exceedingly fine, being often silk curtains of good design and colouring. The Academie Collarossi is in the same street as above, but is older and not quite so well appointed. The same routine of study is pursued, and the fees are similar. In this quarter of Paris, i.e., between the Boulevard Mont Parnasse and the Luxembourg Gardens, schools for drawing and painting abound, you see their signs in nearly every street. One of the most prominent is that of Monsieur Delecluse in the Rue Notre Dame des Champs. His private atelier is in the same building, so that he is always available for advice.

Enough has been written to show that Paris offers to the young Australian every facility for serious study; it will be for him to make the best of his opportunity by concentrating all his energies on his work. Presuming that he has overcome the preliminary difficulties of his art, and attained a certain standard, when painting has become his greatest pleasure, it will be the happiest time of his life. But he must avoid all counter-attractions. Let him choose a professor, and remain with him for at least a year; a shorter time would be of little use, and many have harmed themselves by changing too often. Some knowledge of the French language would be useful, but it is not essential absolutely. The French, with proverbial politeness, listen without a smile to the foreigner who is trying to explain himself, and give him all the aid in their power, but it adds greatly to the pleasure of residing in Paris to be able to speak French.

"A CHILD OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY."

On February 16 Professor Ernest Haeckel celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary, an event which was to be commemorated in Germany by the big army of those who have accepted his remarkable monistic philosophy. The "Origin of Species" captured the imagination of Haeckel when a student (comments a London journal), and, beginning with his "General Morphology" (written in his thirtieth year), he worked out his theory of Monism in a series of monumental works, culminating in his famous "Riddle." In his preface to the English edition of the latter Haeckel wrote, in 1899, "I am wholly a child of the nineteenth century, and with its close I draw the line under my life's work." Fourteen years later, though he has retired from his professorship in the University of Jena, he is devoting the evening of his busy life to collecting proofs of his theories in the "Phylogenetics Museum" the German public have built for him at Jena.

THE FLIGHT.

(BY AUSTRAL.)

As the days shorten, and the sun moves gradually towards the north, and the greybeard winter creeps slowly from his southern home, a general movement is noticeable among the migrant birds. Numbers of swallows may be seen lining the telegraph wires and the wire fences; other birds flock to trees, and others assemble in large numbers in the marshes or reeds.

These gatherings, which have been going on for some days at the end of March, and early in April, are the annual reunion for migration. Even before March is spent many of the migrants of Tasmania and Victoria have begun a leisurely flight; but April is looked upon as the migrating month in New South Wales, and of an evening may now be seen flocks of birds in long lines, silhouetted against the golden sunset of the western sky, flying steadily towards the north.

These flocks are rarely seen in the day time until towards the end of April, when those who have left their flight until late in the season, fly continuously night and day to make up for lost time. Often, on moonlight nights, you will hear during the autumn months, weird, plaintive calls of birds, and you have strained your eyes to catch sight of them against the moonlit sky, but rarely with success. These calls are generally recognised by those accustomed to the call of bush birds, and are often identified as the plover or curlew or swan. The calls serve a double purpose; first that of keeping the flock together, and bringing up any stragglers that have become bewildered in the darkness; and secondly, of inviting others to join in the flight.

In ordinary years, the coming and going of the migrants may be timed almost to a day. But if the climatic conditions vary, and the season happens to be late, so does the beginning of migration remain behind—for the migrants will not leave their southern home until the touch of winter is felt. Should we have a sudden cold snap, even in early autumn, the migrants, without waiting to collect into flocks, make a start singly, or in small numbers, gradually increasing in numbers as they move north. Should the weather become warm again, they break their flight, and resume feeding operations, putting on fat for their long fly across the sea.

Most of the small birds rest and feed during the daylight hours, and fly at night when passing overland areas, for they are constantly in danger of attack from hawks and other fierce larger birds—these birds of prey instinctively know of the migrating period, and await the coming of the smaller birds in great numbers. All migrating birds have a recognised leader, and he is chosen from year to year to lead the flock safely and truly; should an accident happen, and he not turn up at the migrating period, another takes his place, but only temporarily. Should the old leader be dead, the new one is followed whilst he remains trusty.

The flight of most of the big birds, as swans, ibises, cranes, and pelicans, takes a peculiar shape. The leader forms the apex of a large triangle, and the flock forms the sides; there is usually no base-line—sometimes these converging lines number up to a hundred, and even more of these large birds. The smaller birds generaly flock in larger numbers than the big ones, mainly for safety, for with them there is safety in numbers, but they have no recognised formation, and the shape of the flock is constantly changing, tired fliers falling to the rear and fresh ones going to the front and so on. Occasionally the season is very late, and warm days remain with us almost up to May, then winter is suddenly precipitated. Those migrants who have waited to the very last then begin a continuous and rapid flight. The swifts that may be seen snapping up the insects in the upper air of the southern tableland as late as April, are said to do the flight straight off in one fly; such rapid fliers are they that they are supposed to breakfast in Australia, and sup in China or Japan. One kind of swift goes right through to Siberia, whilst another goes no farther north than China, where he may be seen hanging on to the gables of temples and pagodas. A swift is never seen resting on the ground, his legs are too short, and his wings too long, to enable him to rise, so he generally hangs on to the side of a wall or rooftree, and gets the necessary momentum for beginning a flight by falling off into the air. These migrants usually rest on the ranges to the north of the Chinese Empire. The limit of flight of migratory birds varies. Some, such as the sand pipers, the curlews, the godwits, greenshanks, stints, and whelps travel right to the borders of the Arctic circle, taking about 14 days of continuous flight—but these birds are not truly Australian for they do not rest here, but are migrants to us from the northern clime. Their feeding grounds are the marshy lands lying around the sea coast of northern Siberia, called "the tundras"; and excellent feeding grounds they are for these waders. On the advent of summer in those northern climes the ice of more southern latitudes melts first, and as the rivers flow northward, their mouths being still frozen over, the water coming from the south overflows the banks, and inundates the surrounding country. After a few warm days the whole countryside, bursts forth into a blaze of beauty. Millions of variegated flowers bloom almost in a day, and what was a few days previous a watery waste becomes a veritable Garden of Eden. These tundras teem with myriads of insects and small water-animals, and as insects follow the vegetation, the birds follow the insects, and on these feeding grounds the wading migrants run riot for a season.

Of our four plover kinds, two remain with us, the spurwing and the black-breasted plover; but the smaller grey plover and golden plover go as far north as Siberia, too. The jacksnipe, dear to the hearts of sportsmen and gourmands, builds his nest in Japan, and in the season may be seen zig-zagging off from the long grass on the slopes of Fujiyama. A bird that migrates to us in the winter also builds in Japan, the robin redbreast, dear to Australian as well as English child life.

Many of our migrants, however, do not leave the continent at all. The gill birds come to the coast during winter, and return to the mountains in the spring to nest and rear their young. The pallid cuckoos hardly ever go beyond North Queensland, and the bronze cuckoos only go as far north as New Guinea. The flycatchers and native canaries remain on the mainland, as also does that exquisite little songster the reed warbler. He follows the summer northward, and on the first touch of spring is back repairing his old nest in the reeds, and singing day and night for very joy. The bee-eaters and dollar birds, so common in the county of Cumberland, are supposed to go to the East Indian Islands for the winter months, but they make an early return.

Thus it will be seen that many of our migrants do not leave Australia at all; they simply follow the warm days to the north and back again to the south throughout the year. Many of the far-going birds are not Australian, they belong to the northern hemisphere, and nest there, migrating to us in the northern winter.

The sand-dottrell, however, is purely Australian, for he nests here, and is supposed to travel as far north as the Arctic circle.

We are not, however, quite left alone in the winter, for some remain with us. Other migrants from Tasmania only move as far north as Northern New South Wales, and the winter migrants, the robin and jacky winter, come to us as consolation.

The theory of migration is a comparatively modern one; for many centuries it was noticed that the birds disappeared each year, but none knew where. Even the famous Dr. Johnson thought that they hibernated. For he says that a number of swallows conglobulate together and dive down to the bed of a river, and there remain for the winter.

The credit of establishing the migration theory is due to Gilbert White, of Selborne, and it has steadily gained ground ever since. Why these birds migrate to such distances is not rightly known, for it is surely not for food, as abundance is found in Australia all the year round. It must be some instinct they are following, or is it simply the wanderlust? Nevertheless, the fact remains, and it is surprising that these comparatively small and timid birds should leave their homes and brave dangers, enemies, and the elements, to fly 15,000 miles, for what?

MAITLAND TO PATERSON.

(BY F. R. C.)

The Paterson is a tributary of the Hunter, a placid, beautiful, restful stream. It was a delightful day, now sunshine, now shower, such a day as lends variety to scenes whose very beauty might become monotonous beneath the unvarying light of the sun, or the unrelieved greyness of a clouded sky. We left West Maitland at 10.10 a.m. by train, thence from East Maitland to Morpeth, also by train. Here we were to board the combined passenger and cargo boat which plies between Newcastle and Paterson three days a week. Of course we had to wait for the boat. One expects to wait in the country, but our waiting time was anything but tedious. A boat came along laden with lucerne hay, sweet-scented, living hay, which took me back to clover fields, daisy chains, and untrammelled youth. About 1.15 our boat, the Marie, came into view. About a quarter of an hour later we set off on our trip up the river, and in a short time came to Hinton, picturesquely situated where the Paterson joins the mother stream. Our chief interest here lay in the lift bridge, the floor of which was raised about six feet by means of a wheel near the span, so that we might pass beneath. Of course it could have been raised higher if necessary.

From here on my friend and I stood in the bow of the boat to get a full view of the scenery, which we now decided had hitherto been described to us in language most inadequate. It was such a winding stream, with such a variety of feathery foliage, such a number of different greens in the willow, the bamboo, the pepper, with its pale tints standing out in peculiar relief against the darker background of the willows. And such willow trees growing more closely together as we made our way up the stream, bending and bowing in the gracious breezes. In many places their roots shone coral pink and red in the warm glance of the sun. The leaves seemed cut off level above the surface of the stream as if a boatman gardener had been along clipping and pruning where the branches touched the water.

Beyond the trees on both sides of the stream stretch out fields of ever-varying greens—especially in the paddocks where some lucerne was just sprouting after harvest, some almost fit to mow, some glowing in brilliant patches of purple, whose blossoms the sun, in its changeableness, now and then picked out from all the others. The ripened corn and the yellow of the willows burned by the recent heat, gave a warmer tint here and there to the otherwise cool looking greens. The farmers along here, besides lucerne, grow corn, pumpkins, melons, and other produce, and go in besides for dairying. They do not all bother to build wharfs, much to the inconvenience of the captain who, with two deckhands, here and there experienced much difficulty in landing parcels or taking stuff aboard.

About eight miles from Hinton we passed beneath the Woodville bridge, similar to the one we had previously seen. From here up, the course of the river was more winding, and on either bank the foliage differed from that we had seen. From an old settler we heard that this denser growth was the remains of a bush which many many years back had covered alluvial flats. I have not mentioned that most of the farmers' houses are built high off the ground, some slight protection against floods which now and then ravage this glorious district. The prettiest spot in all the river is Hogg Island, the second and last island we saw on our trip. Unlike the Clarence, with its famous 99 islands, this stream is practically islandless. Here and there we noticed pomegranate trees, the fruit "fragrant, green, and golden," gleaming in the somewhat light green of the leaves like the apples of the Hesperides. Here and there now, too, we saw wild cherry trees, their thick, dark rich greenness casting dense shadows on the ground beneath. We saw no hills till we got quite near the village, and in that unearthly "clear shining after rain," the golden green of the grass seemed mysterious and magical, which effect was heightened, as, turning a bend in the stream, we beheld a radiant rainbow. In this shaded bend sat a patient fisherman, who held up in simple triumph a string of large mullet. Here the villagers throw pollard into the river the night before they want to fish, and again the next morning. Then they put on a dough-bait, and the fishes come to the hook as lambs to the slaughter.

We were now at the Paterson wharf, and could scarcely credit we had come nearly 20 miles; nor that we had been aboard for three hours. We were to get the Taree mail back to Maitland, and, wilst waiting for the train, we looked in at the village church and its adjoining cemetery. How beautiful and peaceful is this abode of God! The large-leaved ficus grew in thick profusion over the whole building, and serving as Nature's curtains to the church windows. Reverently we went in at the open door, and, saying no word, we drank in its unexpected beauty. The westering sun lit up the windows shaded by the climbing vines, and the restfulness and peace sank into our souls ere we turned away in silence. Outside we were met by a scene which brought Gray's lines unbidden to my lips, and instinctively I repeated the well-known words:—

> Along the cool sequestered vale of life
> They kept the noiseless tenor of their way.

A few minutes musing and we went on to the station, surely the cleanest and neatest that one could wish to see. At about 5 our train came in, and we set off for home, through green-fields and freshness. We reached our station about 5.25, feeling that surely no trip had ever been more worth while than this.

ALL-STEEL TRAINS.

REMARKABLE IMPROVEMENTS.

The all-steel train has almost arrived. A trial trip was, indeed made on the Bakerloo railway, London, last month, by a train whose coaches were practically devoid of wood. Some coaches are at present being constructed for use on this line which will not contain a square inch of wood.

The material of which they are made is not by any means the only improvement in London's newest coaches. Each car is fitted with middle doors, which in themselves present many novel features. No railway employee is stationed at these doors, for they are controlled automatically. They can be opened by the passengers when the ordinary gateman at the end of the platform has opened his gates, and not before. When the end gates are closed it is impossible to open the middle doors. All this is brought about by means of electricity. Many experiments were made before it was decided to instal these "split" doors, which open inwards like the ordinary doors of a house. Great savings in seconds will be brought about by the use of these middle doors.

The roofs have, too, been improved in order to increase the interior air space. A charming moquette velvet material has been chosen for upholstering the seats, which is a great improvement on the ordinary rattan. Rests for the arms protrude from the seat-backs, which are constructed of woven wire. Should a breakdown occur, the lights will not be extinguished, for an emergency electric lighting installation is provided, which automatically comes into use when required. Even "strap-hangers" have not been forgotten. The old-fashioned leather straps, which never appear to be particularly clean, have been superseded by glistening white enamel steel covers.

A tour of a new motor coach revealed an interesting contrivance which, if not a novelty, is at least little known by the general public. It automatically registers the length of time that a driver "coasts." "Coasting" is driving with the current shut off, and would, no doubt, be called by cyclists "free-wheeling." The best drivers are those who can coast longest, and thereby economise current without in any way reducing the speed. One of the drivers is known as the "Coasting King," and is much admired by the others.

The new coaches run extremely smoothly. Each motor coach—of which there are two on a train—costs £2300, and weighs 25½ tons.

ITCHING, BURNING RASH ON ARMS.

"Bayview," Bibbes-street, Rockdale, N.S.W.—"My arms were covered with an itching, burning rash, which kept me awake at night (being always worse at night). I went to a chemist, and he told me it was dry eczema. He gave me ointments which I used for six weeks without any good result. Just as I was getting disheartened I saw advertised the Cuticura Ointment, so I sent for some, and I am pleased to say a little of it cured me, and I have never had the slightest return of the eczema. I would advise anyone suffering from any form of skin disease to give Cuticura Ointment a trial. I am bathing my baby with Cuticura Soap, and am pleased to say she has a lovely skin." (Signed), Mrs. A. Whitlock, Nov., 1912.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. T., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

HUXLEY IN AUSTRALIA.

(BY I.E.L.)

In the midst of the preparations for the great Science Congress, which is to hold its meetings in Sydney this year, we are reminded, by a cable message this week, of the close bond that existed between one of the greatest of English scientists and this same city of ours. The cable announced the death of Mrs. T. H. Huxley, who was a resident of Sydney when she met her husband and during the long years of the engagement that followed.

It is scarcely more than two years since Mrs. Huxley contributed to the "Cornhill Magazine" some pictures of Australian life in 1843 and 1844. She arrived in Sydney with her mother and half-sister late in 1843, after a four and a half-months' voyage in the ship Ellenborough. It was not till 1847 that Huxley came to Sydney, so these reminiscences are not concerned with him, except in the closing paragraphs, where she writes: "Some two years after I had joined my sister (in her pretty house at Cook's River), there arrived in Sydney a ship, the Rattlesnake. It had been sent out by the English Government, under the command of Captain Owen Stanley, R.N., with officers specially selected for its duty, that of surveying the coasts of Australia, the Louisiade Archipelago, and New Guinea. At a private dance given to the officers of the Rattlesnake I met the assistant-surgeon, an enthusiastic follower of Natural science. After a few more meetings we became engaged, and eight years after, during five of which both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans separated us, we were married in England. The engagement was truly a long and weary one, but its crowning gift was above all price, that of forty years of happy wedded life."

Huxley was only 21 when he joined the Rattlesnake. He had passed his medical examinations, but was too young to qualify at the College of Surgeons, and, as the necessity for earning his living was immediate, he fell in with a suggestion that he should join the Navy. After some months' service he was recommended to Captain Stanley, and secured the post of assistant-surgeon. He wrote to his sister, "New Guinea, as you may be aware, is a place almost unknown, and our object is to bring back a full account of its geography, geology, and natural history. In the latter department, with which I shall have somewhat to do, we shall form one grand collection of specimens, and deposit it in the British Museum or some other public place, and, this main object being always kept in view, we are at liberty to collect and work for ourselves as we please. Depend upon it, unless some sudden attack of laziness supervenes, such an opportunity shall not slip unused out of my hands."

Of his quarters on the ship he wrote later: "I really doubt whether Jonah was much worse accommodated, as far as room goes, than myself. My total length is 5ft 11in, but the height of the lower deck of the Rattlesnake is at the outside 4ft 10in. What I am to do with the superfluous foot I cannot divine. Happily, however, there is a sort of skylight into the berth, so that I shall be able to sit with the body in it and my head out."

On their arrival at Sydney he was eager to find friendships if he could, for his reserve was anything but misanthropic. He soon made the acquaintance of William Macleay, the naturalist, and donor of the Macleay Museum at the Sydney University, and struck up a close friendship with William Fanning, one of the leading merchants of the town, a friendship which was to have momentous consequences. At his house he met his future wife, Henrietta Anne Heathorn, for whom, as his biographer says, he was to serve longer and harder than Jacob thought to serve for Rachel, but who was to be his help and stay for 40 years, the critic whose judgment he valued almost above any, and whose praise he cared most to win; his first care and his latest thought, the other self whose union with him was a supreme example of mutual sincerity and devotion. If it was not love at first sight, it was love that grew very rapidly when he came to learn the quiet strength and tenderness of her nature, as displayed in the management of her sister's household. A certain simplicity and directness, united with an unusual degree of cultivation, had attracted him from the first. She had been two years at school in Germany, and her knowledge of German and German literature brought them together on common ground. The marriage was to take place on his promotion to the rank of full surgeon, a promotion he hoped speedily to attain at the conclusion of the voyage on the strength of his scientific work. To his sister he wrote: "I tell Netty to look forward to being a Frau Professorin one of these odd days, and she has faith, as I believe she would have if I told her I was going to be Prime Minister." The expedition was nearly three years in Australian waters, and eleven months altogether at Sydney. In 1849, after a cruise, during which they had heard nothing of each other for six months, he wrote: "We have a thousand difficulties in our way, but like Danton, I take for my motto—'De l'audace et encore de l'audace et toujours de l'audace,' and look forward to a happy termination, nothing doubting."

On his return, he secured a nominal appointment as assistant-surgeon for "particular service," but, with leave of absence so that he could prepare his scientific papers for publication. Recognition from scientific men was speedily forthcoming, but he was to be subjected now to a series of disappointments that were unutterably harassing, and that, at times, almost drove him to emigrate to Australia. In March, 1851, he wrote: "The difficulties of obtaining a decent position in England in anything like a reasonable time seem to me greater than ever they were. To attempt to live by any scientific pursuit is a farce." About this time, at the age of 26, he gained his F.R.S. From 1851 to 1853 he made unsuccessful attempts to obtain a professorship. If a chair of Natural History had been established in the projected University of Sydney, he would gladly have stood for it. Sydney was a second home to him; he would have been sure of the great influence of Macleay; and in his eyes a naturalist could not desire a finer field for his labours than the waters of Port Jackson. But this was not to be, and the first chair he tried for was that of zoology at the University of Toronto. But, like his friend Tyndall, who was also a candidate for a chair at Toronto, he was rejected. Aberdeen, Cork, and King's College, London, all in turn declined his services in favour of men with more powerful personal influence. Friends now urged him to give up the unequal battle with fate, and emigrate to Australia. These were friends who had no direct appreciation of his superlative powers in science. In August, 1852, he wrote to his fiancee: "I must make up my mind to it if nothing else turns up. However, I look upon such a life as would await me in Australia with great misgiving. A life spent in a routine employment, with no excitement and no occupation for the higher powers of the intellect, with its great aspirations stifled, and all the great problems of existence set hopelessly in the background, offers to me a prospect that would be utterly intolerable but for your love."

Time after time he almost made up his mind to throw science to the wind; to emigrate, and establish a practice in Sydney; to try even squatting or storekeeping.

But her letters to him, noble and self-sacrificing, kept him to the path for which his genius marked him out. The keynote of her replies was that a man should pursue those things for which he is most fitted, let them be what they will. In the light of her decision he could write to her all that was in his heart. "The spectre of a wasted life has passed before me," he said: "a vision of that servant who hid his talent in a napkin and buried it."

The next year his long anxieties were at an end. He secured a post at £200 a year, and this was shortly followed by others, which increased his income to several times that amount. And, to crown all, the Heathorns were about to return to England. In May, 1855, the lovers were re-united, but Miss Heathorn had returned desperately ill, and again he was plunged into despair. But he was determined that they should be married soon, in spite of one doctor's grave fears for her life, and in July they were united. Again, in the words of his biographer, "there was none present but felt that abundant happiness was well earned after eight years of trial, and still more that its best guarantee was the firm loyalty and devotion that had passed through so many dangers of absence and isolation, so many temptations to renounce the ideal course under stress of circumstance, only to emerge strengthened and ennobled by the stern discipline of much sacrifice."

SOCIAL.

All contributions and accounts of weddings or other social entertainments intended for the "Social" Column in Saturday's issue should reach this office not later than Friday morning, and be fully endorsed.

Mr. and Mrs. David Mills and Miss Mills have returned to town, and are residing at Hillside, Edgecliff-road, Woollahra.

The N.S.W. Women's Hockey Association is arranging a dance, to be held at Sargent's Rooms, on May 21, in order to augment the funds for their interstate hockey week, when the association is expecting a visiting team from England, many of whom will be international players. There will also be several teams representing the other States. The hon. secretary (Miss Perry), the hon. treasurer (Miss Maybury), and the committee are working hard to make the carnival a success.

The picnic race ball which was given by Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Triggs, at Yass, was a most successful function. The hall was brilliantly lighted with electric light, and showed up the decorations to perfection, also the dresses worn by the ladies. The music was supplied by the Orpheus Musicians, from Sydney. Among the guests were Mesdames J. P. Hill, Love, D'Arcy-Johnston, Verney Johnstone, Messrs. Laurie (Germanton), McCallum, Claude Wood (Sydney), Shannon Julian (Bookham), B. Davison (Burrowa), E. Davison (Embindory), Neale Pearce (Yeliangin), Knight, Barber, Coen, Savage, Robertson (Gundaroo), Cremmelin, Campbell, Beresford (Gunning), Ockenden, and the Misses Waddell (2), Wood, Shepherd, Barber, Knight, Hall (2), Lorimer (Melbourne), Bryant, Davison (2), Riley, Campbell, Atkinson (Sydney), Barber, McShane (Goulburn), Wade (2), Garry (Binalong), Roche (2), Margrie, Clayton, Robinson (Kimo), Lawrence (Melbourne), Rose (Cooma), O'Brien, Wakon (Sydney), Campbell (Goulburn), and Bland.

Miss Lynn Mills, the lyric soprano, who sails shortly for London, sang the soprano part of the "Pagoda of Flowers" at Dr. and Mrs. Matheson's house, Drumhuie, Waverley, last Thursday evening. Miss Murdina Matheson, Dr. P. Walton Smith, and Mr. O. King completed the quartet. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Nathan-Douglas, Dr. and Mrs. Adin Parsons, Mr. A. R. Warden, Dr. Temple Smith, Miss Leverrier, Dr. Parry, Mr. Solling, Mr. J. Warden, Mr. Frank Moore, Miss B. Monk, Miss Lamb, and Mr. Lowther.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Squires, of Cooee, Petersham, entertained, on March 28, about 30 little guests to celebrate the ninth birthday of their daughter Gwendoline. The tables were decorated with pink roses, and the guessing competition helped to make plenty of amusement for the little ones.

On Tuesday afternoon the Misses Lees of Llangion, Manly, gave an afternoon tea at the A.B.C. Cafe on the eve of their departure for Europe by the Orsova.

The Pierrot ball, which is to take place at the Town Hall on Thursday evening, in aid of the Twilight House for Aged Gentlewomen, promises to be one of the successful functions of the season. Mrs. Gordon Wesche and Miss Waugh are the joint hon. secretaries; and amongst the ladies taking part in the sets are Mrs. Leonard Dangar, Mrs. Macarthur Onslow, Mrs. Macneil Simpson, Mrs. Earp, Mrs. Merewhether, Miss Enid Bayly, Miss Marjorie Street, and Mrs. Wesche. Amongst the debutantes will be Miss Massie, Miss Forster Rutledge, Miss A. Pockley, Miss M. Alison, Miss Chills, Miss Helen Faithfull, Miss Helen Blomfield, and Miss Helen Merewether.

The Queen Victoria Club reopens after the summer recess with an attractive programme. At the first gathering, which was of a business character, the president—Mrs. George Earp, assisted by the hon. secretary—Mrs. Scammell—outlined a plan which only needs the active co-operation of members to ensure success. The hostesses for the at homes, which have always formed part of the social amenities of the club, were first provided, Lady Hay undertaking the next on Friday May 1, after which Mrs. Earp suggested musical evenings for the study of the life and works of classic composers. It was also mentioned that provision will be made for the display of works by women artists. A reading union, if sufficient members inscribe their names, will be convened by Mrs. Fox. The debating society (political) reopens on Friday, April 17, at 3 o'clock. The horticultural guild will hold evening meetings, and the Girls' Liberal League will reassemble on April 21, and arrangements are pending for the formation of a girls' literary and dramatic society.

While the J.M.S. Tango Maru was passing through the Manipa Straits, on the afternoon of March 1, Captain Sekine, the popular master of that vessel, entertained about 80 guests at afternoon tea in a Tango flower garden on deck. The "garden" was most artistically arranged, bamboo lattice forming the sides of the enclosure, while an archway prettily worked in red and white, and adorned by many Chinese lanterns, formed the entrance. Inside, cherry blossoms and wistaria had a pleasing effect, as did also the background of tropical and variously-coloured shrubs. The appearance of the waiting stewardesses, dressed as Japanese tea maidens, rendered the scene even more picturesque.

On Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Buckle entertained Mr. Cecil Sherwood at their residence, Myall, Kurraba road, Cremorne, prior to his departure for Italy, where he intends to complete his musical studies. On behalf of those present, Mr. W. A. A. Maze presented Mr. Sherwood with a gold sovereign purse, as a token of esteem. About 60 guests were present, and a very interesting musical programme was contributed to by Mrs. Taylor, Miss Doris Buckle, Mrs. Kidd, and Mrs. L. McDonald. Mr. Cecil Sherwood also sang several numbers, and recitations were given by Mr. Bruce R. Hutton.

The marriage took place at All Saints' Church, Woollahra, on March 12, of Hylda, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Morphew, of Woollahra, and Harold Russel, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Burnet, of Waverley. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. Wallace Mort. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white duchess mousseline, the bodice and tunic being composed of white Brussels lace and swansdown. The court train was draped and caught up with a cluster of orange blossoms, and her Limerick lace veil was worn with a coronet of orange blossom, and she carried a shower bouquet, the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Eva Morphew (sister of the bride) acted as chief bridesmaid, and wore a shell pink crepe de Chine frock, draped with shadow lace, and touched with powder blue. The train was caught with roses, and edged with brown fur. She carried a shower bouquet, and a silver chain bag, the gifts of the bridegroom. Miss Dorothy Burnet (sister of the bridegroom) acted as train-bearer, and wore a frock of shell pink silk, veiled in ninon, and trimmed with shadow lace. Mr. A. H. Burnet (uncle of the bridegroom) acted as best man. After the ceremony, the guests were entertained at Sargent's Rooms, Market-street, and later Mr. and Mrs. Burnet left for Manly, prior to their departure to Hobart. The bride travelled in a coat and skirt of cream serge, showing black stripes, and a black and white velvet hat, with a white osprey.

A wedding was celebrated at St. John's Church, Glebe Point, on February 21, when Hetty Wake, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wake, of Glebe Point, was married to Sydney Hockey, second son of Mrs. F. Hockey, of Enmore. The service, which was choral, was conducted by the Rev. Canon Cranswick. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a draped gown of ivory satin charmeuse, trimmed with shadow lace, seed pearls, and posies of orange blossom. The court train, arranged from the shoulders, was trimmed with satin roses, pearls, and orange blossom. She wore a tulle veil over a wreath of orange blossom, and carried a white bouquet, which, with a gold bangle, was the gift of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were Miss Amy Hockey (sister of the bridegroom) and Miss Gladys McLean (cousin of bridegroom). They wore frocks of white Lousienne silk, trimmed with pale pink bebe roses, with pink ninon belts. They wore silk tulle caps, touched with pale pink, and carried pale pink bouquets, which, with their gold ring and gold brooch respectively, were the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. W. Hockey acted as best man, and Mr. Leslie Wake was groomsman. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Wake held a reception at the Record Reign Hall, Glebe Point, where about 70 guests were entertained. The hostess received her guests in a gown of amethyst silk, finished with Oriental embroideries, and a plumed hat. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Hockey left by motor for the Mountains, the bride travelling in a porcelain blue coat and skirt, and a hat finished with an ostrich plume, and relieved with blue velvet.

St. Clement's Church of England, Yass, was the scene of a wedding on Thursday evening, the Rev. G. E. Menlove officiating, when C. A. Byrne was married to Dorothy Jack, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Browning (Mayor and Mayoress of Yass). Mr. M'Williams, of Wagga, was best man. The bride's dress was of white crepe-de-Chine, trimmed with lace and orange blossoms, and she wore a wreath and veil, and carried a shower bouquet, which, with a diamond ring, was the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Dobney (cousin of the bride) wore blue crepe-de-Chine and a mob cap of net, and carried a bouquet of red carnations. Miss Greta Scarr (cousin of the bride) and Miss Ursula Cusack were the train-bearers, and wore pink satin frocks and Dutch caps of lace, and carried bouquets of pink roses. The bridegroom's presents to them were amethyst and turquoise pendants and bouquets. The bride's travelling frock was of paillette cloth, with a toque of black velvet showing a Bulgarian crown. The bride's mother wore a dress of Tangerine broche trimmed with brown fur, and a black hat arranged with a white lancer feather. A reception was held at the Commercial Hotel, after which the bride and bridegroom motored to the station to get the mail train for Sydney in order to catch a steamer for Melbourne.

A wedding was celebrated by the Rev. G. A. Chambers at Holy Trinity Church, Dulwich Hill, on the evening of March 17, when Beatrice Elizabeth, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Reay, Ardesia, Petersham, was married to Norman Charles, youngest son of Mrs. M. Seale, of Sydney. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin charmeuse, draped with white ninon, and finished with crushed pearls, the train being caught up by a large pearl butterfly. The plain tulle veil was worn over a wreath of orange blossom, and she carried a bouquet, the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Anabel Reay attended her sister as bridesmaid, and wore a graceful frock of pale pink satin Messaline, draped with blonde shadow lace, and trimmed with pale pink fur, the draped bodice being caught between the shoulders by a large pink rose. She wore a lace cap swathed with pink satin ribbon. Her bouquet was of pink roses, which, with a diamond and pearl ring, was the gift of the bridegroom. Mr. Enoch Fowler was best man. After the ceremony the guests were entertained at Ardesia, where the reception rooms were decorated with pink and white roses and ferns. The bride's mother wore a gown of grey chiffon poplin, trimmed with platinum lace and floral ninon, and a black panne velvet hat, ornamented with an ostrich feather mount. The bride followed an old English custom by going away in her wedding gown, over which was worn an old gold satin cloak.

A marriage was celebrated by the Rev. Father Hogan at St. Gregory's R.C. Church, Queanbeyan, on February 18, when Pauline, eldest daughter of Mrs. Jos. Walsh, was married to Arthur Sullivan, of Ashfield, Sydney. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. Fred. Sullivan, and wore a gown of ivory crepe de Chine, with an embroidered tulle vest, the corsage and tunic being of Limerick lace. The veil, which was also Limerick lace, fell to the end of her train, and she carried a bouquet of roses and carnations, which, with a diamond cluster ring, was the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Nancye Walsh, sister of the bride, who was in attendance as bridesmaid, was dressed in ciel blue radium crepe, draped with shadow lace, and showing a small vest of flesh pink tulle. Her hat was black velvet, with a pink silk rose petal brim, and black velvet streamers. She also wore blue cameo and pearl earrings, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and carnations, the gifts of the bridegroom. The little Misses Kathleen and Moyra Gilmartin acted as train-bearers. They were dressed alike in white muslin frocks, net mob caps trimmed with pink daisies and blue satin ribbons. They carried baskets of white carnations and wore pearl brooches, the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. J. Pooley, of Sydney, acted as best man. After the ceremony the bridal party motored to Springbank, Canberra, the residence of the bride's uncle, where a reception was held by the bride's mother. After the wedding tea the bridal couple motored from Springbank to Sydney, en route to Melbourne. The bride travelled in a draped frock of tete-de-neige crepe meteor, with bayadere sash in art tones. Her hat was of grey silk moire, with large grey plumes.

At St. Jude's Church, Randwick, on the 24th ultimo, Jo, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Connah, of Llanfoyst, Randwick, was married to assistant-paymaster Eric Kingsford Smith, R.N.A., H.M.A.S. Sydney, fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. Kingsford Smith, of Kintore, Neutral Bay. The bride wore a gown of ivory duchesse satin trimmed with silver embroidery, outlined with pearls, and a Honiton lace veil, and carried a shower bouquet, which, together with a diamond ring, was the gift of the bridegroom. She was attended by two bridesmaids, her sisters Miss Leah Connah, and Miss Elsie Kingsford Smith, who wore frocks of oyster-tinted silk crepe, arranged with embroidery veiled in chiffon, white moire hats, finished with velvet streamers and lilies of the valley, and carried red bouquets, which, with a gold armlet and aquamarine pendant respectively, were the gifts of the bridegroom. The best man was Captain T. Swallow, and the groomsman Mr. L. Kingsford Smith. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Connah held a reception at Llanfoyst, the grounds being decorated with flags, and the wedding breakfast was served in a marquee on the lawn. The bride's mother wore a gown of black satin charmeuse and a floral toque, and carried a posy of pink roses and carnations.

NUMEROUS ATTRACTIONS.

THE LIVING CHESS DISPLAY.

The big Shakespeare Festival, which the Governor is to open in the Town Hall, on Wednesday, the 22nd instant, will be an extra Easter attraction for the country people now in the city. The festival will extend over four days.

Nothing quite so unique has ever been attempted before in Sydney. Each of the stalls will represent a scene from one of the plays. The stalls have been designed by Mr. Leslie Board, the scenic artist, in conjunction with Mr. Sinnott as architect, and the effect will be heightened by the exhibition of famous Shakespearian pictures. The Shakespeare Society has imported many things from Stratford-on-Avon for its stall, and is also arranging a miniature "Elizabethan Museum," the trustees of the Public Library and of the National Art Gallery, together with a number of private citizens, co-operating in this matter. The women writers' stall will also have some unique features.

Most attractive of all, perhaps, will be the old English pageants and dances, which Madame Beck has arranged, and especially the living chess display, to take part in which, Mr. W. S. Viner, chess champion of Australia, has come down from the Bellinger River. His opponent will be a former champion, Mr. J. L. Jacobsen, who retired unbeaten some years ago. The game has been arranged by Mr. Viner and Mr. Jacobsen, from a brilliant contest between two celebrated Russian masters. The period selected is that of the Wars of the Roses, and all the living pieces will be in character. The Kings will be Henry VI and Edward IV., and Mr. Viner will represent Warwick, the Kingmaker, who moved these kings on and off the throne. The kings and queens will be gorgeously costumed. Pages will bear canopies of red and white roses over them and they will be attended by gentlemen-in-waiting, and maids of honour. The rooks will be also splendidly attired, and will each have ladies-in-waiting. The knights will be in armour, with swords and shields; and the bishops will have their acolytes. The pawns will be picturesque soldiers. Mr. Viner and Mr. Jacobsen will play the game at an ordinary board, and as each move is made it will be announced by a herald, when the living piece will move into the selected square, the floor of the Town Hall being marked out to represent a huge chess board. All the moves will be made to music, supplied by the State Military Band, under Captain Bentley. This band will also provide the music for the old English dances.

Thursday, April 23 (Shakespeare's birthday), is to be observed as "Schools' Day," the bulk of the programme being provided by children from both private and public schools. The main attractionso will be the maypole displays in the afternoon, and the great schools' concert and dramatic entertainment in the evening. A thousand children, under the baton of Professor Tearne, will take part in this, and the accompaniment to the Shakespearian songs, etc., wil be played on the Town Hall organ.

Friday will be "Theatrical Day." The Actors' Associaton, of which Mr. G. S. Titheradge is the president, will arrange the programme for that day, and many of the actors and actresses now in Sydney will take part.

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY SIR HENRY LUCY.)

The Home Rule Bill—The Premier's "Suggestions"—Etiquette in the Commons—Sir John Tenniel.

WESTMINSTER, March 6.

On Tuesday night the progress of the Home Rule Bill took a dramatic turn in the House of Commons. A private member on the Opposition benches had secured at the ballot-box fresh opportunity for discussing the Ulster question. Debate would, as was the case a week earlier, have resolved itself into monotonous demand for dissolution and persistent inquiry as to particulars of the Premier's promised "suggestions." On the previous night there had been talk across the table between Mr. Asquith and Mr. Bonar Law as to the possibility of an arrangement whereby, progress of supplementary estimates being accelerated, the great secret might be disclosed at an earlier date than promised. On Tuesday Mr. Asquith, in his brief, business-like fashion, announced that such arrangement had been concluded, and that in accordance with it he would next Monday expound his plan.

This determination was regarded with pleasure on both sides. It meant relief from daily practice of ploughing the sands carried on up to the end of the financial year, an exercise at once inutile, wearying, and irritating. On Wednesday the bill, in precisely the form in which it has twice passed the House of Commons, was brought in and read a first time. On Monday the Prime Minister will move the second reading, offering suggestions for its amendment. Under the Parliament Act the House of Commons cannot in committee introduce amendments. It is here where, as was pointed out in this column a fortnight ago, the Lords come in with autocratic power.

Profound curiosity prevails as to the details of Mr. Asquith's plan. Up to the present time the secret has been kept with remarkable success. It is a fact that up to the beginning of this week it was not shared even by members of the Cabinet outside the circle of the small committee which has had the matter in charge since the first introduction of the bill. It is proverbially dangerous to prophesy "unless you know." Danger is increased when, as in the present case, three days hence, full disclosure will be cabled to you. For comparison with the accomplished event, I will make bold to state my conviction that the main principle of the scheme will be found in what, in another connection, is known in politics as local option. In a speech on the opening night of the session the Premier discomfited the majority of his followers by intimating readiness at least to consider the expedient of the exclusion of Ulster from the Home Rule Bill. Designedly or not, this hint had the useful effect of convincing him that the proposal would never do. A variation not fully conveyed by Sir Horace Plunkett but suggested by his proposal, publicly approved by the Premier, would be, whilst including all Ulster in the bill, to give the several counties constituting the province the option of withdrawing from the Union of Hearts if after experience extending over a period say of five years, they find it unendurable. I fancy that with provisions relating to the Customs and Post-office and the proportional representation of the Ulster minority, Mr. Asquith's scheme will be found based on these propositions.

Debate upon the case of the member who did not know whether he had his hat on his head or on his knees when the King's Reply to the Address was read in the House of Commons led to one of those debates on Parliamentary etiquette in which it delights in variation of ordinary business. When messages from the Sovereign are delivered by one of the household officers, members do not know whether it is proper to remove the hat or keep it on. Mr. Speaker Lowther's ruling, based upon Mr. Speaker Brand's delivered more than 30 years ago, happily settles the difficulty. Heads need be bared only when the Royal message is read from the Chair. There is another procedure of ordinary occurrence liable in at least equal measure to lead to misapprehension. Amongst the rules for preserving order in debate, a copy of which Mr. Ronald M'Neill, by way of object-lesson, last session flung at the head of the First Lord of the Admiralty, is one direction that no member shall pass between the Chair and an honourable gentleman addressing it. A breach of this rule is always marked by angry shouts of "Order!" It is little known that it does not apply to other than the two front benches below the gangway. The intention is to prevent the rudeness of intercepting the view between the Speaker in the Chair and the gentleman on his legs. Benches behind the two front ones being raised above the level of the floor, a member passing to or from his place crossing the line of communication between them and the Chair is understood not to offend.

I remember a striking case illustrating the puzzlement of this rule. One night, the Unionists being the Opposition, Mr. Akers-Douglas, their Chief Whip, rising from the front bench, strolled towards the door. On the way he passed between the Chair and Mr. John Dillon, on his legs addressing the Speaker from the corner of the third bench below the gangway. Immediately there was a roar of cries of "Order! Order!" Mr. Akers-Douglas, halting, turned round and surveyed the scene, deliberately strolled back, reseated himself on the front bench and, rising again, went out as before. Assuming that the Chief Whip knew what he was about purists of procedure maintained judicious silence. They were well-advised. Mr. Dillon, being raised three steps above the level of the floor, Mr. Akers-Douglas, in passing between him and the Chair, had not interrupted the line of view.

Most of Tenniel's old co'lleagues at the Punch table were present in the chapel attached to the mortuary of the crematorium at Golders Green when his coffin, flower-laden, was carried in. Among the wreaths was one sent from Bouverie-street. It was the third time in the space of a few years I had been present at the last service paid to an old comrade. The first was Sir William Agnew, head of the proprietary firm; the second Linley Sambourne, now dear old Tenniel. It is a remarkable coincidence, not noted as far as I have seen the newspaper tributes to the memory of the great cartoonist, that three of Punch's most popular artists, Phil May, Linley Sambourne, and John Tenniel, died on a Wednesday, Mr. Punch's weekly dinner-day. Of the passing away of the first two news came, even whilst the dinner was going forward. Tenniel died whilst the table he loved so well, at which he regularly sat on Wednesday nights for 50 years was still spread. But his going away was so characteristically quiet and peaceful that its accomplishment was not noted for some hours after the journey had been done. "They thought him sleeping when he died."

It has been an abiding pleasure to me, since I know it gave exceptional pleasure to him, that I chanced to be instrumental in obtaining for him the titular honour, gazetting of which was received with public acclaim. It was such an obvious thing that it needed only pointing out to have it done. Yet I am bound to say the first effort was unsuccessful. In July, 1891, I wrote a private letter to the Chief Whip of Lord Salisbury's Government, then in power, suggesting that the approaching jubilee of "Punch" would be an appropriate occasion for the Crown to pay a compliment to the veteran artist. On July 27 Mr. Akers-Douglas wrote from Downing-street:—"I have delayed any answer to yours of the 21st, hoping I might be able to see my chief on the subject. I have not been able to do so as yet, and, therefore, all I can say is that it would be a great pleasure to me to urge at the first opportunity the claims of Mr. John Tenniel." Whether the matter was brought under the notice of Lord Salisbury or not I do not know. Certainly he missed the opportunity of doing a popular and gracious thing. Within twelve months a general election brought Mr. Gladstone into office. I sent Sir William Harcourt a copy of my letter to the Conservative Whip, asking him to bring the matter personally under the notice of the new Premier. He replied in a letter, expressing warm approval of the suggestion, and the knighthood was speedily bestowed.

THE CULT OF THE BEAUTIFUL.

LONDON'S LITTLE WAYS.

(BY ARTHUR MASON.)

LONDON, March 6.

An annual general meeting and a Blue Book—these are not, on the face of them, inspiring things. Dull days have, in truth, been spent, and will be spent, in their pursuit. They have their places in human affairs, but more often than not it is a poor eminence among the drab formalities of life. Yet, and for all that, I take heart of grace this week in the company of an annual general meeting and a Blue Book—I, whose habit it is to find no consolation in annual general meetings, and to believe Blue Books properly predestined to the moth and the rust.

There is reason for it, of course. This was no ordinary annual meeting, and this is no common Blue Book. The meeting was that of the London Society. The Blue Book is the report of the Inspector of Ancient Monuments for the year ended March, 1913. The London Society deserves the notice of all who, being citizens of Sydney, dream of making Sydney beautiful. There will be many such, but for the most part they will be scattered and ineffective. So, once, were the members of the London Society. They were merely persons who wrote letters to the press—that last resort of the unappreciated idealist—or who made speeches to entirely friendly groups of people with minds already made up. But they got together. They organised themselves into strength. Once a number of unnoticed men interested in civic esthetics, they are now a body of authority, urgent in the things that go to order a city's development in grace and comeliness.

The London Society, in other words, consists of a number of citizens—some of them, it is true, eminent, and even famous—who are banded together for the sake of London. Some day it will be found necessary by those who wish to see Sydney grow not merely in bulk, but also in beauty, similarly to band themselves together, and for similar aims. The London Society's aims were stated by the Lord Mayor of London at this very annual meeting. His words deserve quotation. "The object of the society is," he said, "to draw together all lovers of London, whether their interest lies in preserving its old charms or in influencing new development, and to build up a strong public opinion by means of which Londoners can bring their influence to bear upon matters of artistic, antiquarian, and practical interest." Change the word London, make it Sydney, and you would have a workable inspiration for an Australian society dedicated to the cause of your own city.

As to the year's work of the London Society, the annual report has much in it that wholly justifies the existence of this unofficial but powerful body of citizens. It is concerned with purely London developments, of course. Perhaps it will sound as nothing to you if I say that its report is concerned with the Regent-street Quadrant, the Admiralty Arch, and the entrance, by means of the Admiralty's Arch, to the Mall, in St. James's Park. But in London those are great instances of London's growth in beauty, and fit subjects for the care of a London Society. Other matters were touched on, matters of main roads and town planning—not without interest, one likes to believe, for Sydney. And for evidence of the forward spirit in city beautification, there was Sir Melvill Beachcroft's speech, and its reference to Trafalgar-square. "I cannot pass Trafalgar-square," he said, "that dreary waste of drab asphalt, without wondering whether Paris, or any other capital in the world would long allow this magnificent centre—the hub of the capital of the Empire, if not of the world—to remain in such a grossly uninteresting condition." There, plain to see, and not difficult to copy, are the aims of the London Society—on the one hand a share in and advice upon schemes of development already in operation; on the other hand authoritative rebuke in respect of things undone that need doing.

In like manner, the Inspector of Ancient Monuments issues his Blue Book of a year's work. Here is something, indeed, less closely concerned with you than the growth of a city. But not wholly lacking touch with you. You, also, have things worth preserving in their first dignity, not, perhaps, things of this kind, but things no less liable to suffer under neglect. The Inspector of Ancient Monuments here in Britain has many such. He tells us of them in his Blue Book. He works, as we know here, under Acts of Parliament, which allow owners or guardians to place their treasures in the care of a Government Department. He works, also, by virtue of an amending Act recently passed and already so effectively operative that it forbade interference the other day with a fine eighteenth century house in Soho, threatened with demolition. And he so works that his activities covered, in the year under review, a camp in Anglesey, a church in Harris, a Roman road in Yorkshire, and a castle in Kent.

There are 140 monuments at present in his care, and in the care of his experts. They extend from the Tower of London, at London's centre, to the Hebrides. The work upon them will be demanded here by a fracture in a wall, there by the need of restoration of a bridge, elsewhere by the partial destruction by fire of an oaken roof. In every case it is a survival of past times that is in question, and one regarded as worthy to be preserved.

A romantic office, this of an inspector of ancient monuments. A kindly Act of Parliament this which sets a Government Department upon voyages of discovery among things meet to be saved from decay. A heartening thought that in the hurly-burly of life hereabout, a London Society and a Department of Ancient Monuments can proceed calmly upon their quest of mere beauty. Ulster and the Covenanters disturb them not. The deported nine come and go about them like shadows. They know Home Rule Bills and Parliament Acts—aye, even Prime Ministers, and Chancellors of the Exchequer, to be, all of them, flickering candles that do but light a way to dusty death. They are not deceived. They are set upon surer, more abiding things. They hold an annual general meeting for rehearsal of their watch upon the spread of London. They issue a Blue Book detailing their care of Ancient Monuments.

THE ENGINEER IN INDIA.

"Fighting Famine in India" is the title of an interesting article in the "Millgate Monthly." It is from the pen of H. J. Shepstone, and it describes what the engineer has accomplished in connection with India's great scourge, and how he has reclaimed millions of acres of land by the erection of immense irrigation works. A vast irrigation scheme is now in progress in the Punjab, about 40 miles south of Lahore, employing 8000 natives of mixed nationalities, superintended by only four Europeans. When completed it will irrigate about two million acres, and no doubt attract a large population to what is at present an uncultivated waste. The scheme involves the construction of three canals, one of which will be 200ft wide, having a volume of water nearly 10 times as great as that of the Thames at Windsor.

FAT FOLKS IN A FLAT.

Can you imagine a better prescription for domestic discord than two fat persons in a tight-fitting flat, or a small-roomed cottage? Continually getting wedged in the narrow halls and doorways is the best receipt in the world for trouble. As the walls and passages refuse to expand with the ever-increasing fat, the only remedy is "Formettes," which reduce fatness. One of these pleasant herbal little tablets taken before each meal will quickly restore your figure to youthful, graceful, slender lines, without dieting or exercising, and without producing a single wrinkle or the least suggestiveness of flabbiness of the skin. Formettes will remove fat from neck, chin, waist, hips, ankles, or wherever else it shows worst. A Formette or two may be carried in the purse, and taken when out visiting without anybody being the wiser, and you can then enjoy a hearty meal, safe in the knowledge that the food you eat will form good healthy blood, sinew, and tissue, instead of turning into the useless, cumbersome fat that has so long troubled you. Formettes will not only restore your beauty of form, but renew your health, by permanently curing all heart troubles, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and every other corpulency complaints fat folks are the unhappy victims of. Formettes are sold at 5/3 (a fortnight's supply), by all Chemists and Drapers in the Commonwealth. Agents, Anthony Hordern and Sons, Washington, Soul, Pattinson, and Co., chemists. Wholesale: Elliott Bros., or direct from S. H. Henshall, chemists, 148 Clarendon-street, South Melbourne.—Advt.

SARONG AND SPICE.

ANOTHER GERMAN TOWN.

Four thousand labourers and eighty whites are employed by the company, which owns numbers of large and splendidly-managed copra plantations all over German New Guinea. A great deal of the land about Friedrich Wilhelmshafen belongs to it. As the ship glides into port, through a harbour that is not a little like some tropical Sydney (though without the many houses), one sees, every now and then, a bright, well-built bungalow, red roofed and white, showing up among the glittering palms. It is a "company" house, and the palms are "company" palms; and the big store that shows out as we near the wharf is a company store; and the land behind the town for miles is company land, again.

I walked out a mile or two through the immense population that lies all round Friedrich Wilhelmshafen. There were houses at first, the offices and stores of the town, bright and fresh, painty and garden-y and white-paling-y, like stationmasters' houses on English country railways. Here and there a sulky or a buggy drove rapidly through towards the steamer, carrying a neat, blond German in a large white suit. Then there were stray dwellings, not so smart, standing alone; then palms, and the brown "dirt road," and palms again all the way. I went on till I was tired, and then sat down to rest in a hush of hot green shadow. There was not a sound anywhere but the gentle patter of the palms, and the far-off breathing of the sea; not a living thing about but the dragon-flies. . . . Suddenly, without any warning, a crab, very small (it was no larger than a tea-biscuit), very red, very black-eyed, and exceedingly bold, darted out of the long grass on the other side of the way, and charged at me across the road with the fierceness of an Andalusian bull. I never saw a thing so small and so wicked. Crabs, for the most part, are as timorous as spiders, but this creature had no timidity in its composition. It attacked with a deadly earnestness that was incomparably absurd. Clearly it thirsted for my blood, harmless as I was. And I had done nothing to it; did not want to do anything to it; would not have had it as a gift. I only wanted to sit in the shade and think about nothing in particular—certainly not about crabs.

I got out of its way; it put down its head and charged again. I could almost hear it gritting its teeth as it went straight for my stockings. I stuck my umbrella in its road, and it seized the ferrule and worried it like a dog. I threw it away, and it drew a hard breath, clinched its claws, and came at me again like a motor car, its black eyes waving on their stalks, and its whiskers vibrating with rage. This thing, like the four cows that fell down the American miner's chimney, was now becoming monotonous; so I let the crab get a good grip of my umbrella again, and then slung it many yards away into the long grass. A faint clicking, as I walked away, suggested that it was talking dumb swears to itself on its claws. I am not yet clear to whom the honours of war should fairly have been given, for it would have certainly charged again as soon as it got out.

TAXING THE WILD PAPUAN.

Without further adventure, I came back again to the town. It might not have been difficult to find adventures, however, had I wanted them. Everyone told me that the country was not safe, even a very few miles back, and that cannibalism was in full swing within half a day's journey from this the eldest settlement in German New Guinea. I took the remarks with a grain of salt, until we got away from Friedrich Wilhelmshafen, and it then became plain that there was something in what I had been told, for ten of our steerage passengers were wild natives from the hills directly behind the town, who had never seen white men before. They were being taken down to Rabaul to work for the Government. German New Guinea has a taxation system; every native is theoretically supposed to pay 10s a year, or do two months' Government work. Of course it has not been possible to apply the system closely so far, but as Government influence extends the tax is being enforced.

Our wild passengers, black, woolly-headed creatures, looking shy and fierce at the same time, and clad in new raiment of red cotton cloth that obviously embarrassed them, were interesting to watch on the journey. They had taken the transfer to the ship with philosophy, merely supposing it to be an extra large house; but when the whistle sounded, and the steamer began to move away from the wharf, their faces were a study in mingled pride and terror. It was plain they thought this journey a very fine thing in itself, and were ready to stand a good deal, but this was really—really.

They clung to each other on deck, watching the jetty glide away, and literally shaking with fright though all the time they kept up a painful smile that seemed to say they were brave and knowing fellows, and didn't mind it a bit. The servants of the various white passengers—educated boys, with clean singlets, and ideas about pfennigs and marks, and geographical experiences that went as far as the Solomons—came up and patronised them gloriously. Our wild men did not seem as grateful as they might have been; they retired to their steerage quarters, and squatted on the deck, holding each other's hands and taking what comfort they could get from their own society. I think they realised dimly that they were in for something much bigger than they had thought.

It was astonishing to see how they settled down in a day or two. The native sergeant in charge of them made a good deal of fuss at first, shepherding them about like a zealous collie with a small wild flock; but they soon began to be independent of him, and wandered fearlessly about the ship, looking at everything. More than once I caught the wild, black countenance of one of the man-eaters at the port of my deck cabin, gazing with passionate interest at my mirror, and obviously counting the chances of getting away with a bath-towel or so. They were very amiable in their demeanour, and the frequency and fatness of their meals seemed to inspire them with a wondering delight. It was their extreme pleasure, when we stopped at any one of the sleepy little copra ports, to go ashore in charge of the sergeant, looking ridiculously like a Cook's conducted tour, and tall about seeing the marvellous sights of the place—one store, two schooners, a hundred yards of tram-line—with an air that really made one wonder where their guide-books and tourist-glasses had got to. One could imagine them, six months later, back in their native fastnesses gnawing a tibia or picking an ulna, while they bored all the other cannibals to tears with accounts of the wonderful view you could see from the roof of the company's copra shed at Finschhafen, and the majestic architecture of the Manila's first-class dining saloon.

"You ought to go and see it for yourself, old man," they would say patronisingly. "Take a month off, and go down as far as Friedrichshafen, anyhow. You'll come back to the autumn head-hunting all the better for it. Nothing like travel to improve a man's general outlook. And really the sight of these majestic tramlines and stores, so full of beauty and calico and tinned meat, isn't a thing one can describe. One must see it. Makes you come back to your food with a relish, too. I don't seem to have had as tender a bit since I left. Who was he?"

After Friedrich Wilhelmshafen came Stephansort—harbour and jetty and cocoanut palms, and cocoanut palms, and cocoanut palms again. . . . Houses? Two—there might have been three. People? A couple of missionaries, a man who had something to do with copra; natives loading and unloading. Finschhafen followed after another day's run; harbour again, safe and sheltered and deep (they are well off for harbours along the German New Guinea coast), palms again, jetty again, two houses again (or was it three?) Here I am told that Friedrich Wilhelmshafen was not, after all, the first place selected in German New Guinea for a settlement. Finschhafen was, in 1885, but they did not occupy it long, as it was found to be extremely unhealthy. The few people who live there now find it particularly unhealthy still. Indeed, this is the history of most settlements in New Guinea. At the beginning, nearly all were reported to be death traps, white men's graves, places where only the bravest, or most desperate, would attempt to settle. Most of them seem to have earned their reputation fairly enough, in the ignorant times when 40-grain doses of quinine were given for malarial fever, and precautions were confined to "avoiding the night air." Now-a-days, with later knowledge of fever treatment, better food supplies, and (somewhat) less drinking, the death-traps have lost most of their terrors.

Finschhafen, Friedrich Wilhelmshafen, Herbertshohe, Rabaul—with all, German New Guinea has had four tries at finding a suitable site for a capital, and the last and best, only five years old, has certain serious drawbacks peculiar to itself, of which I shall speak later on. They certainly have had luck with their capitals in the Kaiser's Pacific colony.

A WICKED COAST.

The run from the little spot of civilisation in Stephansort, down to the little spot of civilisation at Finschhafen, was wonderful and beautiful, and most typical of New Guinea in its unbroken state. In truth, for all our own Port Moresbys and Samarais, and our excursions into the interior at many points—for all the long line of German "hafens," and the Governmental smartness of Rabaul—for all the stations on the coast of Holland's western half—New Guinea remains a savage, an unknown, an unbroken country. You realise it steaming down to Finschhafen. All day long the ship runs past unknown and apparently uninhabited country, past dark and inhospitable shores, where cataracts of forest rush down to meet white plunging seas; past iron headlands belted with flying cloud; past mangrove swamps and sago marshes, and groves of solitary nipa, standing stark and alone in the water—never a village or a canoe, or so much as a solitary fishing hut on the shore. It thundered and lightened fiercely all that afternoon, and in the stabbing flashes one could see the great mountain ranges of the interior rising one behind the other, with almost unnatural clearness. Five steps there were to that gigantic staircase, the nearer steps black-purple and black-green in colour, the further ones scaling up in paler and paler greys, each mighty terrace ruled with its own white belting of cloud, to the dimly-seen ten thousand foot summits at the top of all. I have seen many wonderful views in many parts of the world, but never anything more wonderful or terrible than that wild New Guinea coastline, with its up-leaping ranges and its girdling clouds, four belts one above another, and the iron-faced cliffs, and the black, cruel forests, rushing down to a thunder-driven sea. The wind that blew upon us from those unknown peaks was strangely cold; one shrank away from it, after the weeks of torrid heat, even though it came laden with the intoxicating scent of the Papuan bush. . . . A wicked coast; a coast that threatened you almost audibly, as you ran beside it through the lightning and the driven waves. Death sat upon those misty mountain tops; death lurked in the dark green valleys. If you ran close to the land, death grinned at you with the white teeth of unknown and uncharted reefs, on which your vessel might at any moment strike. If you landed, and worked your way towards the climbing ranges, fever waited for you in the mangrove swamps; starvation threatened you at every step you took; dark, sullen savages, like the dark, sullen land they lived in, dogged you through the forests and along the river beds, waiting for the moment to throw the deadly spear. . . . It was New Guinea; New Guinea in her worst and (one must allow) her most characteristic aspect. For all that three great nations have done during 40 years towards her taming, she is essentially untamed as yet.

HIS WORSHIP AND A CANNIBAL.

The fat and cheerful captain told stories appropriate to the place, as we went along. You cannot settle down comfortably to reading or working or writing letters in the nerve-wrecking conditions of a tropical thunderstorm, so story-telling came in pleasantly to fill the gap. All the captain's stories were funny, even when they were not funny—a classification which is less impossible than it sounds. One was about the magistrate in charge of a big island lying to eastward of our course. This magistrate, it seems, was a man of strong character and great determination; among the things he was specially determined about being his resolution to take no nonsense from any native. A certain cannibal chief had been making havoc in the mountains, and the magistrate went forth and captured him, and put him into gaol.

"But those gaol, they aren't much good when he was magistrate," explained the captain, "and the cannibal has got away. So when he has arrived at his own village, he has sent a message back to the magistrate, and said, 'Come you to my village; I shall willingly see you, and the stones are hot for cook.' That was, he wished to say he would roast the magistrate, him to eat."

The captain paused a minute to reach out for his glass of beer, and to savour the joke.

"So the magistrate said," he went on with twinkling eyes, "that a soldier should get him a tin of butter from the store, and the butter to the messenger give. And he should say to the cannibal chief, 'Yes, I the magistrate will come and see you very soon. And since I am very lean, and will be very dry for eat, I send you a tin of butter with your messenger.'"

"And did he go?" I asked.

"Oh, yes," said the captain, "he went, and he caught the cannibal further, and he locked him up more strongly, and put him to irons. And sometime when the cannibal had to dig upon the roads, he would come to him, him to ask, 'Do you want any butter?'"

"And where is he now?"

"The cannibal? He is dead."

"And the magistrate?"

"He is also dead."

I need not have asked. That is the end of three out of every four New Guinea stories.

BEAUTY AND DISCIPLINE.

We had crept a long, long way down the coast by this time (it was nearly three weeks since we had left Macassar), and now we were come to the end of German territory, or near it. Morobe, the station at which we anchored next day, is only 40 miles from British New Guinea.

Morobe, I was told, was not a capital of German New Guinea, never had been, and never expected to be. This was something of a novelty, and induced me to look at it with special interest.

It was even less of a town than the various "hafens" we had passed. It had not even a store or a copra plantation. There was only the Government officer's residence, set on the peak of a high hill, the barracks of the native police, or "soldiers," as they are called, a distant mission station, and the bay.

But, in point of scenery, it overmatched anything we had yet come to. One grows tired of insisting on the wonderful scenery of New Guinea; tired sometimes of even looking at it. When a country is so variously and continually picturesque the esthetic sense suffers from overwork. One becomes like a boy in a confectioner's shop, more or less surfeited with sweets. Still, Morobe, with its sheltered bay, and its splendid mass of overhanging mountains, is beautiful enough to excite the admiration of a recruiting agent. It had been raining just before we came in, and the peaks were covered with such lights and shadows of emerald green and sapphire blue that they were like the breasts and backs of a crowd of gigantic peacocks. The sea was one flat turquoise, except where the shapes and colours of the hills were tremblingly reproduced. There were flying wreaths of vapour on the mountain sides, and the wet, new sunlight made them look like mother-o'-pearl. There was more than this—much more—but ink and paper cannot reproduce it.

One thought of the artists of Australia, laboriously painting the eternal Campagna peasant in Rome, and bringing her back for a reluctant Sydney to buy—dabbling away industriously at gum trees with blue shadows on the bark, when they were moved to be local and patriotic—and one wondered, was there not one painter on the southern continent possessed of the real colour sense, and ready to go blind drunk on colour that would intoxicate a seventeenth century Quaker up here in jewel-hearted Papua?

Instead of which I have seen drawing and painting taught in New Guinea—with copies of English hedges and cows!

German settlement is seen in its most typical development about such places as Morobe. There is no station in British New Guinea that is half so beautifully neat. The point and the hill have been cleared, weeded, and tidied up like a garden. The barracks would do credit to any German town. The little brown houses in which the married soldiers live have not one leaf in the thatch astray. There are gutters for drainage, tidy walks and roads. The magistrate's residence is as good as the Lieutenant-Governor's house at Port Moresby. The police have not a button crooked, not a spot on their red-bordered khaki uniforms; and every man had painted his ears scarlet to match the trimmings of his clothes, than which, surely, the spirit of military uniformity could no farther go. At Morobe, at Friedrich Wilhelmshafen, at a dozen other places on the coast of wild, wicked New Guinea, Germany, with her tidiness, her system, her soldierly discipline and precision, sits flat and hard down upon the Papuan, and crushes him into civilisation—all the half of one per cent., that is to say, that does not bolt into the mountains, and stop there, beyond call of the double-headed eagle.

And behind, what?

Just plain New Guinea, without barracks, walks, and drains; New Guinea where they fight with stone axes, and eat one another, roasted or boiled, according to tribal custom.

REAL ESTATE.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The real estate market has been exceedingly quiet this week. One could hardly expect anything else at an Easter season, when everybody is in holiday mood. The indoor sales were few, and the volume of business transacted was hardly up to the usual standard. In fact, the only indoor sale of note this week was held on Wednesday in the rooms of Messrs. Raine and Horne, when Mr. Raine submitted an excellent collection of city and suburban properties. Loloma, a residence in Bayswater-road, Darlinghurst, was sold for £3000, subject to approval. A double-fronted brick cottage in Rozelle was also sold subject to approval, the price being £552. A block of land at Narrabeen brought £3 15s per foot. There was bidding for several other properties submitted, but as the reserve was not reached in any instance the properties were passed in for private treaty.

The chief item in the private sales of the week was the changing hands of the property in Pitt-street, owned and occupied by Messrs. Batt, Rodd, and Purves. This property consists of a block of land between Moore and Hunter streets, upon which is erected a very substantial building of several stories in height. The frontage is about 22ft by a fair depth. Messrs. Walker Bros., agents, sold the property this week to Messrs. W. C. Penfold and Co., stationers, for £20,000. A condition of the sale is that the firm of Messrs. Batt, Rodd, and Purves is to be allowed a long lease of the property which it now occupies. The firm will remain there for several years. The building is valued at about £4000, and the land at £16,000. This works out at £727 per foot.

Another city property which changed hands this week was a shop and dwelling in George-street South, which was sold by Messrs. Richardson and Wrench for £2700.

Messrs. Stanton and Son included in their sale this week a cottage at Haberfield for £1080, and another in the same suburb for £935. A cottage in Hardy-street, Ashfield, brought £725. At Rosebery Model Suburb the firm sold a cottage and land for £750 and another for £865, and several lots of vacant land at £3 per foot.

In the march of progress of the Blue Mountains, Wentworth Falls is advancing in a quiet but rapid manner, and the residents are determined that they will not be behind the other main mountain centres in respect to providing the attractions necessary to draw a big population, and, in general terms, to cater for those who are attracted to a district which for natural beauty and sightseeing cannot be surpassed at any other centre of the Mountains. Some time ago a movement was initiated to build a school of arts at Wentworth Falls. Mr. Pitt, a leading townsman, gave the site for the building, which is opposite Boonara-street, in an elevated and central position. Plans for the building were prepared, and now that funds are in hand everything is ready for a start, which is to be made at once. The golf links, too, are well advanced. In fact, they are practically completed, and those who have seen them pronounce the greens and the tees as excellent. The work of laying out the links was entrusted to Mr. Soutar, and the promoters are well satisfied. The golf links are on the north side of the railway line, opposite the property of Mr. John M'Laughlin. The position is a very fine one. The Blaxland-road frontages of the links have been subdivided into allotments, 100ft square, and these are now being sold. Already three of the lots have been purchased at £2 per foot, and there are applications from golfers and others for some of the remaining lots. Land values at Wentworth Falls are steadily rising, and this summer it was impossible to obtain an allotment in any centrally-situated part of the district at less than 30s per foot. In fact, good land is bringing from £2 per foot upwards, and, with the progress which Wentworth Falls is making, there will not be much good land left for sale. Indeed, it looks as if this district will repeat the advancement which Katoomba and Leura have made.

A sale which has attracted a good deal of attention is to be held to-day at Leura by Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., when the Lure of Leura will be offered. This estate is in a good position for mountain or week-end homes, mountain hamlets, or sanatoria. The lots are large and level, and the soil of choice quality.

A very fine city property in Pitt-street, between Tattersall's Club and Spencer's Lyceum Theatre, will be offered at auction by Messrs. Hardie and Gorman on Wednesday, April 22. The property, known as the Victoria Coffee Palace, is substantially built of brick, and produces a total annual rental of over £1000.

Another splendid city property, with frontages to George and Bathurst streets, on Brickfield Hill, will be offered shortly by Messrs. Raine and Horne. There are seven separate lots to be submitted, viz., from 572 to 592 George-street, and from 103 to 117 Bathurst-street.

Quite a number of the surplus suburban lands of the Water and Sewerage Board are to be offered at auction next Friday, at the rooms of Messrs. Richardson and Wrench. The lands are situated at Camperdown, Marrickville, North Sydney, Enfield, Rockdale, Bexley, Sherwood, Woollahra, Annandale, Waverley, and Leichhardt.

Messrs. King and Humphery announce that it has been found necessary to postpone the third subdivision sale of the Austinmer Estate until May 16.

There are several first-class residential properties at Rose Bay, Randwick, Neutral Bay, Mosman, Willoughby, and other suburbs, besides investments at Paddington and Watson's Bay; also building sites at Neutral Bay, to be submitted at the rooms of Messrs. Batt, Rodd, and Purves, on Tuesday next.

Mr. A. J. Barnes reports the following sales by private contract:—Bondi Junction, 5 rooms, £1050; North Sydney, Alfred-street, cottage, four rooms, £575; residential chambers, Sydney, £865; Vaucluse (Jensen's estate), Clarke-street, cottage, five rooms, £750; Paddington, Albert-street, four rooms, £300; Woollahra, Edgecliff-road, weatherboard cottage, £350; Coogee, cottage, six rooms, £1060; Woollahra, Edgecliff-road, cottage, four rooms, £600. Total sales, £5630.

At Springwood on Monday Messrs. Wall and Co., of Sydney, and R. B. Paterson, of Wentworth Falls, will conjointly offer the Stanway Estate, comprising choice level residential blocks, which are about 10 minutes from the station. There is also an imposing family cottage residence, known as "Stanway," which is built on a corner block. Springwood is an ideal climate, and is within an hour and a half of the city.

At Katoomba on Monday Messrs. Mackenzie and Laurie will offer a choice block of land, with a double frontage. It faces Parke and Cascade streets.

At Mount Victoria on Monday, Messrs. H. W. Horning and Co. will submit the Carlisle Estate, which is on an elevated plateau, with fine frontages to Bathurst-road. The estate commands splendid views of the Kanimbla Valley.

The seaside sales include the following districts:—

At Port Hacking, Mr. C. Monro will offer Sutton's Estate, which is an early selected site in one of the best positions at Port Hacking, where boating, fishing, and bathing may be carried on with satisfaction. The land comprises beautiful level, grassy lots, divided into nine water-frontages and four back lots. On lot 1 is erected a neat weatherboard cottage, while on lot 8 is the old homestead known as "Beulah." On the water front, large swimming baths and commodious boat sheds and jetty are erected. A good road leads right to the property from the Cronulla tram and the Port Hacking coach lines.

At Narrabeen on Monday Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co. will submit the Superb View Estate. The name is suggestive, and correctly so, for the land is superbly situated on a beautiful plateau, commanding glorious views and dominating all the properties in the district. It is but 15 minutes from the tram, and the bathing and surfing of Collaroy, or the boating, fishing, and motoring delights of the district. The land will be sold on the firm's easy terms. This is a bright spot either for a residence, week-end resort, or a profit-making investment.

At Thirroul, on the South Coast, Mr. H. F. Cottrell will offer [illegible] building lots to close the estate of the late W. Val. Miller. The land is on Cochrane-road, and handy to the surf.

At Newport Messrs. S. C. Smith and Co. will submit the Warwick Subdivision. This is excellent land. Free motors are provided from Narrabeen on the day of the sale.

At Cronulla the first clearing sale of several subdivisions in the Riviera Estate at Cronulla will be conducted by Mr. C. H. Crammond on Monday. The land comprises some of the best in the district, and can be purchased on exceptionally easy terms.

At Kurnell, the landing-place of Captain Cook, on the shores of Botany Bay, there will be another sale by Messrs. Horning and Co. on Monday. This time it will be the Kurnell Park Estate that will be offered. Steamers are to be provided to take people over to this picturesque spot free of cost if armed with tickets obtainable from the auctioneer.

Owing to a number of buyers not having been able to attend the sale of the Beach View Estate, Stanwell Park, held last Saturday, and in response to numerous requests, it has been decided to hold a continuation auction sale on the ground on Easter Monday, when the public will have a further opportunity of securing a block in this seaside resort, with its magnificent views and close proximity to the city. The terms are quite within the reach of all. Particulars of how the trains leave Sydney and Stanwell Park station will be found in the Stanwell Park advertisement of this issue.

PROGRESS OF THE SUBURBS.

CONCLUSION OF THE SERIES.

BOTANY AND MASCOT.

The last suburb to be dealt with in this series is Botany, but it was the first to be discovered. It was on the shores of Botany Bay that Sir Joseph Banks, the celebrated botanist, and James Matra, a midshipman on the Endeavour, wandered round in search of Australian wild flowers. It was this splendid collection which was preserved and sent home to England that led the Cook party to name the bay Botany. The native name of the place was Booralee, and to perpetuate that name one of the wards of the municipality and also the principal recreation park in the district are now named Booralee.

It was on the shore of Botany Bay that Governor Phillip many years afterwards landed, and just about that time La Perouse, the French navigator, also put in an appearance at Botany. It was at Botany that the first white man was buried in Australia, and at Botany to-day many of the early settlers lie at rest, their remains having been removed from the old Devonshire-street Cemetery, where the Central Railway Station now stands.

Botany has undergone many changes since the days when Matra wandered round, and Phillip and La Perouse took their bearings. One of the very early settlers and a large landowner of the district was Simeon Lord, who let out land for market gardens, etc. It was in the 'Forties and the 'Fifties that population first began to settle in the village of Botany. The settlers were divided into two classes—market gardeners and fishermen; but an occasional wool-washing and milling industry was established on the banks of the swamps. Among the pioneers of the district may be mentioned Joshua Wiggins, who drove the mail coach to and from the city in the days when the road to Botany was a sandy track, and the fare from the city was 2s 6d and 3s, even up to 5s, each way. Henry Ramsay was another mail coach driver. He succeeded his friend, Joshua Wiggins, and later Mr. Ramsay ran a line of 'buses of his own to Botany. Both Wiggins and Ramsay became aldermen, and were highly respected in a district where they had spent most of their lives. Mr. Wiggins has passed over to the great majority, but Mr. Ramsay is still well and hearty, and resides in "Good old Botany," as he calls it.

William Stephen was another of the pioneers of Botany. He was a market gardener, and got 5s each for his cabbages at the market. The political, social, and religious life of Botany was always safe in the hands of such men as William Stephen, and he did much to help the district. He was the founder of the School of Arts, which proved such a useful institution in the district in the 'Fifties and 'Sixties. In fact, right up to the present day this institution has carried on a most useful work. Simeon Lord gave the land, and William Stephen and others collected the funds to erect the building. Mr. Stephen afterwards represented the district in the Legislative Assembly. He also filled the Mayoral chair of Botany, and was an alderman almost up to the time of his death, which occurred recently.

Hambly, Passfield, Smith, Whisten, Swinbourne, Macfadyen, Howe, Fremlin, Walsh, Geddes, Martin, Corbett, Thomas, Correy, Wood, Luff, Sherwood, were the early settlers of Botany. In those days of the omnibus, Sir Joseph Banks Pleasure Grounds, and Correy's Gardens, at Botany, were the chief picnic centres of Sydney. They were also the fashionable resorts for honeymoon couples. Mr. Frank Smith and his wife kept Sir Joseph Banks Hotel and Grounds, which were always a picture to look at, and were greatly admired by visitors. Before Mr. Frank Smith got possession of Sir Joseph Banks Grounds the site was occupied as a zoological garden, kept by Mr. Waller, the first of its kind in Australia. It was during Mr. Frank Smith's ownership that Lord Carrington, then Governor of the State, was reported to have offered £30,000 for Sir Joseph Banks Hotel and Grounds, but as Mr. Smith wanted £35,000, no sale was effected. Mr. Smith afterwards erected a new hotel of extensive dimensions, built grandstands, running tracks, etc. In fact, he entirely altered the place, and, subsequently carried on foot-racing. Gradually, however, the business failed, and Mr. Smith died a poor man, with the bank as owner of the property. In the meantime Correy's Gardens were removed to Cabarita. Sir Joseph Banks Grounds, however, still remain a picnic resort, and they are at times fairly well patronised.

It was due to the never-failing quantity of water from the Botany swamps that Sydney people had a plentiful water supply for many years. When the supply from Centennial Park, then known as Busby's Bore, became inadequate, it was decided to direct the water from the swamps at Centennial Park and between the hills, in the direction of Botany, into extensive dams which had been formed. An engine house and pumping plant were erected on the shores of Botany Bay. The City Council then controlled these works, but afterwards they were taken over by the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board. It is noteworthy that, notwithstanding the fact that on many occasions the country was visited by drought, especially in the 'Sixties and 'Seventies, the Botany swamps never failed to give Sydney its water supply. But with the rapid growth of population the Water Board looked for a larger supply, which was obtained from Prospect, and the surrounding district, but the old engine house at Botany still stands. For many years the machinery was kept in working order as a stand-by should the Prospect supply temporarily fail. The water in the Botany dams is now used by the wool-washing firms, for which privilege they pay a good rental to the Water Board.

The religious needs of the community have been looked after since the 'Sixties. The Church of England body was the first to start services, and was closely followed by the Methodist body. Both these churches were built on the road-side, opposite the water works, and each had its own little church-yard. This portion of Botany was for many years the business centre of the village, and it was there that the post-office, conducted by Mr. Howe, was located. Another post-office was subsequently erected opposite Sir Joseph Banks Grounds, and this also became a business centre, and was known as Lower Botany, so called to distinguish it from Botany proper. It was at Lower Botany, near the new post-office, that the Rev. T. J. Curtis and the people of Botany erected a very fine Presbyterian church.

In the 'Sixties and 'Seventies there was but one Public school in Botany. Now there are three. The first school was at Bay-street, opposite the School of Arts, but most of the children of well-to-do parents living in the vicinity of the Sir Joseph Banks Hotel went to private schools, kept by the Misses Passfield, Mrs. Sherwood, and others.

But Botany was destined to change entirely, and there were several agencies which brought this about. First of all there was the introduction of the tram service, and the cutting up of the Sandgate and other large estates, which induced settlement, the subdivision sales being a great success. This was in the "boom" period, and as much as £5 to £10 per foot was paid for the land, which years afterwards could be obtained at from 20s to £2 per foot. To push the district along a progress association was formed, and in this movement the residents took much interest. Still, many people were not satisfied with having a progress association. They wanted a municipality. Petitions were got up in favour of the district being constituted a municipality; there were counter petitions and Government inquiries. Finally, in 1888, Botany was declared to be a municipality, the waterworks bridge on the main Botany-road being the boundary line. Messrs. J. J. Macfadyen, Luff, F. Luland, J. Martin, S. Daniels, C. Swinbourne, J. E. Coard, R. Excell, and J. Wiggins were elected members of the first council, and after a keen contest Alderman Macfadyen was chosen as the first Mayor, but as he was engineer at the waterworks, the Water Board decided that he could not retain the mayoralty, being a Government servant within the meaning of the Act. He was ordered either to resign his position in the board's service or to give up the mayoral office. Mr. Macfadyen refused to give up the honour of being the first Mayor of Botany, and he left the board's employ and started a private enterprise of his own, in which he was successful.

The new municipality started out with an annual income to the council of £980. Mr. Garton was elected council clerk at £50 per annum.

The council rented a small two-roomed cottage next to Mr. Luland's tannery on the Botany-road. The front room was used as the public office, and the back room as a council chamber, and a store for the tools, etc., of the workmen on the roads. Up to this period the main Botany-road was maintained by the Government, and was under the control of a trust; but the councils of the districts through which it passed took the road over, and the Government contributed towards its upkeep. Now the councils alone bear the cost, a change which was brought about by the present Local Government Act.

From a picnic ground and a tourist resort and a pleasant little village to live in, Botany gradually developed into a big industrial centre. At the present time there are 40 tanneries and woolscouring establishments within the municipality. These include Enoch Taylor's and several other factories, where leather is made into boots and put to other uses. But the tanning of the hides and the scouring of the wool forms the chief industry, and finds employment for several thousand bread-winners.

In the days of Sir Henry Parkes a railway to Botany was talked of. It has been talked of by every candidate at every general election ever since, and the present Government has promised that it shall be an accomplished fact very shortly. The people of Botany wonder if it will be so. The waters of Botany Bay being so shallow, vessels of any size cannot enter, and it would be difficult to deepen the anchorage. The writer remembers an alderman in the local council once tabling a motion in these words: "I beg to move that Botany Bay be dug out." When moving it he said: "You know, Mr. Mayor, there is plenty of water in the bay, but the bottom of the water is too near the top." It will probably always remain so. In the meantime thousands of tons of hides, skins, and tallow are carted along the Botany-road in the course of a year. A railway alone would get over the difficulty.

But Botany is progressing. The council, which started in 1888, with an income of £980 per annum, has now an income of nearly £7000. The unimproved capital value of the land is £158,814, while the value of the houses and land together has reached £533,951. Botany to-day carries a population of 5100, and there are 940 houses and cottages, 50 shops, two banks, three Public schools, five hotels, and 40 industries in full swing in the municipality.

Adjoining Botany is the prosperous municipality of Mascot. When the Progress Association of Botany, decided to urge the incorporation of the district in 1888, it was agreed to have two separate municipalities, with a line at the Waterworks Bridge separating them, and they were called the boroughs of Botany and North Botany. Quite recently North Botany changed its name to Mascot. Like Botany, the start of Mascot as a municipality was a small one. The first Mayor was the late James Coward, and the council met in the little Presbyterian school until the present fine Town Hall was built. During the first year of its existence the council had less than £1000 to work upon. This year the revenue will reach £6000. The district now carries a population of 8500, which is housed in 1750 buildings. The unimproved capital value of the land is set down at £273,990, and the houses and land at £673,000. Like its neighbour, Botany, Mascot has developed into an industrial centre, and in this respect is making splendid progress. In fact, the whole district will in time become the Birmingham of Australia.

CAPTAIN AND CREW.

A COURT CASE.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The cases in which Charles Frederick Black and John William Englund, chief steward and carpenter respectively of the steamer Ascot, summoned Captain Francis Dudley, master of the vessel, to show cause why their articles should not be rescinded, was concluded at the Court before Mr. Adrian, S.M., yesterday. The two cases were heard together. Mr. T. A. Braye appeared for the complainants; and Mr. J. Windeyer for the defendant.

The magistrate said that in coming to the decision with regard to the charge of drunkenness against the captain, he did it with great regret, knowing that his prospects and position were probably involved. The Ascot once carried 1300 souls aboard. His responsibilities as a magistrate were very great in deciding a case of the present kind. He realised that the captain had had a long official position, but he must decide in favour of the complainants and rescind the contract.

In regard to the food, although at times there was plenty, there were instances when there was not any, and times when it was insufficient in quality. It was in consequence of the bad system that prevailed on the ship as much as anything else. The two cases were more intimately connected than at first sight might appear. In each case he decided in favour of the complainant, with £5 15s 6d costs.

The case against the chief engineer was withdrawn.

AN INSURANCE AGENT INSURES HIS HEALTH AGAINST ILLNESS BY TAKING CLEMENTS TONIC.

He writes from his home, Glenmore-street, Naremburn, North Sydney, 21/8/'12, and tells his story of renewed health and strength:—

CLEMENTS TONIC, LTD.

"Some few years ago I was very much run down in health, I suffered with a tired, dull feeling and lack of energy. I tried different remedies, but without any lasting benefit. I got a bottle of Clements Tonic, which did me so much good that after taking a course of it I was restored to good health. Whenever I feel a bit off I use it, and it soon puts me right. I may state that I was led to take Clements Tonic through seeing the wonderful effect it had in restoring to good health a friend who was almost an invalid, medical treatment having failed to effect a cure or even relieve him.

"I remain, yours faithfully,

"(Signed) JOS. ADAMS."

For the creating of rich, good blood, making the nerves as strong as steel, keeping the stomach healthy, the appetite keen, you can rely upon Clements Tonic. It never fails as a restorative agent of sound health. It is especially beneficial in cases of Poor Blood, Anaemia, Hysteria, Debility, or Melancholia in Women, or Debility, Nervous Decline, Poor Appetite, Costiveness, or Vital Weakness. ALL CHEMISTS AND STORES SELL IT THROUGHOUT AUSTRALASIA. Send for it to-day. It is health in a new guise. It brings happiness to every Australian home wherever it is used.—Advt.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

CLOTHING TRADES.

WOMEN V. MEN TAILORS.

The secretary of the Tailors' Union, Mr. J. B. Crombie, made a statement in reply to the remarks of Mr. J. B. Dance, which appeared in the "Herald" of Friday last, on the question of the ousting of male labour by female labour in the tailoring trade.

The union secretary said he would refer Mr. Dance, and other master tailors who held similar views, to the records of the Government Statistician. The Statistical Register for 1900-1910 showed that the number of tailors engaged in the order trade remained at about a level during those years, notwithstanding the great increase of population, and the corresponding increase in the volume of trade. Mr. Dance's argument, said Mr. Crombie, that the proportion of male apprentices employed is about 1 to 20, instead of 1 to 3 or 4, as provided for in the awards, only goes to show that employers are very loth to take male apprentices, whilst nearly all of them have their full proportion of female apprentices. "Can Mr. Dance wonder at the general run of tailors being antagonistic to the teams system?" says Mr. Crombie. "We find teams of from 10 to 30 female coatmakers, with only one tailor employed as an overseer. This is the state of things in many of the firms that advertise as high class tailors. I challenge Mr. Dance's statement that he knows of one firm which is employing six more men and three less women this year, as compared to the corresponding period of last year. I could hardly fail to notice such an increase of tailors in the establishment. Mr. Dance, as a member of the Clothing Board, must know that in the 1909 award a clause was inserted by agreement, regulating the proportion of men to be employed to females on coats. He must also know that a similar clause was objected to by the employers on the last board, and when I tested the matter before Mr. Justice Heydon, his Honor ruled the clause out as ultra vires.

"I repeat the statement that there have been more men out of work in the tailoring trade during the last three months than there have been for years, although employment for females has been good all through. I am in a position to prove that fully 50 of our men have not averaged 15s per week from January 1 to March 25, 1914. Our legislators appear to be anxious for more immigration, and to encourage the natural increase of our own population. But up to the present they have not given power to the wages boards to regulate the employment of male and female labour, where equal payment is not procurable. Can anyone wonder at the large proportion of single men engaged in the tailoring trade when such a state of affairs exists?"

BOOTMAKERS' BOARD.

Mr. E. W. Wickham, barrister, chairman of the Leather Trade Group of Wages Boards, held a meeting of the No. 1 Board on Wednesday to deal with an application by the Australian Boot Trade Employees' Federation. This application had reference to hours, wages of apprentices and improvers, weekly payments, materials, deductions, notice of suspension, posting notices, bonus, apprentices, junior labour, proportion of apprentices and improvers.

The union secretary (Mr. D. J. Johnstone) explained yesterday that the aims of the union to have the present award (which expires on April 19), extended for six months, had been successful, and would be gazetted on 22nd inst. This would, he said, enable representatives to meet the employers in conference with a view to coming to an agreement to be afterwards made an award. In the new log the union would ask for 1s 4d per hour, instead of the present rate of 1s 1½d, and for a working week of 44 hours instead of 48 hours.

LABOUR COUNCIL.

Mr. W. O'Neill, vice-president, occupied the chair at a meeting of the New South Wales Labour Council, the president, Mr. W. O'Brien, having tendered his resignation owing to the withdrawal from affiliation of the Federated Furnishing Trades Society. Mr. D. Guihen (Hospital and Asylum Employees) was voted to the vice chair.

Mr. W. L. Duncan (Cokeworkers), an ex-president, moved that the matter of accepting the withdrawal be deferred, and that delegates from the Labour Council wait upon the society to ask them to reconsider their decision.

The motion was carried, and a deputation was appointed to wait on the Furniture Trades Federation.

STATE TIMBER YARDS.

Unionists have secured what they regard as a pretty fair settling up of their grievances at the State Timber Yard, Uhr's Point. On the question of starting time they have been allowed eight minutes to "ring on" after the present prescribed hour of 7.30 a.m. This, they think, will prevent their being locked out when the train happens to be a few minutes late.

In regard to the minimum rate of pay, it is laid down in a letter to the secretary of the Sawmill and Timber Yard Employees, Mr. A. E. John, that those who are receiving £2 6s per week will receive £2 8s as from the date of Mr. Justice Heydon's judgment, February 17.

SADDLERS' UNION.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Saddlers' Union, the secretary reported that the attempt to arrange an agreement with the employers in the belt-making branch had been unsuccessful, and he had, therefore, filed claims with the board. The first meeting has been fixed for May 7. The executive was instructed to draw up claims for the saddlers' branch, and place them before the board, as the award expires in October.

IRONWORKERS' ASSISTANTS.

Mr. F. H. Drake, secretary to the Federated Ironworkers of Australasia, referred this week to the recent dispute in the iron-trades, which was settled by the men returning to work and agreeing to confer with the employers. Mr. Drake said that the dispute was still in existence. The conferences held with the employers had proved entirely abortive. The union has decided to endeavour to get a Federal award.

SUGAR-REFINING EMPLOYEES.

The award comes into operation on Thursday next, and is to have a duration of three years. The working hours are to be 48, and except in the case of hands employed on shift-work, are to be worked as follows:—Monday to Friday inclusive, from 7.30 a.m. to 12 noon, and from 12.45 p.m. to 5 p.m., on Saturdays from 7.30 a.m. to 11.45 a.m. In the case of hands employed on shift-work the hours are to be as follows:—First shift, from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m.; second shift, from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m.; third shift, from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. The hours worked from 10 p.m. to 12 midnight on Sunday by shift hands are to be considered as worked on Sunday or as overtime.

Wages.—Sack washers in garret, 54s per week; man on liquor filter presses, 52s 6d; man on mud presses, 51s; liquor runners, 60s; men engaged tying-in, 51s; men engaged in stripping, packing, etc., 51s; sugar boilers, 1st-class, 70s; sugar boilers, 2nd-class, 67s; assistant to 1st-class sugar boilers, 60s; men attending Kestner, 54s; men attending triple effet (if adults), 51s; pan attendants, 52s 6d.

Many other provisions are set out in the full award.

BRICK CARTERS.

An award with a currency of three years deals with brick, tile, and pottery carters, and motor waggon drivers in the County of Cumberland. In the brick section the hours are 56½, and the wages are summarised thus:—

Drivers of one horse, 51s; of two horses, 56s; of three horses, 62s; and 4s per man per week for each additional horse. Motor-waggon drivers: Drivers of vehicles with a carrying capacity not exceeding 25cwt, 55s; over 25cwt and not exceeding 40, 58s per week; over 40cwt and not exceeding 60, 63s per week; over 60cwt, 68s per week. Youths under 21 years of age may be employed driving one horse, and when so employed are to receive not less than 40s per week, with an additional 2s 6d per week for each six months' experience in the industry.

In the pottery section the week is fixed at 54 hours for horse drivers, and at 50 for motor drivers. The wages are the following:—

Drivers of one horse, minimum rates, 52s 6d per week, with an extra 5s per man per week for each additional horse; motor waggon drivers, as per week in excess of the amount prescribed in the brick section. Youths under 21 years of age may be employed at 40s per week, with an increase of 2s 6d per week for each six months' experience in the industry.

Overtime is provided for, together with many details.

Now at wharf with two feet of water in hold. Position was at times critical."

FARM AND STATION.

NORFOLK ISLAND.

(BY JOHN TAYLOR.)

Norfolk Island is rather in the public eye at present owing to its being taken over by the Commonwealth as a territory. While it is right that the Commonwealth should have the control of the island and its affairs, one may doubt if there is any cause for great jubilation on the part of its inhabitants, for it is difficult to see any advantage they will reap from the alteration. The islanders have been practically spoonfed by the Imperial Government since they were first discovered on Pitcairn, and while it is probable that they will be compelled to pay part or all of the cost of Government, it is very hard to see any great benefit they will derive from free admission of their products into Australia. With the exception of coffee, everything they grow will have to compete with the same article grown near Sydney, or brought from Queensland, so much will depend upon the rate of freights. There being no harbour of any description, it is not at all uncommon for the monthly steamer to pass without landing or taking on any cargo, sometimes even mails and passengers being taken on to the Hebrides. Oranges, bananas, and such perishables will not keep for a month until the next steamer comes, and few big losses would damp the ardour of a much more energetic race of people than the Norfolk Islanders. On the other hand, regarding supplies imported to the islands. At present it is practically a free port, and one can buy articles in many cases cheaper than at the large establishments in Sydney. Many of the people, too, especially outsiders, or as the Norfolkers call them among themselves, interlopers, send to England for clothing, boots, and other articles, and land them through the post at much below Sydney retail prices. This will come to an end when Australian customs have to be paid, and prices will undoubtedly be much above Sydney. The New South Wales Agricultural Department recently sent down an officer to instruct the islanders. I think this gentleman must have found that it was not a want of knowledge that keeps the Norfolker back in agricultural matters, but rather a general want of energy, accounted for in part by his strain of Tahitian blood, and still more from his environment, for his creed undoubtedly is "Why work hard when one can make a pleasant living without?"

The island is so fruitful that to live one need only make the most casual acquaintance with hard work. If an example of good agriculture would benefit the Norfolker, then he has it right at his door, in the splendidly conducted Melanesian Mission station, for, after living for 20 years in a leading agricultural district of New South Wales, I have no hesitation in saying that the condition of this property, on which farming and grazing are carried on to a fairly large extent, and of which every foot is well improved, and in beautiful order, would be a credit to any place in this State. In addition, these people have 50 years' experience of the island soil and climate, and while some of their methods might seem out of place to people used to the large farms of New South Wales, we have to remember that five-furrow ploughs would be equally out of place on a three or four acre block, which is about the limit of area in agricultural operations on the island, the whole place being cut up by deep valleys, which can only be used for fruit and banana cultivation, and for coffee, which grows splendidly, and of a very fine quality. I may say that one of the largest growers of coffee on the island told me that although he had a market for it at a profitable figure, he found the labour difficulty too much for him, and he could not get the berries picked.

Another item in which trade may be developed is the Kentia palm seed. This palm, transplanted from its native soil on Lord Howe Island, thrives exceedingly on Norfolk, and already some few palms are bearing, but it is only now that the Norfolkers are waking up to the fact that there is profit in the palm, and some of them are planting a good many Kentias in their valleys, but these will be some time before they bear seed.

The whole island bears witness to the want of energy of the Norfolkers, for roads, left in perfect order by the convict administration, have been allowed to fall into such condition as to be veritable quagmires in wet weather even with the very light traffic they have to carry. Land once cultivated by the convicts, is covered with the wild tobacco-bush; while, on the other hand, we see potatoes, chaff, and other produce being imported, and even jams, while many tons of fruit are allowed to rot on the ground year after year. My idea is that the future of the island lies with the tourist. Each year sees an increase in the number of visitors, but there would be a very great increase were better steamers put on the run. Good board can be had on the island. The Government might with advantage turn the old "Government House" into a boarding-house or temperance hotel, for at present it is only a source of expense to the authorities, being much too large for any probable requirements of a chief magistrate on the salary paid at Norfolk, and, being beautifully situated close to the only bathing-place on the island, it would, I am sure, be a profitable change. At present it seems to be dropping into a sad state of disrepair, and an effort should be made to put it on a better footing. Accommodation for the magistrate could easily be found elsewhere, and there is the Court-house for official business.

Norfolk is an ideal place for a holiday, especially for any one seeking a perfect rest from business worries—a lovely climate, beautiful scenery, a kindly-natured people, abounding in hospitality; but, alas, not abounding in that quality which seems (fortunately or unfortunately) to be a necessity in Australia—a love of work. One could write columns about the beauties of this little island, only 8000 acres in all, for it is indeed a gem of the Pacific. From the time when one lands through the surf in the whaleboat to the time when, standing on the deck of the steamer again, we wave farewell to Mount Pitt as it slowly fades out of sight, there is something beautiful to please the eye. The lovely green of the island alone is an intense pleasure to one who has left inland New South Wales at the end of a hot summer. The island abounds in lovely picnic spots, and driving along the roads, bordered with groves of lemons with their golden fruit growing wild, with views over valley, bay, and ocean, it leaves an impression which it will take the visitor a long time to forget.

If I were asked what would benefit the Norfolk Islander most, I would reply, "No more spoon-feeding." There has been altogether too much of that in the past. The British Government has been ready to give almost anything asked for, and this has bred up a race who, almost without exception, look to the Government to do everything for them, and to do it free. No taxes are paid, the only liability in this respect being for some few days' work per annum on the roads, or as it is termed "public work." The public work stroke of Norfolk Island would turn our day labourer green with envy. This system should be abolished. It produces small and very unsatisfactory results, and I believe that were the islanders compelled to pay taxes for their own local government—and they are certainly in just as good a position to pay taxes, if they will work, as the average citizen of New South Wales—it would tend to give them an incentive to work, which is totally lacking at present, as everything else can be arranged by a kind of barter, but taxes would have to be paid in cash. It is to be hoped that the Commonwealth Government will realise that they are dealing with a people who have had a hundred years of petting, and it is time some other system was tried which would tend to put some energy and self-reliance into this interesting people.

THE WOOL TRADE.

ROYAL'S NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITIES.

Generally the market is very quiet. Satisfactory clearances are being effected of passed-in lots from the last auctions, and sales made of local scoureds at recently established rates. Beyond that, very little business is being transacted in wool. Fresh arrivals are being held for the next series of auctions in the Sydney market, arranged to commence Monday, May 18, when a fair quantity of autumn-shorn wools from this State and parcels of new clip from Queensland will be catalogued.

The Royal Show is engaging attention at the present time, not so much from the wool or sheep standpoint as a general exhibition of stock and agricultural products. Through a variety of reasons the Royal Agricultural Society has never realised itself in connection with the sheep and wool industry. Woolgrowers formed their own Sheepbreeders' Association, under considerable difficulties, and two or three enthusiasts, particularly the late Hon. G. H. Cox, established an association that has added materially to the wool-growing capacities of the flocks, not only of New South Wales, but the other States. This show in the winter is a reflex of the great sheep and wool growing industry, drawing together representtaives of the best studs in the States. That display is augmented by the merinos and British breeds at the stud sheep sales, following upon the sheep show. At the sheep show, and in the wool stores where the sales are held, may be seen one of the most representative collections of the merino flocks in New South Wales year by year, equal, if not superior, to anything of the kind in the world. But, and this is the point, the sheep show and stud sheep sales are only visited by the men interested in sheep and wool, able to attend at that particular time of the year.

Where visitors go in tens to the sheep show and see the magnificent animals that maintain or improve the wool-growing flocks of the State, they go in thousands to the Royal Show at Easter, and do not see one solitary merino sheep on the ground. All the big flock masters come down to Sydney for the sheep show and sales, but a lot of small growers that are down at Easter do not put in an appearance. Apart, however, from all that, surely a sheep pavilion at the Royal should be of equal importance to that of the dogs. The dog pavilion is a modern building, the sheep pavilion is a galvanised iron shed, without sides, or a fanlight in the roof, and alongside a similar structure for pigs. Such a pavilion may be good enough for the sheep, because the merino breeders do not care to enter at the Royal, the society may say. It is not such a good time to show as in the winter, when the wool is of good length.

All exhibits at the Royal are not competitive, and if merino sheepbreeders have not shown a disposition to come forward in April, reserving themselves for the great contest in June, that does not alter the fact that the Royal Agricultural Society is neglecting opportunities by not providing a modern pavilion for the sheep and wool. If a suitable pavilion were erected, and flock masters invited to send for exhibtion purposes specimens of their studs, being insured against loss and expenses paid, there can be no doubt that many would respond, and visitors would be able to see merino studs typical of the principal sheep and wool-growing districts of the State. If the Sydney wool-selling houses were invited to make a display of fleeces representative of the wools sold by them each season, there can be no doubt that there would be a generous response. Such a hall could be made absolutely the feature of the show; grand as it is in agricultural respects.

Woolgrowing and the merino flocks play such a tremendous part in the development of the State that some expenditure by the Royal in a display of the kind herein suggested should be considered a necessity. There is a good wool sample exhibit by the sheep and wool branch of the Department of Agriculture. It is intersting of its kind; but it is in a corner of the grand hall, and a mere adjunct of general departmental exhibits In the absence of a grand wool and sheep display this exhibit is most welcome. Among the items that command attention is an interesting case of wool top and yarn, lent by the Co-operative Wool and Produce Company, Ltd., Sydney. One pound of top combed from Australian wool was spun by Messrs. James Tankard, Ltd., of Bradford, Yorkshire, England, into 50 miles of yarn, and is an example to woolgrowers of what can be achieved from Australian merino.

Groups of fleeces from the trans-Darling country, from Riverina, from the central, and north-western plains; from the south-western, central-western, and north-western slopes; the southern, central, and northern tablelands; one fleece from each contributed by each firm of selling brokers in Sydney would not only make a fine display but would give a good index of the wools of the previous season in the different parts of the State. Cases showing wool in various stages of manufacture, with samples of fabric, together with the sheep, would really make the Royal Show as attarctive from the pastoral standpoint as well as the argricultural and commercial.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

Very little, if any, business is being transacted in Melbourne. The next auctions in that centre are arranged for Wednesday, April 22, and any small consignments coming forward are being held for inclusion in the catalogues to be offered on that date. The offerings will probably be within very moderate dimensions, and according to the "Age" of Wednesday last, the prospects for next season's Victorian clip are far from bright. That journal remarking: "In this State good autumn rains have been experienced in certain patches of the north-east, central, and Gippsland districts, but over the greater bulk of the State and the more important wool-growing western and Wimmera districts feed and water are scarce, stock are falling away in condition, and the general outlook as regards the lambing and wool clip is rather alarming. The volume of wool to be handled in Melbourne next season cannot be as great as it has been during the year fast drawing to a close, whilst the individual fleeces will not be so well grown and attractive as they were last season."

The offerings and sales in the markets of the Commonwealth, and total for the Dominion, for the nine months of the current statistical wool year, compared to the corresponding period last season, compiled by Dalgety and Co., Ltd., are as shown in the following table:—

In summarising the position, with regard to tops at Bradford, on March 5, the Yorkshire "Observer" remarked: "London has fully confirmed the advance which has taken place in this and other markets since the beginning of February. It is generally held to be dearer than actual selling rates here, though not perhaps above last week's protective quotations, which would just yield an average profit. Topmakers are now trying to enforce them as the new selling basis, but users are naturally slow to respond. Nevertheless, circumstances are more than usually favourable to the establishment of an early correspondence with London, for there is no cheap wool to fall back on and little prospect of much being forthcoming. The position of merinos may be taken as practically settled for the rest of the season. There is a big deficit in direct imports, and the offerings in London will steadily decline in importance until the new Queensland wools begin to arrive late in the year. It is estimated that French importers have bought 20 per cent. more than they need, but in the present easy state of the money market they will be able to hold the surplus as long as they please, and it is their avowed intention not to part with it until the pinch is at its keenest."

WOOL SHIPMENTS.

Shipments have been light during the week; three vessels clearing the Sydney Customs since last review for the United Kingdom and foreign ports, with a total of only 391 bales, as compared with five vessels during the corresponding week, with wool aggregating 1389 bales. The vessels with quantities for the week, and total for season to date, compared to the corresponding period last year are as follows:—

THE DAIRYMEN.

BREEDERS' MEETING.

HERD-TESTING IN THE NORTH.

The annual meeting of the Cattle Breeders' Association of New South Wales was held at the Showgrounds yesterday morning. Mr. J. T. Cole, president of the association, presided. The annual report reviewed the past year's proceedings, and dealt at length with the competition for the "Sydney Morning Herald" prize and the alterations made in the regulations to meet certain cases. The prize was won by Champion III. of Darbalara, which put up the fine record of 10,299lb of milk and 563lb of butter. Proceeding, the report stated that the Royal Agricultural Society had agreed to the request to limit entries in the purebred dairying classes to animals registered in or eligible for registration in the herd books of their respective breeds. This rule will take effect from the 1915 show. Butter standards during the year were raised as follow:—Two-year-old cows, 200lb; three-years-old cows, 250lb; four-year-old cows, 300lb. Up to October last 404 cows were tested, the numbers in the different breeds being:—Jerseys 246, Milking Shorthorns 122, Guernseys 26, Holsteins 5, others 5. The individual owners of the cows were:—H. Gollan, Jerseys, 100; Darbalara Estate, Shorthorns, 75; A. L. Manning, Bega, Jerseys, 48; T. Bowling, Inverell, Milking Shorthorns, 25; F. G. Flower, Burra Burra, Jerseys, 24; Kinross Bros., Jamberoo, Guernseys, 12. The report also briefly reviewed the financial position of the association, and concluded by congratulating members upon the excellent results achieved during the year.

The president, in moving the adoption of the report, said that it was satisfactory as far as it went. It was to be regretted that more cattle had not been tested, but for a beginning the results were good. It had been found necessary to rectify certain discrepancies, but the schemes originally planned, with slight alterations, had worked well. From a national point of view, and from the point of view of breeders generally, the work which they had in hand was the best which could be done for the cattle of the State. Purity and performances were what were required for dairy stock, and they were aiming to get them. They should spare no trouble or expense to have the tests made as accurate as possible, for whatever little loss they experienced would be amply rewarded.

Mr. A. L. Manning seconded the motion, and said that the experience of the past twelve months had shown him the absolute necessity of testing. By combining, they had done more for the industry than could ever be done as long as they worked in sections.

A deputation representing the Tweed and Richmond rivers dairymen waited on the association, and asked that the tests now being carried out in the north should be recognised as official. Members of the deputation pointed out that, though the northern association was only in its infancy, it had 16,000 cattle to handle. Its testers were competent men, and it proposed that they should be appointed by the Government, and could also be removed by the Government. Dairymen along the Tweed and Richmond rivers found themselves in a quandary, for they were faced with a difficulty in having to make provision for two sets of testers—their own and the department's. They hoped, as a result of their representations, that something would be done by which the testing of pure-bred cattle and grade cattle could be co-ordinated, and the necessity for dual testing avoided.

After the deputation withdrew, the president said that the matter would have to be tested on principle. They were prepared to admit that the testing carried out in the Richmond and Tweed districts was done well, but if they granted the request it appeared to him that they would have similar requests from other districts.

Mr. M. A. O'Callaghan said that the testers in the Tweed and Richmond districts were doing excellent work testing purebred and grade cows. The department ought not to refuse any application to test cattle from any part of the State so long as the applicants complied with the conditions laid down by the breeders' association. Whether the Minister would be prepared to put on the necessary officials to perform the extra work along the Richmond River he could not say. Following the policy of the department the principle had been laid down that they would test cattle anywhere, and they were right in assuming that they would still carry out the promise as far as he knew. He was not afraid that the department would not be able to meet the requirements of breeders in the direction indicated, provided they were carried on only for registered cattle. The department's officials, however, should not be asked to say if a purebred cow was being submitted, but a registered number should be given when the cow was about to be tested. In New Zealand breeders paid as high as £2 per cow to have them tested, but the cost here was only 5s for purebred animals. What the people on the Tweed wanted, apparently, was to have the work done more cheaply, and also to avoid the necessity of having two tests per month, on their farms.

After a long discussion upon the matter the following motion was agreed to: "That this association, while in sympathy with the Richmond and Tweed Rivers Association, cannot see its way clear to alter its rules, but suggests that the Department of Agriculture be approached with a view to doing what it can in the interests of the association."

It was also agreed to add the following addendum to the motion: "That the department be approached and asked when supervising the testing of pure-bred cattle in any herd, that they also test the grade cows in the same herd at a fee of 3s. Also that if the minimum number of pure-bred cows required to be tested is not available, a fee of 5s per grade cow be charged until the limit is reached."

The following officers were elected:—President, J. T. Cole; vice-presidents, A. L. Manning, and Dr. Kinross; secretary and treasurer, H. O'B. Wilson; finance and executive committee, Messrs. J. J. Kinross, Mr. A. O'Callaghan, A. L. Manning, W. D. Warden, C. R. G. McDonald, and H. R. Denison.

It was agreed, on the motion of Mr. Higinbotham, that the Royal Agricultural Society should be approached and asked to put on a class for cows bred in the Commonwealth.

The late running of stock trains was also briefly discussed, and it was agreed that the secretary should write to the department protesting against the late running of trains, and the treatment meted out to show exhibitors.

SHOW NOTES.

An improvement might well be made in the accommodation for the cows in the milking tests, and also for the stewards and judges in this section. Both owners and judges would be better satisfied if the accommodation were more compact.

What is necessary is the privation of the milking sheds opening into a quadrangle, with the test room at one end. Stewards could then better control the intrusion of the public during milking, and the test room should be floored with concrete. The milking should also be done in a quieter place, where the side-shows would not distract the cows.

The manner in which the cheese exhibits were staged this year left a good deal to be desired. The cheese was apparently crowded out of its section owing to the butter exhibits being more numerous than was anticipated. This not only prevented a proper display being made, but also hampered the judging considerably.

The exhibits in all three sections—butter, bacon, and cheese—showed the effects of the hot weather, and the necessity for better housing accommodation was apparent.

It has been suggested that a room should be provided wherein the temperature could be kept between 60 and 70 degrees.

This might mean the installation of special apparatus, but the exhibits are worth it. The show is only held once a year, and exhibitors go to considerable expense to have their goods in good condition when they reach the ground.

A number of show visitors from Inverell voiced complaints regarding the provision made for transport by the railway authorities. The train which left Inverell on Tuesday morning took 26 hours on the journey.

The Department of Agriculture paid 140gns for the Ayrshire dairy bull Isabel's Majestic at the recent stock sales. He is a son of Majestic of Oakland, the sire of 20 different females which have won prizes at Royal Shows at both Melbourne and Sydney.

FRUITGROWERS INSPECT YANCO GOVERNMENT FARM.

Recently a party of fruitgrowers from the western slopes visited the Government farm at Yanco, and the following interesting impressions of their visit are given by Mr. A. C. Brown, of Goondarin Creek, in a letter to the Government Fruit Expert, Mr. W. J. Allen:—"In the first place we wish to thank the Government officials for their kindness to us and readiness at all times to minister to our personal comfort, as well as to impart instruction and information which we all very much appreciated. We inspected the orchards, peach, apple, pears, grapes, etc. What struck us most was the marvellous growth of the peach. The five-year-old trees are very fine, and I saw the largest and best peaches I have ever seen, and also some of the finest grapes. From what I saw the success of the stone fruit is assured; the soil seems to be most suitable for them. Apples do not seem to do as well there as they do with us here. They seem to me to have a deficient quality of flavour as well as colour, and I notice the soil is subsoiled. I would fancy the light loamy soil the most suitable for orchard purposes, especially apples. I think orchardists would do well to watch the Government farm well for the trees that are thriving best. We travelled to Leeton and saw a lot of young orchards. Some of these are being neglected, others are doing well; especially those which have used subsoiling in cultivation.

"I am very much impressed with the country for stone fruit, pears, and grapes. I have seen nothing better in Australia. There you have level country, plenty of sunshine and water. I have been growing fruit for the past 40 years, and have visited hundreds of orchards, and I have found that where any orchard is subsoiled it only produces the best fruit for colour, quality, and flavour but prolongs the life of the trees considerably, and I would strongly advise the orchardists at Leeton to emulate the example of the experts at the Government farm at Yanco, and closely follow their advice. We visited the dairy farm next. The lucerne paddocks were a revelation to me, also the sorghum; I never saw better, and I think that dairying and pig-raising would be a very profitable undertaking.

"The impression which I have got about the part of the country is that it is an ideal one. I feel sure that with about £400 to start an industrious man can have an independent living for himself and family for the rest of his life."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

BIRDS IN THE ORCHARD.

"Amateur."—In Victoria fruitgrowers have found the use of a patent bird scarer very effective in the orchards. It consists of a large revolving drum, which automatically fires off crackers at intervals and works for several hours without requiring any attention. It is an improvement upon the shotgun, which has always been the standby of the orchardists, and has been adopted by some growers in this State. In New Zealnd nets are largely used, and in some places here barbed wire is fixed on poles across the trees. Birds caught in the wire by the noise they naturally make effectually scare off their companions.

GOOD FRIDAY.

THE DAY'S SIGNIFICANCE.

CHURCH SERVICES.

"Our most sacred anniversary."

In these words an Anglican Bishop yesterday described Good Friday. The day was celebrated in the churches with impressive solemnity, and, despite the fact that the occasion has come to be more of holiday than a holy day in the church sense of the term, the services were well attended. The preacher at St. Andrew's spoke of the difficulties thrown in the way of the general recognition of the real significance of the occasion by the secular attractions offering.

The death on Calvary was the scene dealt with in the sermons delivered. The services were all of a special character and appropriate to the occasion.

ST. ANDREW'S CATHEDRAL.

The 11 o'clock service at St. Andrew's Cathedral was well attended.

Bishop M. Stone Wigg preached, the Benediction being pronounced by Archbishop Wright. In the course of his sermon, Bishop Stone Wigg said that there should be but one scene before their eyes that morning, one figure raised aloft on the Cross of Shame, enduring nameless tortures of soul, of mind, and body; yet enduring them certainly, bravely, almost silently, through the leaden hours. There was clearly something unique about an execution 1900 years ago, which had so left its mark on human affairs that all the European races suspended for two days in one week each year their ordinary avocations, and did it with a direct reference to that death by crucifixion at the place called Calvary outside the gates of Jerusalem. Others had died bravely, and patiently, and self-sacrificingly, without stamping on the heart of unborn generations so ineffaceable a memory as followed from Calvary. It was the worth of the Victim, the eternal Son of God, the representative man, the choice flower of humanity, which ennobled the sacrifice. The death on Calvary was the loving act of sacrifice of all the Three Persons of the Blessed Trinity, for the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit all entered into the shame and the suffering; they with one will and loving harmony wrought all the world's redemption, and co-operated in that glorious deliverance.

After a reference to the Royal Show, which is elsewhere reported, the Bishop enjoined each one who was watching that day by the Cross, to make more real, more insistent, the truth which it had revealed to them.

There was a special programme of music, the choir rendering Goss' "O Saviour of the World" most impressively.

The three-hours' service from 1 to 3 was conducted by the Rev. H. Crotty, M.A. There was a very large attendance in the evening, when Stainer's "Crucifixion" was rendered. The choruses were effectively sung, notably "Fling wide the gates." The soloists were Dr. Archdall and Max Way (tenor), and Messrs. A. S. Orchard, J. Cunningham, J. Cochran, and Melville (bass). Mr. J. G. Lee presided at the organ, and Mr. J. Massey played the piano accompaniments. The Archbishop was the preacher.

A special service was conducted in the evening by the Primate, and was very largely attended. Stainer's "Miserere" and "The Crucifixion" were rendered, and the Archbishop preached on the duties of Christianity.

ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL.

There were large attendances at yesterday's services at St. Mary's Cathedral. On both Thursday and yesterday Archbishop Kelly was celebrant. The interesting ceremony of the Blessing of the Holy Oils for distribution throughout the churches in the archdiocese took place on Maundy Thursday. Mass of the Pre-Sanctified was celebrated by the Archbishop at 8.30, when the Passion was sung on the altar before a large congregation. Then followed a procession to the Altar of Repose, conducted with all the solemnity allowed by the ritual. Yesterday Dr. Kelly was again the celebrant at Mass of the Pre-Sanctified, assisted by the Rev. E. M'Mahon and the Rev. J. Fitzpatrick as deacon and sub-deacon respectively. The Adoration of the Cross took place subsequently, and the Rev. Fr. Alphonsus, C.P., who had preached on the previous night on "The Blessed Eucharist," delivered a discourse from the text "Greater love no man hath than that he lay down his life for his friend." The office of Tenebrae was solemnly chanted on Wednesday and Thursday nights, as well as last night.

Stations of the Cross were recited yesterday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock by the Rev. J. O'Gorman. The church was crowded.

Father Casimir, C.P., occupied the pulpit last night, when he dealt with the "Dolors of Our Lady."

A special feature of the Holy Week ceremonies was the music. Last night, as well as on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, the "Benedictus" was rendered with fine effect by about 100 priests and students from St. Patrick's College, Manly, under the direction of the Rev. Dr. Hayden. During the service yesterday morning the "Passion According to St. John" was sung on the altar by the Revs. Dr. Hayden, Father W. Barry, and Father J. M. Kelly, and Vittori's responses were given by the choir. Various psalms were chanted by the choir. During the week, on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights, Zingarelli's "Miserere" was rendered. For Sunday the Mass selected is Hadyn's No. 16, which will be given by the choir, under the conductorship of Mr. W. Aspray, assisted by a full orchestra led by Mr. Henri Stael. The soloists for the day are Miss Daisy Thomas, soprano; Miss Mary Mongan, contralto; Mr. Reimenschneider, tenor; and Mr. Orme Darvall, bass. Mr. Dawkins acts as organist.

To-day, Holy Saturday, the ceremonies commence at 8.30, when there will be the blessing of the baptismal font and of the paschal candle. These will be conducted with impressive ritual.

High Mass will be celebrated at 11 o'clock to-morrow by the Archbishop, who will also preach. The preacher in the evening will be the Rev. Father Murphy.

ANGLICAN.

ST. MARK'S, DARLING POINT.

The Rev. A. M. Levick, M.A., conducted the whole of the services yesterday at St. Mark's Church, Darling Point. In the morning at 8 o'clock there was Ante Communion and Litany. At 11 a.m. Matins and sermon. This was followed by meditations at 2.30 p.m., and the day's services concluded with evensong at 5 o'clock. At each service there was a good attendance. The congregation at 11 o'clock was particularly large.

ST. PAUL'S, REDFERN.

Good Friday services were conducted yesterday at St. Paul's, Redfern, at 11 and 7.30, both being well attended. The Rev. H. J. Noble, who officiated, preached in the evening on "The Last Words of the Saviour," thus bringing to a close a series of discourses which he has been delivering during the week. The choir, under Mr. Thomas Flower, rendered "The Story of the Cross" in effective manner at night. The new choir vestry in St. Paul's will be dedicated on Sunday, when the church will be decorated and special music will be provided.

ST. SAVIOUR'S, REDFERN.

The principal service at St. Saviour's, Young-street, Redfern, was conducted by the Rev. C. E. Curtis, the subject of the sermon being "The Last Words," and hymns of a special character were sung. The day opened with Matins at 8 o'clock, followed by a children's service at 9.30, Litany at 10.15, and ante-communion at 10.30. Then came the three hours' service, the series of services concluding with evensong at 7.30 last night. The services excepting the afternoon were conducted by Rev. Mr. M'Lean, the vicar, and Rev. A. J. Mills. Under Mr. Raymond, conductor, the choir sang special music.

ST. BARNABAS', GEORGE-STREET WEST.

At St. Barnabas' Anglican Church, George-street West, the Rev. Canon Charlton officiated at both morning and evening services, each of which was largely attended. At the morning service Canon Charlton preached on "The Sympathy of Jesus in Life's Work," and in the evening on "The Sympathy of Jesus in Death." Mr. W. Kenneth Charlton presided at the organ.

ST. MARY'S, BALMAIN.

The rector, the Rev. J. Howell Price, officiated at 11 o'clock service, which was largely attended at St. Mary's Anglican Church, Darling-street, Balmain. The children's choir rendered the anthem, "The Story of the Cross," and the rector preached on the crucifixion.

ST. THOMAS', BALMAIN.

Large congregations attended the morning and evening services, which were conducted by the rector, Rev. Luke Parr, at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Darling-street, Balmain. The "Story of the Cross" was rendered by the choir in the morning. The soloists being Mr. Harris and Master Roberts. The rector preached on "The Seven Words on the Cross."

CHRIST CHURCH.

The day's services at Christ Church, city, opened at 7 a.m. with matins. At 10 o'clock a children's service was held, a feature of which was the number of adults present. At 11 o'clock there was ante-communion, and three hours' devotion was held from 12 to 3 p.m., conducted by the Rev. Clive Statham, there being a large congregation.

ST. JAMES'S.

St. James' Church, King-street, city, was the scene of services throughout the day. "The devotions of the three hours," from 12 to 3 p.m., were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Radford, and were numerously attended. The services from 10 to 12 noon were also crowded. In the evening the choir sang Stainer's "The Crucifixion," a big percentage of those present being men. Last night evensong was held, the preacher being the Rev. Norman Tivey.

ST. PHILLIP'S.

St. Phillip's, Church Hill, was a scene of devotional activity during yesterday. At the 11 o'clock service the Rev. Mr. Chapple preached from the text, "Is it nothing to you, all ye who pass by?" In the afternoon Canon Bellingham delivered a sermon on the Saviour's words from the Cross. In the evening the cantata "Penitence, Pardon, and Peace" was rendered, the church being thronged to the doors.

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

ST. PATRICK'S, CHURCH HILL.

Three services held at St. Patrick's, Church Hill, yesterday, were largely attended. The church was beautifully decorated.

In the morning the service was the Adoration of the Cross and the Mass of the Pre-Sanctified; in the afternoon at 3 o'clock the service was the "Stations of the Cross," and at night the service of the Passion was preached.

ST. MARY'S, NORTH SYDNEY.

The Holy Week services were carried out with due solemnity, commencing on Wednesday, when the Rev. D. Connell was the preacher. The Rev. Father Sullivan conducted Thursday's service, while the afternoon and evening services yesterday were led by the Revs. E. Sydes and J. Healy, S.J., respectively. The celebrant during the week was the Rev. E. Corish, assisted by the Revs. R. Dempsey, E. Sydes, and Fitzgibbon as deacons, and the Rev. L. Murphy as Master of Ceremonies. The choir rendered suitable music under the leadership of Mr. R. Hahn, Mr. R. Hahn, Jun., being at the organ. The men's choir also assisted at the Holy Week ceremonies. The blessing of the font takes place to-day, and High Mass will be celebrated on Sunday.

ST. AUGUSTINE'S, BALMAIN.

A full ceremonial service was held at St. Augustine's R. C. Church, Jane-street, Balmain, at 10 a.m. The service consisted of the "Adoration of the Cross," which was followed by a procession of the Blessed Sacrament, and the Mass of the Pre-sanctified, at which the Rev. D. O'Farrell, of St. Mary's Cathedral, was the celebrant; and the Rev. J. Peoples and J. Smith, deacon and sub-deacon respectively. At 3 p.m. the Stations of the Cross were recited, and in the evening the Rev. Father Sheehy, of St. Patrick's College, preached a sermon on the "Passion." Each of the services was largely attended.

PRESBYTERIAN.

ST. STEPHEN'S.

The Good Friday morning service at St. Stephen's Presbyterian Church, Phillip-street, was conducted by the Rev. George Duncan. All the pews were occupied.

In a contemplative sermon on St. Mark's account of the Crucifixion, the Rev. John Ferguson dwelt on the refusal of the suffering Christ to drink the vinegar offered him that his senses might be dulled and his body relieved of its quivering pain and agony. But Jesus, said the preacher, would not miss one moment of his earthly life. He would retain the power of his senses to the last possible moment that he might remain on the Cross as a mediator between God and man. And the crucifixion of Christ between two robbers was of mighty significance to us. Of all the apostles Paul alone had interpreted this circumstance in its most powerful significance. Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, and here, in his death agony, he died between two robbers. Truly he was in his place as the saviour of the lost. Then in the last darkness that broke upon His soul, He cried: "My God! my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" Here Christ felt deeply the sorrows of his people, and it came home to Him that God had given them up altogether. In his despair He found himself praying with them.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The Pitt-street Congregational Church was crowded with an unusually large attendance yesterday morning, when a united consecration and Communion service was held under the presidency of the chairman of the union, Rev. R. B. Reynolds, M.A., B.D. The preacher was the Rev. A. H. Austin, of Mosman, while the Rev. W. Page White, Rev. James Buchan, M.A., and Rev. W. Grahame also took part in the service, and in the Communion that followed.

Deacons from many of the suburban churches assisted in the distribution of the elements. Mr. Austin, who took as his text the words of St. John's Gospel, xviii., 7, "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth" dwelt on the need to-day of faith rather than experience as a basis of spiritual progress.

METHODIST.

THE LYCEUM HALL.

Services were held in all the Methodist Churches in the city yesterday, and, generally speaking, were well attended. At the Lyceum Hall a great congregation gathered to hear the rendering of J. H. Maunder's Lenten cantata, "Olivet to Calvary."

The soloists for the occasion were Mrs. W. Foster (soprano), Mr. Percy French (tenor), and Mr. Emil Sussmilch (baritone), while the chorus and orchestral portions were rendered by the C.M.M. choir and orchestra. The performance generally was a most creditable one. The chorus sang with precision and expression, and the orchestra was not, as is often the case, over-demonstrative. In the open chorus, "When o'er the Steep of Olivet," a restful atmosphere was well obtained, and in this number, and in "'Twas Night o'er Lonely Olivet," the choir gained its greatest success. The recitative "Like a Fair Vision," and the solo, "He was Despised," were admirably rendered by Mr. Percy French. Mr. Emil Sussmilch was a tower of strength to the cantata; "Come Unto Him," as sung by him, was delightful to listen to. Another fine number was "And When They Came to the Place." Mrs. W. Foster succeeded in her comparatively light task as soprano soloist. Mr. Livingstone C. Mote, M.A., was organist, Miss Vera Haigh led the orchestra, and Mr. W. I. B. Mote was conductor. The Rev. R. J. Williams had charge of the service.

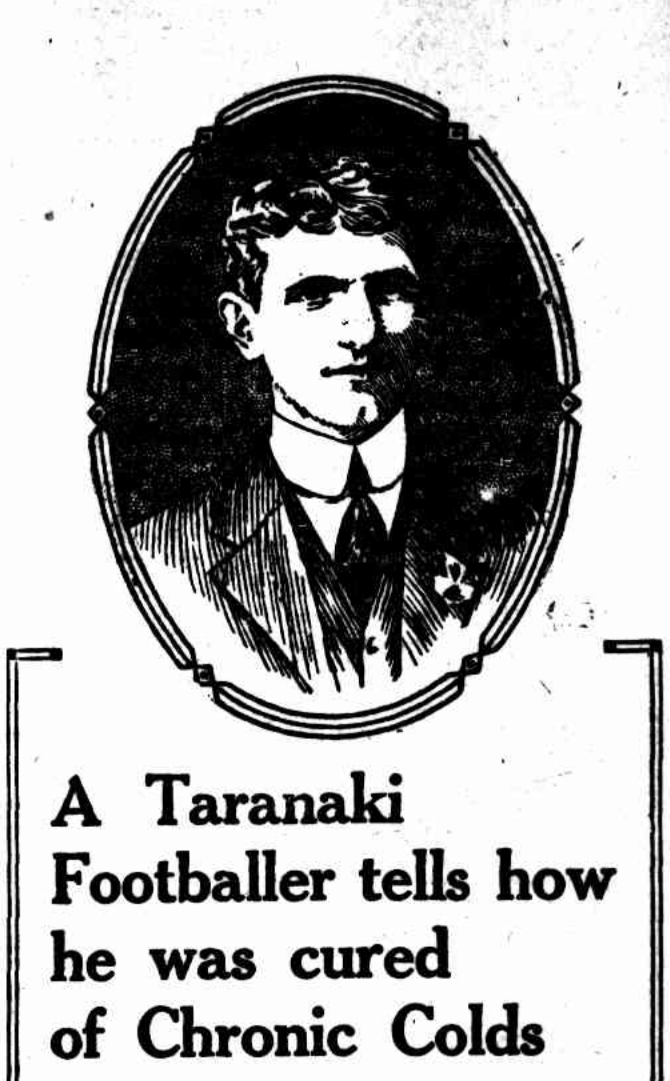
Last night a passion service was conducted by the Rev. P. J. Stephen. The speaker took his text from Isaiah, ch. 6, v. 8, and Acts, ch. 20, v. 10, and dealt with the call of a prophet and the call of an apostle. The subject broadly was the joy of a surrendered life. The speaker dealt with the call of Christ as an appeal to the heroic. What told, said the speaker, was not what a man professed, but what he was. The third point was that the cost of the surrendered life was heavy, but it was worth the prize. Christ never lowered his standard or lessened his demands in order to gain a recruit. He claimed much, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me."

BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Good Friday was availed of by a large number of Baptists for the holding of the seventeenth annual "Second Advent" convention, in the Baptist Church, Church-street, Newtown. Three sessions were held, that in the morning being presided over by the Rev. W. Lamb, who delivered the opening address, the subject of which was "The Taking Out of the Church." The Rev. George Menzies ("The Time of the End"), and the Rev. W. Michael Smith ("The Time of the Lord's Return") also spoke at this session. In the afternoon the Rev. Henry Clark was chairman, when the Rev. W. A. Southwell ("The Time of Israel's Restoration"), the Rev. T. E. Ashworth ("World-wide Blessing to the Gentile Nations"), and the Rev. W. Clough Black ("The Judgment of the Great White Throne") delivered addresses. The Rev. C. J. Tinsley presided at the final session, and the subjects dealt with were "The Facts of Christ's Coming Again" (the Rev. R. Goodman), "Its Inspiration to Life and Service" (Rev. W. Lamb), and "The Hope of His Coming Again—What it Means to His Church" (Rev. Stephen Sharp). There were large attendances at each session.

SALVATION ARMY RALLY.

A huge marquee, capable of accommodating 2000, was erected on Prince Alfred Park yesterday, adjoining Wirth's Circus. This was made the centre of a rally by the Salvation Army. Special importance attached to yesterday's service owing to the fact that Mrs. Commissioner Hay, wife of the chief officer of the Army in Australasia, was present, and preached at 11, 3, and 7.30 o'clock. Colonels M'Millan and Birkenshaw extended a welcome to Mrs. Hay on behalf of the Army in New South Wales. Another feature of the proceedings was the presence of the Army's silver brass band from Adelaide, which furnished excellent music, along with the Newtown and Redfern bands belonging to the Army.



A Taranaki Footballer tells how he was cured of Chronic Colds

"I suffered severely for twelve months from recurring coughs and colds caught whilst playing football. Nothing seemed to do me any good, and I was gradually falling into a decline, when it was my good fortune to have Lane's Emulsion brought to my notice. Three or four bottles cured me, and I cannot find words to express my thanks for such a rapid recovery. I seldom catch cold now, but whenever I do, a few doses of Lane's Emulsion invariably give me relief."
W. HOLMES, New Plymouth, N.Z.

Test for Yourself the Wonderful Curative Properties of Lane's Emulsion.

Don't neglect a simple cough or cold. It is a serious mistake to do so. It is such a short step to chronic disease—to Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh or Consumption.

Be well advised and act promptly. Lane's Emulsion will give you almost immediate relief, and if instructions are faithfully followed it will cure you.

The ingredients of Lane's Emulsion are in no way kept secret. They are pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil, to restore the wasted and weakened body; Beechwood Creasote, a stomachic healing factor and germicide that keeps the whole system free from health-destroying bacteria; Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, to construct muscle, nerve and ligament, and fresh eggs to act as an emulsifying agent and nourisher of the body.

These constituents repair worn tissues and check natural decline, tone up the digestive organs, aid assimilation, make rich red blood and strengthen every organ. Its medicinal virtues and curative powers give renewed health and strength, steady nerves and a clear head, an elastic step and a buoyant spirit. Thousands gratefully recommend it. Doctors prescribe it and also use it for the members of their own households. It is pleasant to take and children like it.

Just get a bottle of Lane's Emulsion to-day. It will not fail you. All chemists and stores stock it. Do not be deceived into accepting a substitute—get what you ask for. Prices, 2/6 and 4/6 per bottle. The larger bottle is the most economical as it contains more than two of the small ones. If not obtainable in your vicinity write to E. G. LANE, Box 864, G.P.O., Sydney, and we will see that you are supplied immediately.

"It's Famous Because it's Good"

which the people of Sydney have been guilty during this and previous years. To begin with, they have failed to make use of the advantages with which nature and the prescience of their forefathers have endowed them. Instead of adapting their lives to a semi-tropical climate, they continue in many respects to live as if they were still in England. Until a few years ago they thought nothing of the surf, and slept indoors throughout the year. They still continue to neglect their opportunities of having meals and enjoying music out of doors as they might do throughout the greater part of the summer. In the Domain Sydney has a piece of land which might be made one of the most beautiful parks in the world. At present it is so badly lighted that many people will rather go a long way round than cross it after dark, the one open air restaurant will hold only a very few people, and is not open after 8 o'clock, and there is no music in the evening at all. Each year a few people attempt to bring about the few changes by which the Domain might become a great civic asset, but their zeal very soon dies before the inertia of the authorities. The only park in the city under the complete control of the municipal council is fairly well lighted, and is provided with a band on certain evenings a week during the summer. But the accommodation for listeners is absurdly inadequate. There is space for a few in a large bear pit surrounding the band stand, but the bulk of them must sit on the ground and submit to be covered by dust. That these concerts are attended at all is another proof that Australians are among the most long-suffering of men.

The present state of the Domain, of Hyde Park, and of the other city parks would convince any stranger that the largest city in Australia is devoid of any rational civic pride. There is a kind of civic pride which is satisfied by hearing that Sydney is the gateway to the East, and will very soon have a million inhabitants. It is the same spirit which induces Englishmen to compare Uganda with Germany, and to indulge in the form of boasting known among Americans as "hot air." But, compared with the well-reasoned and practical ardour of municipal reformers in the principal cities of Great Britain, such as Birmingham, Manchester, Leeds, or Glasgow, it is of no value whatever. The stranger who was not convinced by the state of our parks would certainly yield after discovering the state of our roads. To say that a faulty system is the cause of their disrepair is to raise some doubt as to who is most to blame, without in any way clearing the reputation of the city. The facts remain indisputable. On the southern side of the harbour the state of the roads would disgrace a community with one-tenth of the riches of Sydney at its command. No distinction can be drawn between the richer and poorer suburbs. The Darling Point-road is among the worst in the State. Unquestionably the many changes of which Sydney is in need have been delayed by the division of control among a number of authorities. Each one is able to lay the responsibility on another. But the most needed change does not depend on any alteration of the laws. Our most urgent need is to awaken a spirit of impatience among the citizens, so that they will refuse to tolerate the existing state of things. Such a change can be brought about only by a few persons who persist in making themselves objectionable to all the forces of inertia. "Those who are dissatisfied are the sole benefactors of the world." The civic reformer must content himself with having a city instead of the State or the Commonwealth for his stage. But he can comfort himself with the thought that his efforts, though they may not bring him so much fame, will probably add a great deal more to the health and comfort of his fellow-citizens than those of the statesman. Happily there have been signs that the spirit which appeared fourteen years ago in Sydney is likely to appear again in face of a fresh set of circumstances. The dispute now raging round the Moreton Bay fig trees in Macquarie-street is a sign of a hitherto unsuspected interest in the beauties of the city. The futile dispute between town and country will have done good service if it has impressed on the people of Sydney their duty to make the city worthy of its position as capital of the State.

THE FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

The Federal Parliament meets next week for a session which, as far as anything human is certain, must end in a deadlock and a dissolution. The deadlock may not come at once, but it must come when the legislation which was rejected by the Senate last session is sent up and rejected or put aside again. The Parliament of the Commonwealth is not provided with any means similar to the Parliament Act in Great Britain for overcoming a deadlock. The only solution that Australia possesses is that, when the Upper House rejects a measure which is sent to it for the second time, the Governor-General "may" grant a double dissolution and ensure—as far as is possible under the Constitution—that not only the Lower House, but also the Senate shall do what the people wants. It is necessary to add "as far as possible" because it is not possible under the Australian Constitution for the people to have its own way in all circumstances as it now is under the British Constitution. The Governor-General may grant a dozen double dissolutions without ever getting at the will of the people. When everything is done that can be done under the Australian Constitution to make the will of the majority prevail, the Senate may still come back from a general election opposed to the popular will. That is because the Senate is not supposed to represent the majority of people, but only the majority of States. If the three less populous States happen to have a majority of electors opposed to the majority in the Commonwealth, they can obstruct legislation to any extent they please, and under the Constitution there is only the joint sitting to remedy this.

However, the nearest approach that can be obtained to enabling the people to get their will done when the two Houses differ is the provision for a double dissolution. If that does not ensure the Senate—as well as the Lower House—being representative of the people, it at least goes as near to ensuring it as is possible under this Constitution. At the worst, a double dissolution is only an attempt to find out what the people wants—an imperfect attempt, but still the best that is permitted by the Constitution. How Mr. Fisher, of all men, can object to that attempt being made at the present time, when the business of Australia is entirely blocked by the House which does not profess to represent the will of the majority of the electors, is one of those riddles which no one outside of politics can pretend to understand. Politicians do somehow contrive to satisfy themselves, when they apparently turn all their principles temporarily upside down, that they are acting perfectly consistently with their life-long beliefs and standards. We have seen the leader of the British Labour party standing out indignantly for the right of the British Government to interfere with the Ministry of a self-governing Dominion instead of leaving the people of that Dominion to settle with its Ministry, if it so pleased, itself. And presumably in much the same way Mr. Fisher may satisfy himself that he is perfectly consistent in objecting to a double dissolution. The only comment that rises in the brain of a layman is: "What is he afraid of? Does he fear that a different sort of Senate will be elected?" That, of course, is not Mr. Fisher's reason. It would be the last heresy a truly democratic leader could possibly be guilty of—to object to the re-election of a Labour Senate because he suspected that the people might possibly desire fewer Labourites.

However, whether Mr. Fisher objects or not, the double dissolution will presumably come and the two parties will go to the country. There is a theory which is not, we are aware, in favour with politicians, but which rather appeals to the electors of the country, that the electors judge between the parties on their merits. The favourite theory of politicians, that they will be judged by what they say about one another, has not been altogether sustained by some of its results in recent times; and possibly the politicians of all parties will now be more ready to believe that the elector has even more intelligence than has always been shown by some of those addressing him; and that what interests him is not what they say about the other party, but what they are going to do themselves. There are signs that the Federal Liberal leaders have some real grasp of this principle. Even within the last few days there have been announced what seem likely to become items in a really vigorous and active policy—a big national Australian policy such as the Liberal policy ought to be, which will give the people of Australia some heart in facing its task of developing this continent. The settlement of the long-standing deadlock over the Murray waters is an achievement very greatly to the Government's credit, and it has set before Australia what is probably the biggest scheme of development ever undertaken here. The promise of £150,000 yearly towards immigration, and of steps towards taking over of the immigration work in London, has practically solved a problem which has been calling for solution since the foundation of the Commonwealth. The great outstanding question of the development of the Northern Territory has not yet been decided, because the Minister for External Affairs has not yet produced his policy. But the broad, statesmanlike plans which have been evolved in these other two matters give ground for believing that the Northern Territory policy, when it is announced, will be comprehensive, and bold and statesmanlike also. There is no question of the Prime Minister's capacity, and it may be hoped that when the Government has had time to consider all branches of its policy a programme may be produced which will give the Australian people something to look forward to. Australians will not greatly worry whether those measures would be advocated by the other party also, and we should advise Ministers not to trouble about it either. In defence and in many matters of development the policy of the two parties is probably almost identical. That is so much the better for the country. What the country wants is to be developed. Let Liberal politicians explain what they are going to do, irrespective of whether their rivals follow or differ from them. For that is the criterion by which the bulk of the electors will judge between them.

IRISH CRISIS.

GOUGH DOCUMENT.

EX-MINISTER EXPLAINS.

ARMY AND CIVIL POWER.

LONDON, April 10.

Colonel J. E. B. Seely, ex-Secretary of State for War, in addressing his constituents at Long Eaton, Derbyshire, last night, stated that during the recent crisis the Conservative newspapers went mad, and tried to make the country and the army think that a great plot was being engineered to overwhelm Ulster and shoot down enough people in order to make the others conform to the Government's will.

The Government, he declared emphatically, had never conceived such a wicked thing.

There was a great Liberal principle that the army must never be used except to support the civil power, and to enable the civil power to exercise its duty.

"When the Ulster crisis passes," he said, "there will remain the question of how far the Government is entitled to use force to repress political opposition. If I had to stand alone I would say that in no circumstances, and under no provocation, should we ever depart from that sound rule of liberty that the army can only be used in the last resort, and then only to the extent required to protect the lives of citizens.

"I told Brigadier-General Gough this, and I explained that the army was bound to obey all lawful orders. But as the army had got it into its head that the Government was contemplating an unlawful action, I told him in good set terms that this was not so. Brigadier-General Gough then said that he would obey all lawful commands, and the interview ended."

Regarding the document given to Brigadier-General Gough, Colonel Seely said:—"It was quite impossible for my colleagues to write what I had said, as the document was incomplete when it left them. I added the phrases without the remotest idea that I was dealing unfaithfully with my colleagues. But the situation became intolerable when the document was claimed as a trophy."

He added that all the wild stories about the King intervening in the crisis were untrue. His Majesty never knew of the document given to Brigadier-General Gough until the day after.

HUNT MEETING CANCELLED.

The meet of the Carlow hunt has been cancelled, owing to the Nationalists protesting against military officers, "the enemies of Home Rule," riding over their land.

MODERNISM.

A BISHOP'S PROTEST.

"MUST BELIEVE IN MIRACLES."

LONDON, April 10.

The Right Rev. Charles Gore, Bishop of Oxford, in an open letter to the clergy, deals severely with modernist views on the New Testament miracles.

He declares that it is absolutely necessary that the Bishops should discountenance any man continuing to exercise his ministry, who disbelieves in miracles.

He accuses the Evangelicals of threatening disruption by their growing co-operation with the non-Episcopals, and declares that the Anglican Communion can never recognise a federation with other Protestant bodies, nor can it celebrate open communion.

"The Church must, therefore," he says, "be left standing apart from any general Protestant federation."

The extremists in the Catholic movement, he adds, make it difficult to give any intelligent reason why they are not Roman Catholics; nevertheless, there is no call for Anglicans to forego a belief in purgatory or the invocation of the Saints.

PANAMA TOLLS.

"DISTRUST AND DISLIKE."

UNITED STATES AND EUROPE.

WASHINGTON, April 9.

Senator Lodge, addressing the Senate on the subject of the repeal of the exemption of United States coastwise vessels from payment of the Panama Canal tolls, asserted vigorously the right of the United States to exempt her shipping, but declared that it was necessary to respect the opinions of other nations.

The distrust, and even the dislike, with which the United States was regarded abroad, he said, obliged the country to give way. The outcry about subserviency to Great Britain, however, was hardly worthy of consideration. The United States was too powerful to be subservient to anyone.

THE PRESIDENT'S OPTIMISM.

WASHINGTON, April 10.

President Wilson is more confident than ever that the proposal to repeal the exemption clauses of the Panama Tolls Act will be carried.

He asserted yesterday:—"I am fully aware of the animus against my action, but I think it is likely to prove a boomerang."

AUSTRALIAN SPORT.

A TRIBUTE.

BY NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

LONDON, April 9.

Representing Australian sporting associations, Mr. Gordon Inglis yesterday entertained at luncheon Sir Ronald Munro-Ferguson, Governor-General designate of Australia. The gathering included Captain Collins (official Secretary to the Commonwealth in Britain), Sir John M'Call (Agent-General for Tasmania), Mr. Logan (captain of the Thames Rowing Club), Mr. Doust (the well-known Australian tennis player), Mr. R. L. Baker (the Sydney boxing promoter), and other sportsmen.

Sir Ronald Munro-Ferguson, in responding to the toast of his health, emphasised the fact that open-air sport in the Commonwealth was so clean and fair that he felt keenly interested in every field game there, and would do his utmost to stimulate interest in them. As far as horses were concerned, his interest was as a breeder and hunting man; but he was taking to Australia many of his grandfather's English racing trophies.

IMPERIAL DEFENCE.

LONDON, April 9.

The Secretary of State for Home Affairs, Mr. R. M'Kenna, replying to Mr. Norton Griffiths in the House of Commons, stated that the Government did not intend to deal with the proposed Imperial Advisory Senate at the next Imperial Conference.

He added that the Government's more immediately practical proposals regarding the representation of the oversea Dominions on the Defence Committee had been generally accepted by the Dominions.

SIR GEORGE REID.

LONDON, April 10, 1.25 p.m.

Sir George Reid, High Commissioner for Australia, arrived at Plymouth this morning on his return from the Commonwealth.

TASMANIA.

CONSTITUTIONAL CRISIS.

HOBART, Friday.

The political situation remains unaltered. The Labour Ministry, having accepted office on the conditions laid down by the Governor, that there should be an immediate dissolution of Parliament, and that a new House of Assembly should be elected before the end of May, has now repudiated the conditions.

The Assembly passed a resolution protesting against the action of the Governor, and asking that the whole matter should be referred to the home authorities, and then forthwith adjourned till June 30.

The Premier (Mr. Earle) stated that he had received no further communication from the Governor on the matter. It is understood that the matter at issue between the Governor and his Ministers was referred to at yesterday's meeting of the Executive Council in an informal way.

MINERS' PROTEST.

ZEEHAN, Friday.

The State Council of the Mine Employees' Association to-day carried the following resolution:—"That this meeting of the Tasmania executive of the F.M.E.A. protest against the King's representative, Sir Ellison M'Cartney, dictating terms to the present or any Government, as we consider it is no part of his duty to frame a policy, but to allow a Government to meet the House untrammelled by any unconstitutional restriction as laid down by the Governor of the State."

DECK HANDS.

AN INCREASE OF THIRTEEN SHILLINGS.

EASTER DEMAND.

A year ago yesterday the regular ferry services of Sydney were dislocated, and culminated in a great hold-up of the whole of the northern suburbs traffic. As far as can be learned, no such scheme was in contemplation for this Easter, but it was a coincidence that it was left until the eve of Good Friday for a deputation, representative of the Firemen's and Deckhands' Union, to wait upon the general manager of the Sydney Ferries, Limited, to make a request to have the wages of deck hands (over 21 years of age) increased from 35s to 48s—the latter being the minimum prescribed in Mr. Justice Heydon's living wage judgment.

Mr. Mackenzie met the deputation in a good spirit, and stated that the increase would be granted as from and including the now-current week. He agreed also to pay 1s 6d per hour for work done on Sundays and holidays, and for overtime.

No reference was made respecting the firemen, but their case will be presented by the union separately.

AN OLD TRADER.

DERWENT REACHES HALF-CENTURY.

Few steamers nowadays have half a century of regular trading behind them, but this is the record which the coastal trader Derwent has just achieved in the Australian trade.

The Derwent is now one of the minor units of the fleet of cargo-carriers belonging to the Australian Steamships, Ltd., and although she has now attained an age of 50 years, she is still running regularly between Sydney, Port Kembla, and Newcastle.

The Derwent is an iron steamer of 459 tons, and few who see her steaming up the harbour nowadays with a cargo of coal from Newcastle could realise that she was once a crack passenger liner. She was built in 1864 by A. and J. Inglis, Glasgow, and originally came out to Australia for the Tasmanian Steam Navigation Company, afterwards being taken over by the Union Steamship Company. In those days she was the principal passenger steamer running between Melbourne and Launceston. Her speed then was about 13 knots an hour, which was considered very fast.

New vessels of greater size soon replaced the Derwent in the Tasmanian passenger service, and she was eventually in the Queensland service. She was engaged in this trade when the present owners purchased her and placed her in the Victorian coastal trade between Melbourne, Warrnambool, Port Fairy, and Portland.

When the Electrolytic Refining and Smelting Company of Australia opened its works at Port Kembla the old Derwent was specially fitted up for the carriage of copper. She is now kept busy in this trade, and occasionally runs to Newcastle for a cargo of coal. Although fifty years old, the Derwent is said to be still very solid in the hull, and is likely to last for many more years in active service.

MAN SHOT.

CHIEF OFFICER COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Wilhelm Wriedt, 26, chief officer of the barque Cavour, appeared at the police court yesterday on a charge of having shot at Antone Acquila with intent to murder him on April 5 last. Mr. H. V. Harris, of Harris, and Westcott, appeared for the defendant.

Dr. Arthur Grieves said that he saw Acquila aboard the ship, and examined a wound over the right eye. He took the man to the hospital, and operated upon him. The brain was much lacerated by pieces of bone. The bullet was not within reach of the wound, and had not been abstracted. He did not know if Acquila would recover.

Hermann Thomburns, steward, stated that he saw Acquila shortly after 11 o'clock on Saturday night. He was awfully drunk, and wanted to see the mate. Witness told him to get out of the cabin, and Acquila then struck witness. They fought for about a minute, and after that Acquila went away. He then returned with a piece of square timber, and hit the mate's door with it two or three times. He threw the timber and a stone through the port hole into the mate's room. The mate told him to go forward, and get into his bunk. The mate then left his room and went on deck carrying a rifle against his right leg. Witness noticed Acquila looking towards the mate, with a stone in his hand. Witness took the stone from Acquila. Both the mate and Acquila approached each other. The mate took the rifle to frighten Acquila, and held it up towards him. Acquila lifted his hand above his head as if to hit the mate with a knife, while he caught hold of the muzzle of the gun with his left hand. After the shot Acquila fell on deck. A few minutes later he got up and staggered to the forecastle. He was then taken to the captain's cabin, and later to the hospital.

Mr. Harris asked that the defendant be discharged. The evidence for the prosecution showed that not only was there no case to answer, but that no offence had been committed. He thought the Attorney-General would never file a bill in a case like the present one.

Accused pleaded not guilty to the charge, and reserved his defence. The magistrate committed him for trial at the Quarter Sessions to be held on May 19 next.

A BOLT.

AT THE ROYAL SHOW

TWELVE INJURED.

HORSE'S MAD GALLOP.

A bolting horse careering madly round the Showground yesterday morning was responsible for twelve people being injured.

It appears that the animal, a blood mare, bay colour, was being put into its box in the horse section, when the noise of a motor car startled it, and it dashed away without even a bridle on it at a gallop along the road skirting the ringside.

People were coming into the ground in thousands, and the maddened animal, urged on rather than hindered by the endeavours of people who tried to stop it, charged in amongst them, knocking down and trampling over those in the way.

The more fortunate ones rushed away, and some in their desire to avoid disaster knocked others over. A serious panic was threatened.

In its tracks the horse left a number of men and women lying on the ground injured. It continued to charge through paths and across roads, until it reached the open space between the Federal and Suttor pavilions. Here it rushed at a solid mass of people, engaged in watching the ring events.

The effect of the animal charging in this fashion was disastrous. Many of the people were knocked over, while others in trying to escape were crushed in the stampede.

The animal, becoming more maddened, charged the fence on the southern side of the Suttor Pavilion, and became entangled in the wire netting that surmounts it.

Freeing itself, it came back amongst the crowd, doing further damage.

Efforts to stop it were all in vain. The horse passed the "Herald" office twice, went up on to the hill where the Agricultural Hall is built, then made its way along the road around the ring, passed the council's building, eventually being pulled up in one of the cattle pavilions.

AMBULANCE BUSY.

In the meantime the Civil Ambulance men were hard at work attending to the injured, and many stretchers were brought into requisition. The injured were hurried away to the casualty room of the brigade. Here it was realised that the accident had indeed been serious, and the sufferers were speedily attended to in the limited space of the room.

No fewer than twelve people received attention, and it is believed that a great many more who were not attended to by the brigade received injuries of a minor nature.

The following is a list of those who had their wounds dressed at the ambulance room:—

WM. BROWN, Henry-street, Randwick, wound on head.

J. BRADY, Montgomery-street, Kogarah, wound on forehead.

GEO. SMITH, 100 Castlereagh-street, wounds on head.

FRANK SMITH, 100 Castlereagh-street, wounds on head, and injuries to body.

CHAS. BRYANT, 21 Challis-avenue, Potts Point, abrasion right hand and forehead, bruise on hip.

NINIAN SCOTT, printer, Arden-street, Coogee, wound on nose, fractured collarbone.

W. DAVIS, 43 Walker-street, Redfern, kick in abdomen.

CHAS. WESTON, Parramatta-road, lacerated wound on right forearm.

ALF. SMIDT, Miller-street, North Sydney, contused wound on left knee.

JEAN PERT, 43 Sutherland-street, St. Peters, injury to leg.

ROSALIE TULK, 43 Sutherland-street, St. Peters, injury to head and left arm.

William Davis, aged 23, of 43 Walker-street, Redfern, who received a kick in the abdomen, was placed in W Ward at Sydney Hospital, but his condition is not serious.

The following were treated at Sydney Hospital and then allowed to return home:—George Smith, 48, stableman, of 100 Castlereagh-street, Redfern, lacerated cut on the ear; Frank Smith, his son, aged 12, of the same address, injuries to rib and scalp wound; Ninian Scott, aged 33, printer, of Elba, Arden-street, Coogee, fractured clavicle and abrasions.

PLUCKY EFFORTS.

Many of the people who were knocked over had their backs to the animal when they were struck. Mr. George Smith and his son Frank were knocked over near one of the side shows. They were walking with their backs to the horse. Some people attempted to intercept the animal by throwing up their hands, and the animal practically jumped on Mr. Smith and his son.

Mr. W. Davis pluckily endeavoured to stop the animal, and received a kick in the abdomen. Miss Pert and Miss Tulk were both knocked down and had a hazy recollection of how it happened.

The horse pushed its way into one or two stands of exhibits, damaging them and causing considerable consternation among the occupants.

The owner of the horse was Mr. A. V. Hitchcock, of Camperdown. Just previous to it bolting it had been competing in the ring in the "business order cart" class.

Among the callers at the Ambulance room were Sir Francis Suttor, president of the R. A. Society, and Mr. Andrew Fisher, M.P. The former expressed the sympathy of the council of the Royal Society with the injured.

LABOUR PARTY.

THE FAILURE IN VICTORIA.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Victorian Political Labour Councils' conference was opened at the Trades Hall to-day. About 178 delegates being present, including Dr. Maloney, M.P., and Senator Barker, who represented the Federal Parliament.

The president, Mr. George Mead, in his address, said they had not been as successful in country districts as they ought to have been, and he attributed the failure to two causes: (1) The fact that trades union activity in Victoria was practically confined to Melbourne; (2) the fact that the political Labour Council was endeavouring to manage its affairs from an office in Melbourne, which could not be in effective touch with the country, and never would be until an organiser was appointed to inaugurate new branches.

Referring to Federal politics, Mr. Mead said they were threatened with a double dissolution by the Liberals, but if his reading of constitutional authorities were correct, then the only chance of this coming about was for a Governor-General to be utterly devoid of constitutional knowledge, or for him to give a biassed opinion in interests of a class, which he did not think likely to happen in Australia.

STATE FINANCE.

TREASURERS' CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Premier (Mr. Watt) intimated yesterday that, in all probability, Mr. Holman would arrange for the Commonwealth and State Treasurers to meet in conference in Sydney early in May to consider two questions relating to the financial operations of the Commonwealth and States which were settled at the Premiers' conference. Mr. Watt will represent Victoria.

BEEF TRUST.

STRAIGHT TALK BY MR. IRVINE.

BILL BEING PREPARED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Speaking at Warrnambool last evening, the Federal Attorney-General (Mr. Irvine) said a great deal had been heard from orators in the Labour party about trusts, combines, and monopolies. If some power were to destroy all trusts and monopolies in Australia, the Labour party would be politically bankrupt. He would give a number of facts about the beef trust, but, first of all, what was meant by the words "trust, combine, and monopoly?"

CRIMINAL CONSPIRACIES.

"Only the previous evening, Mr. Brennan, M.P., one of the most intelligent members of the Labour party, had stated that he felt himself driven to the conclusion that the most patent and criminal monopoly of all was land monopoly, and that the system of private ownership was the most immoral possible to be imagined. Mr. Brennan had also said that the question as to whether all trusts and combines could not be coped with by freeing the land was worthy of consideration. It would be seen that the word monopoly according to one of the cleverest and most honest of the Labour party precluded every man from the right to occupy his own land.

"Combines were in no sense confined to capitalists," Mr. Irvine continued, "but existed among all classes. The Labour party, when combines existed among capitalists, looked upon them as criminal conspiracies, but among its own ranks the party regarded them as a weapon for the elevation of humanity. The beef trust might prove of vital importance to Australia, but the people should not lose their heads over the subject. So far, the operations of the company had been beneficial. The company, however, has a history, and it might make us view its operations with a little suspicion.

When the operations of the meat trust in America came to be considered harmful, a charge of criminal conspiracy was launched against the three companies forming it. The charge failed, and subsequently civil proceedings were launched to obtain the dissolution of that ring. The three companies concerned then said, "Don't shoot, we will come down," and voluntarily agreed to dissolve and dispose of their assets. Now, one of the companies was commencing operations in Australia, and one could not help being awake to the fact that, if it pursued the same course as elsewhere, detriment to Australia would result, and steps would have to be taken to meet the trouble when it arose.

CONSTITUTIONAL POWER.

Mr. Irvine pointed out that, first of all, our powers of dealing with companies that carry on their operations on such a wide scale are limited by the terms of the Constitution.

Even under the existing Federal Constitution, however, vast power was possessed in connection with trade to countries outside Australia, and he believed that the Federal Parliament could deal effectively with the question if ever it presented similar features to those which prevailed in other countries.

Mr. Groom, the Minister for Customs, had had this subject under careful observation and the Ministry would be prepared to ask Parliament, as soon as it was in a position to ask for anything, for the necessary powers to meet this evil if ever it presented itself in a similar form to that in the Argentine.

The main mischief from which Australia might suffer, if it did suffer, would be where its markets were, in London, as Australia was the producer of a comparatively small proportion of the meat consumed in Great Britain. In the bills which Mr. Groom had outlined, and which were under the consideration of the Ministry, was the power of co-operation with the Government of Great Britain, and with any other country that was interested in taking effective methods of meeting this evil, not merely in Australia, but in every place where it was necessary to deal with it. (Applause.)

THE PAPACY.

DELEGATE TO AUSTRALIA.

A NEW POSITION.

The news contained in our Rome cablegram in yesterday's issue, to the effect that Monsignor Ceretti had been appointed Apostolic Delegate for Australia, Oceania, and New Zealand has been as much a surprise to the Roman Catholic authorities in Sydney as it was to the ordinary public.

A representative of the "Herald" who saw a number of prominent Roman Catholic clergymen yesterday, found that they had no special information to offer either as to the appointment or as to the identity of Monsignor Cerretti. One well-known priest, who has a knowledge of Italian topics said the name was not familiar to him. The fact that he had ben sent from the Washington Delegation, however, showed that he must be an ecclesiastic of erudition, and one who would be in a position to deal effectively with any matters coming before him.

Apostolic delegations are at present established in Canada and New Foundland, Constantinople, Cuba, and Porto Rico, East Indies, Egypt, and Arabia, Greece, Mexico, Persia, Philippine Islands, Syria, Turkey in Asia (Mesopotamia, Kurdistan, and Asia Minor), and the United States. Monsignor Cerretti is, of course, the first to be appointed to Australasia. There are instances of the appointment of delegates by the Popes from the Fifth Century onwards, such delegations having become more frequent from the pontificate of Gregory I., who occupied the Papal Chair between 590 and 604. Delegates appointed by the Popes are ordinarily ecclesiastical dignitaries or cathedral canons, and when they are sent to consider any special case it must be heard in a city or place of some religious distinction. In individual instances the Pope may send a layman as delegate. The present instance, of course, differs from those in which a delegate is invested with the Pope's authority to settle a particular complaint or make some special inquiry.

Monsignor Cerretti's appointment means that he will be resident in Australia. In the United States Cardinal Sartolli was the first Apostolic Delegate, to be succeeded by Cardinal Martinelli. This Delegation was established in Washington, and subsequently Canada was honoured by a similar appointment. Australasia's Delegate comes from the staff in Washington in much the same way as a member of a consular corps might be sent to be head of another embassy.

One well-known local priest pointed out that it showed the growing importance of Australasia in the eyes of the Vatican. Here we were cut off by so many thousands of miles from Rome that it was recognised how useful it would be to have a high dignitary of the Church on the spot, invested with powers to settle the various matters that were certain to crop up, and to look after the interests of the Church. For example there were the Ne Temere decree, relating to mixed marriages; daily communion and first communion regulations; the maxima cura, by which a priest in charge of a mission could not be removed unless for some breach of canonical law; and other laws relating to the discipline, as apart from the doctrines taught by the Church. Points in connection with such recent regulations as these would be cropping up, not to speak of other different matters, which an Apostolic Delegate could settle. However, added the clergyman, he was glad to see that the new appointment had been made, as it was a proof that His Holiness recognised the great work that the Church was doing on this side of the world. Monsignor Cerretti could be certain of receiving a hearty welcome when he landed on our shores.

ARMED BURGLARS.

ENCOUNTER WITH THE POLICE.

DOZEN REVOLVER SHOTS.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

Nearly two dozen revolver shots were exchanged by the police and burglars at about 2 o'clock on Good Friday morning in Southwark.

The scene of the alarming encounter was at the soap and candle factory of Messrs. E. Kitchen and Sons, Winwood-street, where the intruders were betrayed by their preparations to gain admission to the firm's strongroom.

Constables Conacher and Lindsay unflinchingly faced a quartette of armed law-breakers of a particularly dangerous type. They were patrolling the Port-road, Hindmarsh, when suddenly they heard the report of a tremendous discharge. The officers were aware that the factory contained a large safe, and they immediately surmised that thieves were engaged in their nefarious occupation.

A local resident, alarmed by the explosion, called out across the street: "What are you doing?" Conacher answered: "It's all right, we are police officers. What is the matter?" Simultaneously, one of the cracksmen partially opened the office door of the factory. Constable Lindsay hurried to the rear to intercept anyone at that point. A side window was smashed by one of the criminals, and Constable Conacher jumped over the fence and discharged a warning cartridge.

Three shots issued from the window. A little later the miscreants were heard hastening through the office.

Conacher sprang over the palings into the street, and observed a quartette of men leaving the office door, and run across Winwood-road towards Port Adelaide. Then they shaped their course along the river bank in the direction of the city, and disappeared.

They outpaced the police. During the pursuit the officers fired 11 times at the thieves, who answered with a number of shots.

The intruders obtained entrance to the factory by breaking the front door with a pick. They inserted a heavy charge of dynamite into the keyhole of the strongroom. The violence was so great that the front portion of the door was hurled into the office, and the inner part into the strongroom. There was a considerable quantity of debris on the floor.

Mr. James Gilbert, the manager, expressed the belief that very little would be found missing, although he could not say definitely until he had spoken to the cashier.

"DESECRATION."

BISHOP'S CONDEMNATION.

SHOW ON GOOD FRIDAY.

A protest against the holding of the Royal Agricultural Show on Good Friday was made yesterday in St. Andrew's Cathedral by Bishop Stone Wigg.

"To-day and to-morrow," he said, "the great cities of the English-speaking world (to mention no other), are resting from all but necessary labour, because the Lord Jesus Christ was put to death at the Passover season in the land of Judea, when Pontius Pilate was procurator, and Tiberius the reigning Caesar. On the face of it, it is astonishing that the great houses of human industries should be silent, and still because a meek, unresisting teacher was put to death nineteen centuries ago in an obscure province of the Roman Empire.

"All this is wonderful enough, but then there follows something which, if we were not so dulled to it by custom, and, if we were not so conspicuous as a race for want of imagination, which carries with it so often a perception of the seemly and the congruous, may well draw, as it did from a humorous French critic of the habits of England, the remark:—'The English celebrate the day of the Redeemer's death by indulging in the pastime of knocking down cocoanuts.'"

"The programme for the ring events of the Royal Show as published in this morning's paper, and the advertisement mentions nothing else—shows that the State secures the workers a day free from toil that they may observe this solemn anniversary in a way, from which, if not a sense of reverence, at least a sense of what is fitting and seemly, might save them. It is a rule, I believe, for all business firms in this city to give any of their employees leave from work to attend the funeral of some dear friend or relation. It can hardly be expected that such a kindly emotion would survive if persons so released from the claims of business, spent the time in pleasure instead of attending the solemn ceremony for which they were set free. It shows an imperfectly educated public opinion that this city, on which more than any other Nature has lavished her choicest blessings, should be the one Australian city that cannot, as all the others can, carry through an annual show without desecrating a holy season, without employing for one purpose what has been set apart for another. Gladstone was once asked to mention the keenest repartee he remembered hearing in the House of Commons. He told of one by Lord John Russell. A member had left the Government, and made a fierce attack upon it, speaking frequently of, and charging it with, the "cant of patriotism." Lord John replied: "The hon. member has said a great deal about the cant of patriotism, but his speech might be briefly described as the recant of patriotism." Protests against the continued holding of the show on Good Friday are met with references to the cant of religion, but such a practice itself amounts to the recant of religion."

"It is not easy," concluded Bishop Stone Wigg, "to watch beside the Cross when so many around us are spending the day in a way quite unsuggestive of Calvary. There is no disputing the fact that in every department of life the Christian has to face—not now the stake, the torture-rack, the cross—but the blurring of the distinctions between right and wrong, the difficulty as an individual in these days of collectivism in acting in any way different from his fellow men. Never was it harder to preserve a high standard and a high ideal, or to bring an acute and imperative conscience to bear on all the small yet vastly important decisions of daily life. At least, Good Friday in Sydney at the present time gives us a very clear-cut issue—where does our personal religion stand amid all the competing claims upon our time and thought? After all, it is better that a few should rise to a higher level of devotion by having to face such an issue, than that religious observance should be so colourless, so unemotional, that the Cross and the Crown of Thorns and the Spear-thrust do not find their place in the following of Christ."

TRANS-AUSTRALIAN LINE.

INCREASE OFFERED TO WORKERS.

PERTH, Thursday.

A meeting of the Trans-Australian Railway Workers' Union was held to-day, about 200 members being present. Consideration was given to the Government's offer to increase the minimum wage to 12s 6d per day, but strong opposition was shown to accepting an increase for one class of labour only.

It was resolved that consideration of the matter be postponed until the Government submitted a schedule of wages and conditions covering all classes of labour from the 60 to the 160 mile post, and from the depot to the 60 mile post.

BOATING TRAGEDY.

NEAR ST. KILDA.

FIVE MEN DROWNED.

A HEAVY SEA.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In stormy weather early this morning, when the wind was blowing at half hurricane force, an 18-foot sailing boat was overwhelmed about three-quarters of a mile from St. Kilda beach, and her occupants—five men—all perished.

The following is a list of the victims:—

WILLIAM FORD, married man, tramway employee, 396 Brunswick-street, East Brunswick.

LEWIS THOMAS, married, tramway employee, 235 Barkley-street, East Brunswick.

GRIFFITH WILLIAM TASKER, aged 35, single, boot clicker, 116 Barkley-street, St. Kilda.

ALFRED ERNEST TASKER, aged 27, single, boot clicker, 116 Barkley-street, St. Kilda.

JOHN LOWE, aged 45, carpenter, married, 53 Havelock-street, St. Kilda.

When the day broke there was a strong westerly wind blowing, and a heavy sea ran across the bay, breaking in great rollers upon St. Kilda beach. The day was certainly not one for going out in small boats, and F. Brookes, who has a boatshed at St. Kilda, was surprised when Ford and Thomas entered his shed at half-past 6 o'clock and asked him to let them have a boat. He did not consider it safe for them to go out, and refused to let them have a boat, but they were invited by the two brothers Tasker and Lowe, who were setting out in a private boat to join them, which they did.

WARNING DISREGARDED.

The five men, despite repeated warnings, sailed out into the bay on a fishing excursion. The journey was short, and came to a tragic end. The progress of the little boat was watched by anxious eyes from the shore, but she stood out steadily for about three-quarters of a mile without mishap, although tossed about like a cork upon the rollers.

Then the little craft was seen to go about, and it appeared as though its occupants had decided to return to shore. Hardly had they done so when a furious squall struck the boat broadside on.

For a moment or two she staggered. The jib was lowered and the mainsail was seen to be flapping about with the wind, and then the boat disappeared from view.

Some watchers from the jetty thought that they saw two people clinging to the overturned boat for a few minutes, but when glasses were brought to bear upon the spot there was nothing to be seen but the boat.

The Taskers were strong swimmers, and the elder of them was regarded as a champion mile swimmer.

When the alarm was given from the shore Mr. Brookes made an attempt to row out, but was driven back. Telephone messages were sent to the police and Ports and Harbours Department, and two motor boats were despatched to the scene.

They found the upturned boat, but no sign of any of the occupants.

HEARTRENDING SCENES.

During this time the painful task of breaking the news to the bereaved friends had been performed, and there were heartrending scenes at Brookes' Boatshed. Mr. Tasker, sen., whose two sons were lost, appeared upon the scene, as also did Mrs. Lowe and four of her six daughters. They were terribly griefstricken, and for long hoped against hope. In her hysteria one of the daughters ran down to the landing stage, and sprang into the water, apparently with the intention of trying to reach the overturned boat three-quarters of a mile away. She was seized and pulled back, and taken with her mother and sisters to her home.

The body of Thomas was washed up to-night.

LATE TRAINS.

WORSE THAN COACHING DAYS

GOULBURN, Friday.

At last night's council meeting, the Mayor (Alderman Betts) moved that a letter be written to the Railway Commissioners calling attention to the serious want of punctuality in the running of trains between Goulburn and Sydney, and urging that remedial steps be taken. He said the way trains had been run lately was disgraceful to the department. Time-tables were absolutely useless. He suggested that the matter should be taken up in other centres. The delivery of mails was affected by the late running of trains.

Alderman Knowlman said at the present time matters were no better than in the old coaching days. In fact, goods were delivered quicker in the old days.

Alderman Gilling complained of loss of time in the delivering of telegrams. The motion was carried unanimously.

BREEDERS' PROTEST.

The manner in which cattle for exhibition at the show was handled by the Railway Department was sharply discussed at the meeting of the New South Wales Breeders' Association yesterday. Numerous instances of delays, and bad treatment were mentioned, but the most glaring case was touched upon by Mr. W. C. Higinbotham, of Armidale. He stated that certain prize cattle were trucked at Armidale at 4 o'clock on Wednesday, and they did not arrive in Sydney until Friday. On reaching here they were held up in the yards for four hours, while some pigs were being loaded.

It was agreed to write to the department protesting against the delays, and suggesting that show cattle should at least be carried on fast goods trains.

DESMOND.

BLANKET OF BLUE RIBBONS.

OLD HORSE FAILS.

Desmond was beaten at the show yesterday. Worse still, he failed at a jump that a few years ago he would have achieved with consummate ease. To fill his cup of bitterness to the brim, the record high jump, which Desmond established for the show ground and has held good for many years, was beaten by an inch and a half or two inches by a young jumper that cleared 7ft.

The crowd generally cheers only the winners, but no horse on the Sydney show ground has ever received such a storm of applause as greeted the veteran when he failed. Desmond has been jumping practically all his life, although he has long since fallen into the sere and yellow. He is nearly 30 years of age. His accumulated wins would amount to a fortune, and his achievements constitute a long list. The old hero received an encouraging ovation when it was known that he would again enter to jump at the show. Years ago it was thought that he had earned a rest, but he entered for the high jump yesterday. He failed at the first effort—6ft 6in. The crowd still cheered tumultuously while Desmond repeated his old stage trick of calmly munching at the grass to signify his blasé indifference in the matter of show-jumping.

At the conclusion of the event Desmond did a round of the hunting jumps, decorated with a blanket composed of the enormous number of ribbons he has won in the past.

It seemed to the crowd that this performance indicated Desmond's farewell to the ring, for he received a series of ovations as he went round the course.

Perhaps, after all, he will enter for next year's show—if he is alive.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

At Easter more than at any other time of the year the people of Sydney are enabled to realise what are or what ought to be the functions of a capital city in Australia. The Show and the races between them furnish a reason or a pretext for a visit to Sydney to the man on the land, whatever his occupation or temperament. But, together they do not wholly account for the thousands of visitors who at present are crowding out every hotel and boarding house. This holiday is more attractive than any other because it comes at the end of the long and trying Australian summer. Women and children who for many months have lived through hot days and nights take this opportunity of coming to the seaside. After a year of the monotony of a country town, and of a life in which they have had to do all the work of the house, women are able for a few days to enjoy the amusements of the city and the luxury of seeing the work and worry of a home borne by someone else. Sydney people in the pr sence of these visitors for a moment the troubles of which they have plained every day. They find that for a time without servants seems a thing to people who have had no or baker or laundry to attend to wants. They think less of the forts of February and March when meet friends who would give half land for a north-easter and have to brace them into vigorous health. is natural that people who come to for a holiday should be in a tolerant and that their pleasure should evoke corresponding feeling in their hearts. their presence the most persistent becomes ready to admit that life in ney would be endurable but for its sures, and might be endurable at all if the footpaths were widened and hotels doubled in size.

At such a time and in such surround a dissentient voice, if it is heard makes a deeper impression by reason the contrast it offers to the prevail mood of satisfaction. Its hearers are pelled to ask themselves whether they doing their best for their visitors with resources at their disposal, and in pursu their inquiry they begin to whether they are doing their best themselves. They hold, in fact, those assizes of conscience which Johnson used to hold every Easter, instead of going into the country with friends, he would retire to bed meditate on his sins. This Easter friendly critic has pointed out through columns some of the sins of

UNDER FIRE.

ARTILLERY IN ACTION.

THE HOWITZERS.

BATTLE AT NATIONAL PARK.

Howitzers and eighteen pounders were in action all yesterday at National Park, and the hills echoed and re-echoed to the roar of artillery.

It was the show day of the Field Artillery, and no less than seven batteries performed their training manoeuvres under the critical eye of Sir Ian Hamilton, Inspector-General of the Oversea Forces.

A curious contrast was presented at National Park. On the heights the khaki-clad artillerymen were dashing through the scrub, wheeling the guns into action and filling the air with shrapnel and thunder. Down in the valley thousands of peaceful citizens rowed along the banks of the river, scarcely sparing a thought for the strenuous scenes being enacted above them.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.

An accident marred the day's proceedings. A gunner had his foot badly crushed in a gun carriage, and several bones were broken. A couple of others sustained a few bruises. But it might have been far worse, for big guns firing shrapnel are ticklish things to handle. There was nearly a catastrophe early in the afternoon, when the howitzers came into action. There is a pleasing fallacy that right in front of the howitzer is the safest place to be, for these ugly squat little cannon point skyward, and belch their huge projectiles high into the air so that they may fall on an enemy who may be hiding behind the hill a couple of miles away. A few shots were fired by this battery while Lieut.-Colonel Lenehan, accompanied by several officers and a couple of pressmen, were passing right in front of the battery about 60 yards distant. This was considered a safe distance, but just as they cleared the line there was a premature explosion. A faulty shell, instead of bursting about 20 seconds after being fired, exploded right as it left the muzzle of the gun. The shrapnel scattered, but no one was hurt. Had the shell been fired a minute earlier something might have happened. Later on one of the shots from an 18-pounder went wide and instead of landing on the enemy's position burst right in front of the blindage or bomb-proof shelter in which the markers were hiding.

SIR IAN HAMILTON.

The Inspector-General, accompanied by Lieut.-Colonel Patterson and Major Ashmore, arrived about noon, made an inspection of the camp, and then rode out to see the artillery in action. Lieut.-Colonel Lenehan's brigade, the 4th, did a splendid trek from Sydney. They left Victoria Barracks at about 9 o'clock on Thursday morning and before 6 in the evening the whole 25 miles had been covered, the horses fed, and the troops settled under canvas. Major Lucas was in charge of the march, and considering the big proportion of recruits and young trainees in the brigade, and remembering also the stiff heights to be scaled at the end of the journey, it was a very meritorious performance. Yesterday the 4th Brigade spent the day in general fatigue duties.

The Sixth, however, under Lieut. Col. Pearce, have been in camp for a week, and they put in a stiff day's training. This brigade is comprised of the 44th (Howitzer) Battery, under Major Rosenthal, the 17th (Albury) Battery, under Captain Sheilshear, the 16th (Wagga) Battery, under Major G. H. M. King, and the 18th (Young) Battery under Captain Thompson. Major Lynch is adjutant, and Lieut. Cunningham orderly officer. The 16th and 18th put in the day with battery manoeuvres. The other two batteries engaged in shot practice, repelling the advances of imaginary invaders. At the conclusion of the day's work Sir Ian Hamilton expressed to the camp commandant, Lieut. Col. Lenehan, his pleasure at seeing the Field Artillery manoeuvres, and complimented the men on their driving, and especially on the excellence of the discipline.

A hostile artillery force was observed taking up a position on Wattamalla Ridge, apparently covering the advance of a column moving on Sutherland. Major Rosenthal was sent forward to engage the battery from complete cover. So the 44th dashed through the scrub into action. While they were hidden behind the hill they opened a devastating fire on the enemy's guns. It would have taken an aeroplane to locate the howitzers. The battery commander took up his station in a clump of timber, and the field telephone transmitted his directions to the hidden howitzers. From behind the guns, whose iron lips were gaping skyward, the projectile could be plainly seen, just like a hot cross bun shot into space. Smaller and smaller it grew till the vision failed. But on the crest of the hill was the post of vantage. Following the roar of the discharge the shell could be heard screaming on its mission of destruction. Five, ten, fifteen, twenty seconds elapsed between the report and the explosion of the shrapnel over the enemy's position. Just above the targets, 3500 yards away, and looking like specks on the hillside, could be seen the bursting shells. Some seconds later the boom of the exploding shell came faintly back to the watchers on the hill. And where the shells landed the earth was scarred and rent, huge holes being torn by the force of the explosion.

The howitzers made good practice, and soon the enemy's cannon were silenced. The defenders then discovered that the invader had constructd a redoubt on Riddle Kop, so the howitzers limbered up, made another dash across country, and from a hidden position north of Camp Ridge once more hurled defiance and shrapnel at the invader. The enemy had enough. The invaders retired. When the battery once more began to move the Inspector-General said to the commander, "Let me see you cut through there, over that creek, and on to the hill." Off the battery went, crashing through scrub, rumbling down the hill, bumping over the rocky bed of the creek, scrambling up the ridge, and emerged, hot and panting, on the crest of the hill. "That's good," said Sir Ian. "That work is just as important as anything else. Artillery must be able to get over all sorts of country to get into position. That will do very well."

EIGHTEEN-POUNDERS' CANNONADE.

In the afternoon the Seventeenth (Albury) Battery put in some strenuous work, but their shooting was not quite up to standard. This only proves the old military axiom that, while tolerable infantry may be "licked" into shape in a week, it takes a couple of years to make a good artilleryman. Still, these young trainees shaped well, rode hard and drove straight. Besides the Inspector-General and staff, the shooting was witnessed by a large number of officers, including the State Commandant, Colonel Wallack, the Chief Instructor, Lieutenant-Colonel Dangar, the Camp Commandant, Lieutenant-Colonel Lenehan, Lieutenant-Colonel Pearce, Colonel J. A. H. Mackay, Lieutenant-Colonel Arnott, Major Lynch, Captain Matson, and Captain Donovan, A.A.M.C.

Information was received that a hostile column was moving in a westerly direction from Gibbon-road, and a battery of artillery was in position on the hill covering the enemy's advance. So the Albury Battery under Captain Sheilshear dashed into action, silenced the opposing guns, and then poured shrapnel on the advancing infantry 3450 yards away. The manoeuvring was good, the shooting only fair; but in this department every day should see improvement.

FEDERAL SESSION.

BEGINS ON WEDNESDAY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The second session of the fifth Federal Parliament will be opened by the Governor-General on Wednesday. It is unlikely that Lord Denman will again attend the Federal Parliament in a similar capacity, as he intends to leave on his return journey to England on May 13, his successor (Sir Ronald Munro-Ferguson) being expected to arrive on May 18. It is not expected that the session will last more than about two or three months. The principal items in the Speech will be two bills, on which the Ministry expects to be able to force a double dissolution, these being measures to restore the postal vote and to give equal opportunity to all by abolishing preference to unionists in Government employ.

AUSTRALIAN BOWLING CARNIVAL.

SINGLE-HANDED CHAMPIONSHIP.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The second Australian Bowling Carnival was begun at Brisbane to-day, with the single-handed championships of Australia. The first and second rounds were got through and out of 179 players who entered from all parts of the Commonwealth, Western Australia excepted, 64 are left in to participate in the third round to-morrow. The Queensland players performed rather creditably; to R. M. Gow fell the honour of defeating T. A. Williams, the three times champion of Ballarat, who was regarded as having an excellent chance of winning the event. In the second round Gow vanquished his opponent, and thus passed into the third round. Gould, who was in splendid form, accounted for W. G. Emerick, of Bundaberg, 21-7; R. Rankin, of Gympie, the present champion of Queensland, defeated Rankin; but was beaten by the Victorian veteran, E. Slatter. Another notable contest was that between J. Williams, for six years champion of Tasmania, and D. James, of Newcastle. Twenty-seven ends were played before the Tasmanian could claim victory by a narrow margin of two points.

THE CROWD.

CITY FOLK AND COUNTRY FOLK

AT THE SYDNEY SHOW.

A crowd is a crowd, and a show crowd is a show crowd, the world over; but a Sydney Show crowd is a Sydney Show crowd and nothing else.

The Sydney Show crowd is a crowd made up of some people from the city and its suburbs, and a great many people from the State of New South Wales. They don't only come from Newcastle and Maitland, from Bathurst and Orange, and Goulburn, but from Terramungamine, Bongongalong, Adjintoothbong, Merrywinebone, and Eunonyhareenyha, to say nothing of such well-known places as Dingo Creek and the Snowy River.

It is true that many of them live away out in the plains and in the forests and the mountains, and that they are apt to get a little bit confused when they get in the crowd at the Royal Show; but, as one of them put it yesterday, "We're used to getting in among a crowd of sheep, and thi' 'ere crowd's very like a lot of sheep, followin' one another around. You see, we just go with the crowd, and when we get back to where we started from we know exactly where we are."

THOSE WHO GET LOST.

That's why they don't get lost. There's no parting the members of a country family. None of the little ones get lost. It's only the city youngsters who, thinking they know their way around the showground better than their fathers and mothers do, get found by the police, or picked up by the ambulance. Of seven or eight children for whom inquiries were made at the handy police station on the ground yesterday, not one was from the country. They all belonged to Sydney and its suburbs.

"If a child's worth having," said the farmer's wife, as she watched a city urchin crawling under the legs of a draught horse, "it's worth taking care of, instead of playing at go-as-you-please."

And certainly her children looked as if they were well taken care of in all respects. It is difficult to estimate a Sydney show crowd, because you have to allow three city folk for every two from the country. It was a country farmer travelling with three other farmers in a tram yesterday, who said to the conductor: "It's all very well to say these seats are made for five, but they're not made for five of us!"

The weather continued beautiful yesterday—real show weather—and the crowd simply poured on to the ground. There were many thousands there in the morning, and in the afternoon the numbers were swollen to such an extent that the huge ground was a mass of human beings. From an aeroplane, about the only attraction, by the way, that has not been provided, it would have looked like a veritable beehive.

That is what good weather means to the show. Not that you could keep these country folk from the show even if it rained—they would still be there, like "the statty o' the outside o' Treddles'on Church," as Miss Poyser would say, "a-startin' an' a-smilin', whether it's fair weather or foul."

THE SMELL OF HAY.

There were many Mrs. Poysers there yesterday—Mr. and Mrs. and all the little Poysers. You meet them everywhere—especially in the Royal Agricultural Hall, where the district exhibits are, and over in the south-east corner, where the horses and the cows and the sheep, and the pigs are. They seemed to find this corner as if by instinct. Perhaps it was the smell of the hay that did it.

A little bit rough in their ways, perhaps, and their English not always of the best, they can teach us a lot about the things that matter most in this country. And they are not for ever drumming it into our ears (as the politician on the hustings does) that they are the backbone of the country, and that we in the city are simply a lot of parasites, who live on them. No; that is not their way. A politician was yesterday heard sympathising with their lot. "We do not know what the poor farmer has to put up with away in the backblocks," said he. "They are our mainstay, and whilst the rich people are living here in the city in the lap of luxury, the poor farmer is hard put to it to make ends meet."

See Mrs. Poyser turn on him—hear what she says:—"If everybody tried to do without house and home and with poor eating and drinking, I would like to know where the pick o' the stock and the corn and the best new milk cheese would have to go? It stands to sense as that can't be the right religion. I know as farming is puttin' money into your pocket wi' your right hand, an' takin' it out wi' your left, an' there's taxes to pay an' all that, but don't discourage the rich city folk, who buy what we have to sell. We live on the land, an' so long as they live on the fat o' the land, so much the better for us."

Here Mr. Poyser put in a word or two about rural workers' unions, and "black" chaff, and other cognate questions, but he spoke more in sorrow than in anger. Beyond saying that the farmer's lot was hard enough to bear without these additional burdens, and questioning what the world was coming to, he was not unduly aggressive.

AN ARGUMENT, AND WHAT IT LED TO.

Far more aggressive were the two country men who were disputing the respective merits of their exhibits near by. Our country cousins are always as polite as can be to city folk who "know their way about town," but they delight in crossing swords with one another.

"Better'n mine?" shouted the man from the Devil's Waterhole to the man from Jerry's Corner. "Why, it's the rottenest exhibit I ever seen!"

There was a flash in the eye of Jerry's Corner that boded no good to the Devil's Waterhole. He handed his swag—his collection of divers samples from the Hall of Industries, and the literature he had gathered, from the four corners of the ground—to his friend—and, calmly and methodically, he proceeded to take off his coat. Calmly, but emphatically, he said, "We'll settle it round at the back."

This seemed to please the Devil's Waterhole, and they went out to the back and fought it out. It was not a satisfactory fight—not for Jerry's Corner, anyway, for one of his fingers got into the Devil's mouth, and the Devil chewed it. He chewed it to such purpose that the ambulance had to be sent for, and medical treatment applied. It settled the argument, however.

Mr. Craig, the suburban vegetable gardener, who is of gentle ways, and in the habit of making unmistakable avowals to his ladylove in luscious strawberries and hyperbolical peas, declared that force was no argument, but if it pleased these people from the country—well, let them please themselves.

COMEBACK AND BUNYIP.

Crowds everywhere. Barely standing room. Crowds in the Agricultural Hall and in the Industrial Hall (with the windows nearly all closed, to add to the discomfort)—in every building where there were exhibits. Here a group of farmers, discussing the relative merits of Comeback, Bunyip, Bobs, and Federation wheat varieties; there another group with divergent opinions about the prize Berkshire pig, or the Jersey cow. And with them very often some city friends following for the most part, the Yorkshire maxim of "hearing all and saying nowt."

Your city man can tell you the approximate size of a pumpkin he is looking at, and he can safely remark on the redness of a red apple, but when it comes to such things as the Bunyip and the Comeback, the points about the fetlock of a horse, or the egg-laying capacity of Andalusians, he is wise to be silent. It is so easy to make mistakes—as, for instance, when a certain young man heard a fruit-growing friend refer to an insectarium, and begged of him not to spoil the harmony by introducing the sectarian issue.

And the crowds in the stands! You could not have packed another one in them. The seating accommodation has been largely increased of recent years, but there will have to be further additions. There are thousands of people who find their chief delight in watching the ring events; and there have certainly been some very interesting events on the parade ground this year.

EASTER.

HOLIDAY FIXTURES.

CUP RACES.

To-day the Sydney Cup meeting will commence at Randwick. A record attendance is expected. The principal events on the programme are the Sires' Produce Stakes, the St. Leger, and the Doncaster. On Easter Monday the Sydney Cup will be run. The meeting will be continued on Wednesday, and concluded on Friday.

With non-racegoers the show will be the chief attraction. On Easter Saturday a specially attractive programme of ring events is provided. Jumping will commence about 11 a.m., and will be continued through the afternoon.

All the theatres and picture shows will re-open on Saturday evening. The National Amphitheatre will be open as usual this afternoon.

The bowling greens will be stripped of most of their leading players, the bulk of them having journeyed to Brisbane to participate in the Australasian carnival which opened yesterday. In Sydney country players from Goulburn and Maitland will enjoy a "roll up" on the city and suburban rinks. In the tennis world the Appian Way tournament will be commenced, and will be carried over into next week. There are no special golf fixtures programmed.

ROAD RACING.

MOTOR CYCLING CARNIVAL.

GOULBURN EN FETE.

A thirty-three miles circuit of well-kept road, embracing Yarra, Bredalbane, and Collector, in the Goulburn district, will to-day be the scene of the most sensational form of sport yet introduced to a sport-loving community.

Three motor cycle races—one of which is for the State championship—will be held under conditions which provide for the display of the utmost skill and daring on the part of the riders, and the attainment of the highest speed possible with the most modern machines especially designed and lightened for that end. The Sydney Bicycle and Motor Cycle Club, which, under the auspices of the Auto-cycle Association of New South Wales, and sanction of the Goulburn authorities, is promoting the racing to-day and on Easter Monday, has taken every precaution to safeguard the riders and the general public.

The interest of the entire Australasian motoring community has been aroused in the 100 miles race for the "Tourist Trophy of Australia," which carries with it the title of champion motor cyclist of the Commonwealth, to be held on Easter Monday. This is a straight-out speed contest over three circuits of the course, and will be started at 11 o'clock by the Attorney-General, and it is expected that the occasion will be marked by the largest gathering of motorists and motor cyclists which have heretofore assembled in Australia.

Fifty of the most prominent road riders in New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia, who for some days past have been practising on the course, will compete in the event.

GOOD FRIDAY CONCERTS AND SHOWS.

LITTLE THEATRE ENTERTAINMENT.

Dramatic scenes and music, the former admirably rendered, the latter not always reaching the same standard of high attainment, formed the programme at the Little Theatre last night. The central event was the rendering of the Letter Scene between Hilary Jesson and his sister-in-law, Nita Jesson, from "His House in Order," the action of which explained the situation as well as if it had been a separate play. Miss Violet Paget, as Nita, was at her best in this emotional scene, strong in her sense of power and coming triumph, and finally acquiescing in the act of self-renunciation so wisely suggested by Hilary. Mr. Buckler persuasively delivered Pinero's fine lines, and the excerpt was warmly appreciated. The Casket Scene from "The Merchant of Venice" brought forward Miss Janet Warden as a Portia of gentle dignity in Shakespeare's touching description of whole-hearted surrender; and Mr. Alfred Bristowe's fervour as Bassanio rang true.

The instrumental portion of the programme included Widor's "Serenade," a simple and tuneful trio played by Miss Minnie Gallagher (violin), Miss Sylvia Roberts (piano), and Mr. J. Chidgey ('cello), with Elgar's "Salut D'Amour as encore; and both the ladies played solos with acceptance. Mme. Nellie Truman sang "The Lord is my Light" (Allitsen), and in response to the applause accompanied herself in "Don't you mind it, Honey?", and, for the double encore, "Just Her Way," both cleverly rendered. Miss Louie Duggan, a youthful mezzo with a strong and tuneful voice sang Allitsen's "There's a Dear Land" with welcome animation, and added "Come, Sing to Me" as encore. Mr. A. R. Richards declaimed "If with all your Hearts" with good effect, and the tenor proved in full voice, also in the encore "Come into the Garden, Maude." Interest was taken in the debut of Mr. Keith Wood, of Newcastle, who exhibited a robust tenor of dramatic timbre in "On with the Motley" (from "I Pagliacci"), the anguished emotion of which he somewhat over-accentuated for concert purposes, though the interpretation would have held good on the stage under cover of action and an orchestral accompaniment. The tenor, who appeared unusually nervous, responded to the applause with "In my Garden" (Liddle). Mr. Hugh Buckler appeared in a new role—that of vocalist. The actor-manager sings, as he speaks, with melody in the voice, as basso cantante which he used pleasingly in Mrs. Lang's "Salaam," a highly attractive song in the Oriental style. Mr. Buckler was accorded a double encore. Mme. Nellie Truman and Miss Sylvia Roberts were the accompanists.

MR. GEHDE'S SACRED CONCERT.

Amongst the several sacred concerts given in the city last night possibly the most popular was that of Mr. Nicholas J. Gehde at the Town Hall. The great hall was packed even to the utmost capacity of its organ seats. The principal event of the evening was the performance of Mr. Gehde's "Storm Fantasia," with its lightning flashes, falling torrents, and shrieking winds, so well known to music-lovers here. The awe-inspiring piece with its theatric grandeur, proved decidedly popular. Amongst the many artists contributing to the general success mention must be made of Miss Ivy Allen for her rich-toned rendering of Wilhelmj's adaptation of Schubert's "Ave Maria." The player responded to the applause with Saint-Saens' "Le Cygne" as encore, in which, however, she rather missed the spirit of the piece. An interesting item was Mr. Cecil Sherwood's last appearance at the city hall prior to his departure for Italy. The promising young singer rendered "If with all your hearts," and the item was encored. A popular number was Mr. Maurice Chenoweth's rendering of "The Face of an Angel." Miss Lilian Frost gave several interesting numbers on the organ, including a Communion in G, by Batiste. Others contributing to the programme were Misses Elsie B. Peerless, Vera Parker, Signor Torzilla, and Messrs. A. E. Bnham, Ernest Archer, A. R. Richards, Roy Allen and Arthur Summons (on the Angelus player piano).

PACIFIQUE FROM NOUMEA.

The steamer Pacifique arrived from Noumea yesterday. Passengers stated that the news of the wreck of the French steamer St. Paul, off Cape Moreton recently, had caused general regret throughout New Caledonia, and high mass was celebrated at the churches there four days after the catastrophe.

The steamer also brought news to the effect that a bill, providing for the establishment of wireless telegraph communication between New Caledonia and Papeete has passed the second reading.

THE TRAMS.

CASUAL CONDUCTORS' THREAT.

It was stated in the tramway service last night that the casual conductors might take advantage of the present holidays to obtain a guarantee from the Commissioners that their grievances will receive immediate attention. "Direct action" was talked of.

One of the regular conductors explained that if the casuals should refuse to work it would be almost impossible to supply an adequate service for the show and racecourse traffic. "And," he added, "if we regulars are to be overworked we might give in, too."

The Rev. W. P. F. Dorph, rector of All Saints', Condobolin, was on Monday tendered a valedictory social in the Royal Hall, in view of his departure for London. The Mayor (Alderman Watson) presided, and presented the Rev. Mr. Dorph with a purse of sovereigns. Mr. Dorph was also the recipient of a Morocco dressing case from the West Milby parishioners.

MINE EMPLOYEES' THREAT.

ZEEHAN, Friday.

The annual meeting of the State council of the Federal Mine Employees' Association closed at Zeehan to-day. The following resolutions were unanimously carried:—(1) "That delegates to the Federal conference be instructed to ascertain if it is not possible to have the claim for wages brought on for hearing before the Federal Arbitration Court within the month, and that the delegates be instructed to notify the Federal conference of the dissatisfaction existing in Tasmania. Failing the case coming on early, we adopt other methods of redressing our grievances."

RACECOURSE ACCIDENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Through having read some opinions of Mr. Rouse on the "Sloan" style of riding generally adopted by jockeys, I am prompted to add my opinion in the hope it may induce some extremists of the peculiar style to lengthen their stirrups to such an extent as to enable them to be a help to their mount, instead of, as they now ride, a hindrance. It is quite a common sight on the course, when the horses come on for their "preliminary," for the jockeys to retain their seats only by hanging on to the reins. But it is in the jumping races that the worst effects are realised. In a great number of the falls I have seen at Randwick over the jumps I considered that the jockeys threw their mounts. I have seen horses take off well, jump clear, land well, and then go down through the rider falling on his mount's neck. A decent horseman, using a commonsense length of stirrup, should so keep his seat over a jump that on landing he will have power and control to help his mount to keep going. But, instead of the above, the "monkey" riders are to be seen helplessly falling on the necks of their mounts, hindering instead of helping. Incompetence in other respects also accounts for accidents. At the last A.J.C. meeting I saw a rider, when approaching a hurdle, instead of using his hands and wits to help his mount, judge his distance, start flogging with one hand, while jagging his mount's mouth with the other. Little wonder the humbugged horse struck and fell. Horsemen!—I expect every one of these monkey riders counts himself one. What a joke the boot would be if he attempted to sit a buck, a camp horse, or tried to follow a "clean skin" through a bit of scrub. I cannot but think that there must be very many trainers who have no knowledge of real horsemanship otherwise such a number of "Sloan" extremists would not be seen, or riders who have such crude "hands" on a pair of reins. Trusting that my remarks may start some owners, trainers, and jockeys thinking.

I am, etc.,

STEAMERS DELAYED.

GALE IN PORT PHILLIP.

NEREHANA BUMPS A WHARF.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The south-western gale, which was experienced to-day, was responsible for the detention of a couple of steamers.

The steamer Nerehana, whilst proceeding down the river at 8 o'clock this morning, bound to Sydney, was driven against the wharf. She struck it with considerable force, doing much damage to the structure, whilst her rudder is reported to have been slightly injured by the impact. Subsequently the Nerehana was made fast to the wharf, the attempt to take her down to Hobson's Bay being abandoned runtil to-morrow morning.

Another vessel to suffer detention was the N.D.L. liner Posen, which was to have sailed for Sydney this morning. The vessel was just about to make a start when a vicious squall smote her with such violence that she was driven broadside back to the wharf. Her pilot thereupon decided not to take any risks, and ordered the vessel to be made secure until the weather moderated. The Posen will in all probability leave early to-morrow morning.

The steamer Benalla arrived this morning from London, but, owing to the rough weather, she was unable to berth, and will remain in Hobson's Bay until to-morrow.

On Wednesday evening H. W. M'Kay, of the Parramatta branch of the Australian Bank of Commerce, was at his home in Auburn cleaning a Winchester rifle when a cartridge exploded. The ball entered the upper part of his thigh and made its exit below the kneecap.

NEW ZEALAND.

TRADE WITH HULL.

WELLINGTON, Friday.

Messrs. J. A. Redpath and Sons, wholesale coal merchants and importers, of Christchurch, have been appointed commissioners for trade in New Zealand for the port of Hull. The duties of the commissioners will be to foster as much as possible trade with the north of England port, and act as the official representative in New Zealand. Arrangements have been made with the Shaw Savill and New Zealand shipping companies to despatch steamers regularly to Hull, should sufficient inducement offer.

THE FISHERIES.

AUCKLAND, Thursday.

DOMINION HOUSE.

EARL GREY IN NEW ZEALAND

AUCKLAND, Friday.

The Chamber of Commerce on Thursday decided to recommend Earl Grey's Dominion House scheme to the favourable consideration of the Government.

Subsequently Earl Grey, who was aboard the Niagara, which arrived during the afternoon stated that if New Zealand, Canada, and South Africa agreed on the matter, the scheme would be an accomplished fact.

A RUSSIAN'S ARREST.

NOT PETER THE PAINTER.

PERTH, Friday.

A deputation from the Labour Federation waited upon the Colonial Secretary (Mr Drew) yesterday, in support of the demand of Peter Jansen, a Russian, who came to Western Australia in 1911 from London, for compensation for alleged wrongful arrest by the police.

Mr. Drew replied that Jansen was arrested on a charge of conspiracy against certain other Russian immigrants, and was committed for trial by the magistrate. The Crown, however, did not think the evidence strong enough, and entered a nolle prosequi. The fact that certain statements had been published about Jansen's doings in London, at the time of the sensational shooting of policemen by Russian nihilist criminals, suggesting that Jansen might possibly be Peter the Painter, had nothing to do with the Government or the police. That was a matter of press responsibility. The charge against Jansen had been dwelt with on its merits, and there was no ground for paying him compensation.

SUICIDE IN A CAMP.

GRENFELL, Thursday.

The District Coroner concluded an inquest on Wednesday on a young man named Walter Edwards, who was found in his camp with a bullet wound in his head on Saturday night last, and died a few hours later. Suspicion had fallen on a coloured man named Bell, who was arrested on a charge of murder. The evidence completely cleared Bell, and the Coroner returned a verdict that deceased had died from a self-inflicted wound.

INROAD OF THE SEA.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

The sea is subsiding at Hokitika, where it made great inroads, causing great alarm.

The Government is co-operating with citizens in the immediate expenditure of £1000 to check erosion, pending a decision as to what permanent measures can be adopted to cope with the inroads of the sea.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The nineteenth annual conference of the United Commercial Travellers' Association of Australasia was opened to-day. Delegates were present from all over Australia. Mr. John Cornish (president of the association) was in the chair.

HORNSBY TO BEROWRA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The demand for land to-day is chiefly for residential purposes, and the extent and suitability of the country to be made available are important factors. From every point of view it appears evident that the northern suburbs are becoming the most populous residential centre in the metropolitan area, and as increased facilities for settlement are provided, a continuous influx of residents will be the result. From Bay-road to Hornsby, during the last two years, the number of buildings that have been erected is extraordinary. During the same period, a considerable acreage of land has been subdivided and disposed of between Hornsby and Berowra, and only requires improved travelling facilities to bring about the same result that has taken place on the section mentioned above.

It must be admitted that Mount Colah, Kuring-gai, and Berowra, embracing salubrious climate, good soil, and other attractive features, should be served by a more frequent train service. On the western line you have to travel 42 miles, and on the southern 52, before you reach an altitude the same as the places under review, which are within 20 miles of Milson's Point.

I trust that when the railway time-table is being revised, the Commissioners will consider the question of meeting the requirements of a very large number of persons who are desirous of making their homes in this beautiful area.

I am, etc.,
D. A. CAMPBELL.

Curiously enough, there seems little rhyme or reason to connect Quakers and the South Pole, but it is a noteworthy fact that the Society of Friends, numerically small though it is, has intimate associations with both of this year's Antarctic Expeditions. J. Foster Stackhouse is a friend and a nephew of the famous Quaker surgeon, the late Sir Jonathan Hutchinson.

ECONOMIC RESEARCH.

ITS MEANING FOR THE BUSINESS MAN.

PROBLEMS FOR SOLUTION.

There is a movement afoot to form an Australian economic association. The actual name by which the new body will be known has, as far as we are aware, not yet been decided upon, but it is to be an organisation which will take up economic problems of a more or less pressing character, and after exhaustive research upon purely non-party lines will endeavour to throw some light upon them, if not to supply an actual solution. Everyone who has given any thought to this subject must long ago have realised that many of the problems that at present baffle our acutest thinkers are really problems of ignorance. They are only problems because all the facts are not available. Once set forth the facts and the problem is a problem no longer. Other problems are more difficult of solution, because in some matters we are in a transitional stage. In such cases added to present facts is needed future experience. Too often are economic changes brought about with one object in view, which in actual practice produce quite other and unforeseen results. But all this is fairly obvious and elementary. The point we desire to come to is as to whether the self-imposed task of the proposed economic association has any importance to the man of business. We believe that it has, and will mention some of the problems that await solution, and which, were they solved to-day, might change our whole mental attitude towards many matters of everyday concern.

In no branch of economics is research more needed than in the industrial sphere. Here Australia if she does not lead is certainly right in the vanguard of advanced thought. She is blazing a new track, and whoever essays such a task is apt to lose his bearings. Take the matter of the recent advance in wages in relation to the cost of living. Can we say with any positiveness that, in view of the recent increase in the cost of living, "real wages," using the term in the Adam Smithian sense, are actually higher at all? Can we even be sure that "real wages" are not actually lower than they were, say, ten years ago? Or, putting the matter in another way, can we satisfy ourselves that the higher wages that are undoubtedly being very generally paid to-day will go as far as the lower wages paid, say, a decade ago when the prices of commodities were so much lower? A correct answer to these questions might conceivably quite alter our attitude towards attempts to fix wages upon a higher plane by compulsory process. In a country like this there are no reasonable men who do not desire to do strict economic justice, but without unimpeachable evidence it is not possible, in any given case, to decide on which side right lies.

Take another point which is allied to that just raised. What is the connection between wages and the cost of living? Between the two there is undoubtedly a close relationship. As every housewife knows the sovereign she gets to-day does not go as far as a similar sum ten years ago. But why is this so? Where is the starting point? Is the worker justified in basing his demand for higher wages upon the fact that he needs more if he is merely to maintain his standard of comfort where it was, or is the employer justified in replying: "It is these constant advances in wages that produce the higher cost of living, and every advance I give you will merely make your position worse." Both cannot be right. If the worker's view be the correct one, and it is possible to advance wages by artificial means, indefinitely passing the cost on to the community as a whole without economic harm resulting, then why stop where we are? If a 5 per cent. advance does so much good, will not a 10 per cent. advance do just twice as much good, and would not a doubling of wages be still better? By such a road the millennium could soon be reached. If we on the wrong track it is for such a body as that which is now being formed to say just where the first false step was taken. Then take the other view. If what the employer urges be correct and every advance in wages merely increases the cost of living, and so as to make the second position of the recipient worse than before he got his rise, then it should follow that the way to reduce the cost of living would be to reduce wages. Carrying this view to its logical conclusion every reduction in wages would benefit rather than impoverish the worker, and the lower wages could be reduced the better he would be off. We are afraid there are few who would uphold the cogency of such an argument. But wherein lies the fallacy? The cost of production affects the cost of living, there can be no doubt of that, but the wages list does not form the whole of the cost of production. In some cases it is much more important than in others.

Then there is another aspect of the wages system which has some bearing on the cost of living, indirect though it be. Of late we have entered into an era of "living" and "minimum" wages. To a large extent these connote equality. It is true that employers are told that such wages are merely minimums, that they are by no means maximums, and that if an employee shows special skill there is nothing to prevent his employer paying him as much more than the minimum as he pleases. This is right enough, and in many cases no doubt wages higher than the minimum are paid to more than average efficiency. At the same time, we know that there is a good deal in the assertion of employers that by this system they are forced in many cases to pay the poor worker more than he 's worth, and in order to survive the deficiency is made up at the expense of the really competent. If there be anything in this contention the system is one whereby a premium is being paid to the incompetent, while the efficient is discouraged in his efficiency—a levelling down, surely. The worker's reply is that the living wage is merely enough to maintain him in modest comfort, no more, and to bring up a small family, and that less than that would be pure slavery. Is this true? The statisticians tell us accurately enough no doubt what is an average family, and how much it costs to keep one in a reasonable standard of comfort without frills. And the lawyers seize upon the statistician's average family, and upon this formulate a rule. Can such a rule be made to work out satisfactorily in practice? There is no denying the fact that it does not. It means the utmost of deprivation for the man with a family over the average, who, after all, should be regarded as one of the most useful citizens of the State, while it enables the selfish single man to live in luxury. So the rigidity of the legal mind has merely succeeded in imposing a yoke on those who are acting their part in filling up the cradles of the country, and giving a premium to those who consider themselves alone, and allow the next generation to shift for itself. It is for an economic association to consider these problems, which we have barely outlined, and by unanswerable evidence to establish the truth.

COMMERCIAL.

THE BUTTER MARKETS.

Prescott, Ltd., reports concerning the butter markets of Australia.

Sydney.—There is still no alteration in price. There is no increase in supplies, and the local demand is fairly good, on account of the influx of country visitors. Oversea exports for the week ended April 4 total 6175 boxes, of which 1211 were unsalted.

Melbourne.—This market is also unchanged. Choice butter still being in demand at 1/2 per lb, and the same discrepancy exists between this class and the ordinary first grade. Considerable quantities of choice quality are being imported from New South Wales and Queensland, and meeting with a good demand. The output continues to decrease, the total for the week ended April 3 being 8141 boxes butter and 604 tons cream.

Brisbane.—As with other centres, no alteration has taken place in the value of butter in Queensland. Production for last week is estimated to be 15,422 boxes.

CELLULOSE.

Considerable changes have supervened in the European cellulose markets of late. There is great competition for the raw material—wood. Many buyers are afraid prices are going to rise high, though the view is freely expressed that such a movement can hardly be expected to characterise the immediate future. The demand is great in Germany, England, France, etc. Austria has practically stopped exporting the wood, as she requires so much for her own cellulose manufacture. Others hold that there are large stocks in hand of semi-raw material, and that there is no call to be nervous. Russia is now looked to as the only remaining European source of plentiful supplies. But there, too, there is a growing home industry, the demands of which may affect the quantities otherwise available for export. The market is in a very undecided condition.

BALTIC TIMBER.

At the annual meeting of the Swedish Timber Exporters' Union recently in Stockholm, the question of the world's timber situation was considered, including the preparation of timber materials in Russia, Finland, and Norway. During the discussion it was shown that at Archangel, at all events, a fairly sufficient reserve of raw material had been acquired, and a considerably larger quantity of wood had been prepared for the year 1914 than for 1913. This had been made possible by the opening of two new factories, the producing capacity of which is put at 10,000 standards. Respecting St. Petersburg, the general opinion was that the exportation of 1914 is not likely to exceed by much, if at all, that of 1913. If anything, the contrary rather is to be expected. The floating conditions in the rivers had been worse, so that a large quantity of goods had to be left in the rivers. Besides this, the local demand has increased considerably, and it has frequently occurred that the inland prices have been better than those that could be obtained abroad. Owing to the unfavourable winter, the quantity of goods prepared for the Riga dealers cannot yet be determined. At the moment only small transactions are going through, and at indifferent prices. Exporters, however, are said to consider the prospects of the market to be satisfactory, and they are expecting that the value of export wood will rise materially. The reserves in Riga at the moment are not considered to be large. Should more severe weather come along the quantity of prepared wood is expected to come level with that of 1913. Judging from the statement of the Finnish Sawmill-owners' Union, the number of logs destined to be worked up in the factories in the current year is 27,053,000, against 29,315,000 in the year 1913. The Swedish exporters up till December 28, 1913, had sold 290,154 standards for delivery this year, against 389,051 standards in 1913 and 295,350 standards in 1912. The delegates (writes the correspondent of the "Financier") took an all-round view of the situation, weighing all the favourable and unfavourable circumstances as far as they were known to those present, and they came to the conclusion that the outlook for the year 1914 is by no means an unfavourable one, and they do not look to have to experience any reduction in the price.

WORLD'S WHEAT RESERVES.

The necessity for the world possessing large reserves of wheat is very clearly shown by "Beerbohm's." That journal first of all points out that, judging from the fact that prices were at a rather low level in the years 1902 to 1906, and for several years prior to 1902, it could be taken for granted that reserves in 1906 were at least normal. In 1907 and 1908 crops were very deficient, the yields for the two years together being about 55,000,000qrs below the estimated consumption, and reducing the world's reserves to a very low figure. The journal then contends that as the crops since 1908 have given fair to large yields, it is a fair assumption, after allowing for a normal increase of 1 per cent. in the yearly consumption, that the harvest have been more or less in excess of the estimated requirements. Of course, it is quite possible that the yearly increase is more than 1 per cent., as the consumption of rye is steadily decreasing, and wheat probably taking its place to some extent, although more meat is also being consumed than a few years ago. After making a liberal allowance for such extra consumption, it is, however, certain that invisible reserves have increased considerably, and that there is more wheat in the world than at the corresponding period of any previous year. When it is remembered that the monthly consumption is between 35,000,000 quarters and 40,000,000 quarters, it will be realised how necessary it is that there should be very large reserves of wheat, as a shortage of 10 per cent. in one year's harvest only would make serious inroads into the world's reserves.

BOXING.

DAVE SMITH v M'GOORTY.

To-night the Australian champion, Dave Smith, is to have an opportunity of proving that his previous form against Eddie M'Goorty was all wrong, and he will meet the American at the Sydney Stadium for the third time. Since the two met on New Year's Day, when the Australian was knocked out almost as soon as the bout started, Smith has had the opportunity of seeing M'Goorty in action against Pat Bradley and Jeff Smith, and of realising that, as far as boxing ability is concerned, should have little to fear from the American, good performer as the latter undoubtedly is. If Smith can get over the lack of confidence caused by his having already been beaten by M'Goorty his chances are good, particularly if he does not give his opponent openings by trying to crowd in too much rapid work and action. He has been able to do this with effect in contests with inferior men, and has made such contests more attractive thereby, but he cannot afford to give M'Goorty the opportunities of swing that he gave, for instance, to the Frenchman Dubourg in their recent match. There is a happy medium between this and the equally risky policy of letting the other man do all the forcing. Both men are in splendid condition, and both have undoubted courage, so that if Smith carries his old form into the ring a fine bout should result. The boxers are to weigh not more than 11st 6lb at 2 p.m. to-day.

A preliminary will be provided by Cliff Thomas and Reg. Ferris.

On Easter Monday night Jeff Smith, the American, who recently had the better of matters in a contest with M'Goorty, will box Pat Bradley.

CARPENTIER AND THE AMATEUR.

LONDON, April 10.

It now transpires that the amateur who is giving Georges Carpentier £200 to meet him in the ring is a man named Mitchell, who is in business at Rheims. He is not known in English boxing circles, and the "Sportsman" states that the match, which is for six rounds, is the outcome of a bet that Mitchell cannot last more than one round with the Frenchman. It is not Mr. J. W. H. T. Douglas, the well-known cricketer, who is to referee the fight, but his brother.

POLICE COURTS.

ON BOARD SHIP.

At the Water Police Court on Thursday a Norwegian sailor named Elias Abrahamsen, 17, was charged, before Mr. Love, S.M., with assaulting Lars Salveson, chief mate of the steamer Bolgen. The evidence was to the effect that on Monday afternoon accused went aboard the ship slightly drunk, and threatened Salveson, who got his revolver. He was taking to another man on deck, when Abrahamsen appeared with his knife. Salveson ordered him forward, and accused sprang at him. He took out his revolver, and the man paused. Later the mate was in his cabin, and he heard a knock at his door. The defendant asked him to come out, but he covered him with the revolver till the police came.

The defendant was sentenced to four weeks' hard labour, and ordered to pay £2 18s 6d costs. The captain said that he did not want the man back on the ship.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

The twenty-ninth annual conference of the Churches of Christ was continued at the Enmore Tabernacle yesterday. The executive and home mission report stated that 41 churches had a combined membership of 4259. The total additions were 593, but against this there was a falling-off of members, mostly owing to the revision of rolls, amounting to 627, the net result being a loss of 34. There are 38 Bible Schools registered, having 324 teachers, with 3104 scholars, 81 of whom have joined the church during the year. These figures show an increase of 388 scholars and 50 teachers.

The income received for home missions totalled £1380. The past year opened with a credit balance of £5 16s 3d, and closed with a credit of £88 7s 11d. It is estimated that the work of the coming year will absorb an income of £1500. Four new churches applied for affiliation with the conference—St. Peter's, Gilgandra, Chatswood, and Balmain.

A feature of the work of the year had been the acquirement of land and buildings by several churches. At Erskineville a large chapel had been built at a cost of £1250, at Hornsby enlargements had been carried out at a cost of £400; at Mosman a building is in course of erection, costing £1200; the foundation-stone of which will be laid on Monday; and at St. Peters a new chapel has been erected. In the home mission sphere nine men have been engaged during the whole of the year, and five during part. 12 churches have been assisted by the home mission funds, and a State evangelist maintained. The home mission churches reported a net increase of 38 members, 126 Bible School scholars, 17 teachers, one new Bible School, one new chapel, and one enlarged. District conferences are doing effective work on the Richmond-Tweed rivers, and on the North Shore.

The conference carried a resolution, recommending to the new committee the advisability of paying special attention to organisation, by amalgamating the office of home mission and Sunday School organiser, and the securing of an office in the city to be the centre of his operations.

At the home mission demonstration in the evening Mr. J. E. Thomas, of Adelaide, delivered an address. Mr. Charles Rush, of Marrickville, also spoke.

CHESS CHAMPIONSHIP.

LIVELY GAMES.

A tournament for the chess championship of New South Wales began yesterday morning in the upstairs hall of the Australian Mutual Provident Society's head office. Ten players had entered their names as competitors, but one of them—Mr. Jonas—did not put in an appearance, and his name was removed from the list.

The competitors are:—Messrs. H. V. Crane, L. S. Crakanthorp, G. W. Baynes, R. Robinson, D. McArthur, R. Robins, A. A. K. O'Connor, V. A. Spence, and B. Parker. With the exception of R. Robins, all the players are well known. He is but 18 years of age, and hails from Townsville, Q., where he had but few opportunities for practice. H. V. Crane and R. Robinson are experienced English players; A. O'Connor comes from Newcastle. The others are Sydney men. G. W. Baynes is the veteran of the lot. He took part in the first match by telegraph between New South Wales and Victoria over 40 years ago.

The first game decided was that between Crane and Robins. The former, as will be seen by the game published below, had little trouble in winning. A good match was expected between Crakanthorp and Parker. The latter got a good opening, but failed to find the right continuation in a complicated position. Crakanthorp then got the ball at his foot and scored decisively. Baynes, with the move P to Q B 4, drifted into an inferior game against Robinson, who got a dangerous passed P on the Queen's side, but eventually forced a win on the other wing. McArthur outplayed Spence in his management of the Ruy Lopez attack. He built up a menacing position on the adverse King, threatening mate with his Queen if Spence moved his Kt. This he did and lost on the move.

In the second round Crane and Crakanthorp were regarded as well matched. The former was aggressive, and got a strong King's side attack by advancing the K K P and K R P. Crakanthorp failed to find the right defence, and allowed his opponent by a check of a Kt to either win the Queen or force mate. Seeing this was unavoidable, Crakanthorp resigned.

Parker and McArthur provided a most interesting game. The former obtained a striking advantage in the opening. When all was going well for him he precipitated matters by giving up a clear Rook, hoping to get a mate on. The sacrifice, however, McArthur proved to be unsound. His defence was extremely difficult, as, for about five consecutive moves, he had but one reply each time to save the game. Spence showed improved form, and won the exchange and the game from Baynes in good style. O'Connor was unable to withstand the strong attacks made by Robinson, and resigned a short game.

The results of the play in the first two rounds follow:—

H. V. Crane	1	R. Robins	0
R. Robinson	1	G. W. Baynes	0
D. M'Arthur	1	V. A. Spence	0

Among the visitors were Mr. W. S. Viner, jun., chess champion of Australia; Messrs. H. B. Bignold, W. Du Boulay, E. T. Calvert, C. J. Coombs, W. Crane, and Dr. Pearse. Play will be resumed at 10 this morning, and continue till 6.30 p.m., with an interval of 1½ hours at lunch time.

(a) The centre is better preserved, and the range of the adverse KB limited, by 4. P to Q B 3.

(b) A well-timed move, which weakens the central pawns.

(c) Weak. He could not hope to hold the P.

(d) Cleverly played, securing an open game.

(e) A strong move, well followed up.

(f) Winning a clear Rook. Black might have resigned here.

(g) White has splendidly handled his Bishops.

And White resigned.

(a) The right move.

(b) This advance weakens his centre Pawns. Castles K side was the correct move.

(c) White has played the game well to this point, and has a striking positional advantage. Here he might have continued, as pointed out by Mr. Viner, with:—20. B takes P—R takes B; 21. R takes B ch—Q takes R; 22. R takes Q—K takes R; 23. Q to B 7, attacking three Pawns with winning prospects.

(d) He had now nothing better than B takes B. The Rook sacrifice is ingenious, but not sound.

(e) Black, since his let off, has played a different defence with great courage and skill. The counter attack with the Kt gives him a certain victory.

BOWLS.

EASTER PROGRAMME.

Owing to the holidays and the absence of leading players in Queensland, where they are taking part in the Australian carnival, the bowling programme in Sydney this Easter will be a small one. For many years Easter has always been the busiest time for bowlers in Sydney. Interstate teams have been present, but this year the interest has been removed to Brisbane. However, several country teams will be in Sydney to-day and on Monday, and matches have been arranged as follows:—

TO-DAY'S EVENTS.

Goulburn, four rinks, at Mosman.
Central Maitland, four rinks, at Strathfield.
St. George, two rinks, at Victoria Park.
Victoria Park, two rinks, at St. George.
Marrickville, six rinks, at Warringah.
Randwick, four rinks, at Rockdale.
Gladstone Park, four rinks, at Marrickville.
West Maitland, four rinks at Waverley.

MONDAY'S EVENTS.

West Maitland, six rinks, at Balmain.
Central Maitland, four rinks, at Burwood.
Wickham, five rinks, at Victoria Park.
Manly Club tournament.
Marrickville, rink competition.
Mosman, club contests.
North Sydney, progressive pairs.
Warringah, rink competition.

AUSTRALIAN BOWLING COUNCIL.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The interstate bowlers who came to Brisbane to take part in the Australian bowling carnival were accorded a reception by the Mayor of Brisbane.

A meeting of the Australian Bowling Council was held on Thursday evening, when Mr. S. Nathan, president, occupied the chair. Mr. C. P. Moody (S.A.), said with reference to the visit of the team to New Zealand, that New Zealand intended to send a full team to Australia next season. Mr. Nathan moved that an invitation be sent to the English Bowling Association to send a team to Australia next year, and it was agreed to. Some discussion took place on the question of loaded bowls; and it was eventually decided to refer the matter to a subcommittee for report on this matter, and also on the question of the bias of composition bowls, to a meeting to be held next week.

NEW MUSIC.

Messrs. Enoch and Sons publish new music. "Songs of Good Luck" is a collection of four such under one cover, bearing a nocturne of dark blue sky, with a crescent moon, and a black cat apparently endeavouring to erect its back in the form of a triumphal arch. The lyrics in each instance are by Helen Taylor, and the music by Liza Lehmann. The general musical atmosphere of the series is one of refinement and simplicity. "The Falling Star" is playfully reflective, and imbued with innocent sentiment; "If I Drink From Your Glass," embracing the lover's pretty fancy that by so doing he will share the thoughts of the loved one, is a tenderly symmetrical little song in three-four time. Mention may also be made of "The Black Cat," which pleases in a mild kind of way. "Souvenir," by Cesar Franck, the verses both in English and in French, is a tender lament with a few haunting melodic phrases rather too often repeated. During the last few bars the minor key is exchanged for the major, with good effect. Ambrose Porter's "Western Flower" is a plaintive, but rather colourless, composition. "Little Red House on the Hill," by Edmund La Touche, is in a jog-trot kind of rhythm intended to suggest old times in merrie England when giants were about. "The Street of Long Ago," by David Emmell, is conventional, but musicianly. The "Reigen Waltzer," by Oscar Strauss, is a gay and fascinating waltz in the Viennese style, taken from the composer's operetta "Mein Junger Herr." "Mellin in the Moonlight," by Georges Latour, is a pretty and refined piece of a very light character for piano. Ludwig Sieder's "The Little Messenger Boy" is a spirited two-step intermezzo—a merry, typical example of its class. "At Last," by Julian Harrison, is a song of passionate love-sentiment, cultivated in style, but without definite inspiration, though the arpeggio passages represent a happy touch. "Keeping Company," by A. Herbert Brewer, is a dainty, sparkling little song upon the relative joys of sweethearting and sober married life.

"Why Should We Part for Ever," with the advantage of a striking and well-drawn title-page, is a song composed by Signor Giuseppe Loti, to words by Theo. Schmohl, the whole published by T. Schmohl. This is a love-ballad with a pretty valse refrain which would make a suitable vaudeville number. The harmonisation immediately before the refrain might easily be improved upon by the composer.

Two beer and whisky saloons, from which men will be rigidly excluded, and which will be managed by women for women only, are about to be opened at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

STARVED ROADS.

SUGGESTIONS FOR IMPROVEMENT.

ENGINEERS' CONFERENCE.

The fifth annual conference of the Institute of Local Government Engineers of Australasia was concluded at the Town Hall on Thursday.

Mr. J. M. Small was elected president, and Messrs. T. W. Beaver (of North Sydney) and F. N. Oxley (Wagga) were elected vice-presidents.

The following motions were carried:—

Message from the National Roads Congress to the Minister for Works:—That this conference is unanimously of opinion that the crucial difficulty in the way of better roads is the lack of sufficient funds. All roads are starved, and, until the financial position of all shires and municipalities is considerably improved, it is useless for continual complaints to be levelled at local government administration.

That shire councils be given the same power as municipal councils, to borrow for permanent works.

That the conference has established a standing committee from its members to draw up prospective regulations for the standardisation of roads, and such committee will give every information and assistance on the subject to the Minister when required.

All motor licenses to be issued by shire or municipal councils, and to be recognisable eventually by all local authorities, revenue derived from same to be spent on main roads. Speed to be determined in each area by the controlling council. Tractors to be regulated, as set forth in the Width of Tyres Bill.

That the conference strongly recommends a Width of Tyres Bill, to be put into force at the earliest possible moment.

That it be suggested that, until a wheel tax be imposed on all vehicles, any revenue derived therefrom be paid to the shire and municipal councils.

That the Local Government Act be so amended as to allow councils to enter any private lands not near a house, etc., for the purpose of obtaining road materials, a reasonable rate to be fixed by the Act for payment of same.

Mr. W. J. Fordyce, of Warren, read a paper on "The Better Upkeep of Our Main Roads." "Our main roads," he said, "are mostly through traffic carriers, and they yield shire councils very little revenue. The average shire councillor has, therefore, little sympathy, and sees no reason why much expenditure should be made on these roads for the benefit of the motor man, who, perhaps, pays little or no shire rates." Mr. Fordyce advocated that special magistrates should be appointed to hear appeals, instead of the ordinary police magistrates.

Mr. J. T. French, of Walgett, read a paper entitled "Local Government and the National Roads."

NATIONALISATION URGED.

BATHURST, Thursday.

Speaking at Kelso, Councillor Berry, president of the Turon Shire, said the main roads had gone back since the establishment of local government. "If," he said, "we keep control of the roads, the rates must rise, or something else must be done. I voted against increased taxation at the outset, because I depended on the Government being liberal enough to grant us more concessions. I voted for the nationalisation of the main roads. If the main roads were taken from us we would have enough to do with the by-roads. I have a great hope that the main roads will be nationalised in the future. Motor traffic does great damage to the main roads."

CHILDREN ENTERTAINED.

AT WIRTH'S CIRCUS.

Ginger-beer in buckets! The thought is a quickening one for the juvenile mind, and the fact itself, proved a magnet for children at Messrs. Wirth Bros.' circus on Good Friday morning.

In accordance with their usual custom this firm of entertainers gave a breakfast to poor children, and about nine thousand youngsters yesterday morning crowded into one of the huge tents in Prince Alfred Park. The hour for the beginning was set down as 7 o'clock, but for an hour before that time boys and girls were waiting outside with the eager light of anticipation in their eyes. When the gates opened no passports were needed. It was a morning for the poor children. When one saw them he wondered that there were so many qualified to avail themselves of the only stipulation by the management, and at the back of the mind there lurked the idea that these children had purposely clad themselves in their second or third best, and left their boots at home. Whether that was so or not, the onlooker could only draw one conclusion, that poverty did not press heavily on them. The laughter and happiness of the children were sufficient to prove that their cares were forgotten at the sight of great heaps of hot-cross buns and big barrels of ginger-beer.

Once inside Mr. G. Anderson and Mr. Peterson took charge of the youngsters, and with the assistance of members of the staff handed round supplies to each of the guests.

At the conclusion of the meal a short performance was given, and the children were not lacking in enthusiasm. The elephants are always popular, and their performances yesterday were cheered to the echo, but the appreciation was as nothing to the cries of delight when the bucking pony, Corbett, was turned into the ring. He defied all attempts of the youngsters to "stick on," but there was always someone willing to try.

AUSTRALIAN OPERA LEAGUE.

A deputation from the Australian Opera League, comprising Messrs. W. Arundel Orchard, Alfred Hill, G. de Cairos-Rego, Dr. Chas. MacCarthy, and Nelson Illingworth, and introduced by Mr. Augustus James, M.L.A., waited upon the Minister for Education yesterday afternoon. Messrs. Orchard and Hill brought under notice the national character of the objects of the league. It was an organisation which would afford important scope for talented students graduating from the National Conservatorium, and in this way the Government might very fittingly aid, by a donation, to make the first season of the Opera League as complete a success as possible. Mr. Carmichael spoke with appreciation of the project. He was entirely favourable to the league having the recognition of the Government, and promised a donation of £100.

PEACE PRIZE ESSAYS.

The prizes offered to the children of this State by the Peace Society for the best essays on "Peace by Armaments or by Arbitration" have now been awarded. The junior prize of £2 goes to Harold Kinross Hunt, of Dulwich Hill, aged 10 years and 9 months, and the senior prize of £4 to Leua Mary Bates, of Strathfield, aged 15. Two other essays came so near the prize standard that the society has decided to give two extra consolation prizes of £1 each, one in the junior division to C. Throsby, of the Sydney Technical High school, aged nearly 14, and the other, in the senior division, to Dorothy Chalker, of Our Lady of Mercy's College, Goulburn, aged 15. The essays on the whole were remarkably good, and the society has much pleasure in giving honourable mention to the following young essayists:—Juniors: Frank W. Giles, Alma Turner, Frank Illingworth, Dorothea Michel, Kathleen Bondietti, Roy Allan Dunkeley, Eileen Grace; seniors—Mary Bryant, May Rivett, Harold Illingworth, Hubert Anthony, Dora Blanche Cory, Dorothy Downing, John Gower Stephens, J. Watson Henderson, Rene Duffy, Joan Doris Bullen, Lois Row.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

COOGEE.

SEPARATE MUNICIPALITY SUGGESTED.

At a large meeting of ratepayers and residents of the Coogee end of the Randwick municipality held this week, the suggestion was seriously made that an effort should be made to secure a separate municipality for the popular seaside area.

Mr. T. W. Henderson, who presided over the meeting, said it was proposed to form a Coogee Improvement Association, to keep the needs of their district under the attention of the council and of the Government. For years, he said, Randwick was the biggest municipality in Australia. It was so large that it was practically unwieldy, and splitting it up into two parts would make the work of local government very much easier.

After further discussion an Improvement Association was formed, with the following declared objects:—Extension of the sea wall to the men's baths; drainage of the recreation ground, and erection of a pavilion; engagement of an engineer to remodel the whole of the Coogee area; abolition of unsightly hoardings; establishment of a school of arts; linking up of Bellevue Hill tram to relieve Oxford-street traffic.

The following office-bearers were elected:—President, Mr. T. W. Henderson; hon. secretary, Mr. C. F. Williams; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. G. Day; committee, Messrs. Wiley, Elliott, H. P. Johnson, Myers, Tudor, Morton, P. Lynch, and F. Cox.

SANITATION OF BROOKLYN.

At a meeting of the ratepayers of Brooklyn recently, under the presidency of Mr. James Ross, chairman of the park trustees, it was decided that a deputation wait on the Chief Secretary to point out that certain statements in regard to the sanitation of Brooklyn are untrue, misleading, and unfair.

SHIRE COUNCILS.

LOCKHART.—At a special meeting of the council, owing to the ousting of three councillors in B Riding, the council proceeded to the election of a new president, and Councillor Bunyan, of Pleasant Hills, was elected. In taking the chair, Mr. Bunyan announced that if Councillor Weedon was re-elected he would be only too pleased to vacate the president's chair. The date of the fresh election was fixed for Saturday, May 2, and Mr. E. J. Walker was appointed returning officer.

ROYAL SHOW.

A GREAT CROWD.

HIGH JUMP RECORD.

BROKEN BY LANDLOCK.

The Royal Show continued yesterday, and again the weather was favourable, indeed, an improvement on previous days. Being a public holiday yesterday was really the first big day as regards attendance, and shortly after lunch the enormous crowd that surrounded the ring, to say nothing of the thousands in other parts of the ground, testified that the great show had lost nothing of its attraction.

A good ring programme—and the bulk of those who go to the Sydney Show are mainly interested in the ring events—was provided, but interest centred round the high jumping. Unexpectedly this resulted in the most interesting of developments, for the high-jump record was broken by Landlock, the winner of the Denman high-jump. This performance aroused the greatest enthusiasm, as the jumping in the contest was disappointing, and there was no indication that the record would even be approached. There was a good field in the high-jump contest, but when the bars were at 6ft 6in only three horses were left in; Landlock, Radium, and Exchange. All of them failed to negotiate that height successfully, and, therefore, the judge sent them at it again, each horse having a single try. Again they each failed, and again they were allowed to try, when Landlock was the only one that succeeded in clearing the jump; thus securing first-prize; the other two dividing for second place. Disappointment at what was comparatively poor high-jumping, gave place to great interest when it was seen that preparations were being made for the winner to try and beat the Sydney Show official record for high-jump of 6ft 10in, which had been held by Desmond since 1907.

Although Landlock essayed the task with a great reputation behind him, it was hardly expected that he would succeed, as he had not been jumping in good form. At the third attempt, however, he cleared the bars at seven feet, and there followed an outburst of enthusiasm, both the owner, Mr. Eroni, and the horse and jockey receiving an ovation from the excited crowds of spectators. Landlock was ridden by G. Eroni. He holds a splendid record, having jumped 7ft 2in at Bendigo this year (the record for Australia), 7ft 1in at Quirindi, 7ft 1-8in at Horsham, and 7ft at Yarrawonga, the height he cleared at this show. Mr. Eroni was heartily congratulated on his triumph, as he is recognised by horsemen as being a "good sport," and made it his business to compete at the show at some inconvenience. At a little informal gathering the toast of the owner of the horse was honoured, the late owner of the old champion, Desmond, Mr. H. D. Morton, proposing Mr. Eroni's health.

Another interesting event was the third heat of the Royal Handicap Trot. There was some good trotting. Another heat was decided in the Royal Handicap Trot, and the "Wunderlich Ceiling" Trot was run off, W. H. M'Donald's Nut winning. Time, 1m 27⅘s.

The tandem jumping contest created the usual amusement, and also applause for the winning team.

During the morning the programme opened with a parade of trotters in harness, which was followed by a fine parade of business turnouts that were an exceptionally fine lot. The polo ponies was also a very good class, and first place was won by R. O. Middleton's Phyllis. The pony sulky turnout produced a big field, there being 19 competitors, and the judge stated he had never seen a better collection. Basil B. Capper's Rook secured first. The "Palace" hunting contest, which included the water jump, provided the audience with some entertainment, several of the horses striking the water, and very few of them clearing it. The jumping was not good in this event, which was won by J. C. Gillain's Donovan, V. J. Tarlington's Cunebo coming second, and A. O. Payne's Auburn third.

Amongst the visitors to the ground yesterday was Mr. Anderw Fisher, leader of the Federal Opposition, who was entertained at luncheon by the president of the society, Sir Francis Suttor, and the members of the council.

During the day some excitement was caused by a loose horse running amok in the crowd, unfortunately, with serious results, as several people were injured.

THE ATTENDANCE.

94,000 PEOPLE.

The attendance yesterday numbered 94,000. This exceeds the attendance for the corresponding day last year by 2000, but it is 1000 less than the number recorded on Good Friday 1912. The gate money yesterday amounted to £1950, which exceeds by £52 the amount received on Good Friday 1913.

The secretary of the Royal Agricultural Society, Mr. Somer, stated last night that the attendance in the morning was very small, due, doubtless, to the threatening weather. It was not until the afternoon, when indications of rain had been removed, that the enormous rush for the showground set in. He was confident that, had the weather in the morning been favourable, the attendance would have reached 100,000.

RING EVENTS.

LANDLOCK CLEARS 7 FEET.

Never in the history of the Sydney Show have the ring events attracted as much interest as they did yesterday. Right from the early morning judging till the last heat of the Wunderlich Ceiling Trot at 6 p.m. the crowd kept near the ring. They were keen not to miss one item. They cheered their favourites, applauded a good hunter, laughed heartily when a rider was dislodged at the water jump fairly in the middle of the pond, cheered to the echo their old favourite Desmond, and when Landlock beat the Sydney Show jumping record they rose en masse and made the grounds ring with their applause. It was a great sight. The ring was occupied for the most part of the morning in the judging of business turnouts and sulky pony turnouts. There was the Anthony Hordern's Palace Gentlemen's Hunting Contest, and the water jump brought about the downfall of many of the riders. But the crowd enjoyed it, and the riders got off with a ducking. The principal event was the Denman High Jump, and this provided the sensation of the afternoon. The winner was Messrs. Eroni Bros.' Landlock, who gained first prize at 6ft 6in. Then he set out to lower the record of 6ft 10in, and he did so, clearing 7ft comfortably. Another heat of the Royal Handicap Trot in harness was decided, also the Stewart Dawson Tandem contest. The concluding item was the Wunderlich Ceiling trotters and pacers in harness, which was run off in five heats.

The Anthony Hordern's Palace Gentlemen's Hunting Contest brought out 21 competitors. The conditions were that the horses had to carry not less than 11st, all horses to be judged for hunting qualifications, and to be tried over eight stiff batten fences 4ft high, two sod walls 3ft 6in high, and a water jump. The water jump and the sod wall caused many of the entrants trouble, and there were numerous falls. Clan Ronald, Cambo, Alaska, Mikko, Auburn, and Donovan jumped exceedingly well, but none of them actually cleared the water jump. King Courier got rid of his rider at the sod wall, but he remounted and cleared the rest of the obstacles until he came to the water jump, when he went fairly into it. Denial jumped well, but baulked at the water jump. At his second attempt he again baulked and threw his rider a complete somersault into the water, much to the rider's discomfort, and the amusement of the crowd. Gold Dust hit his jumps badly, but almost cleared the water. Chamois jumped into the middle of the water, then shot his rider yards away. Bay Eagle had to retire at the water jump. Starlight got rid of his jockey at the sod wall, but he remounted, and was successful in negotiating all the battens. The water jump was his downfall. Kentwell refused to jump, and was disqualified. The second round left Auburn, Cambo, and Donovan in the final, and as a result of their jumping the decision went:—

J. C. Gillam's g g Donovan, 150 points (W. Gillam) 1
V. J. Tarlington's Cambo, 140 points (F. Moore) 2
A. L. Payne's Auburn, 125 points (A. Balks) 3

The first event of the afternoon was the Denman High Jump, with a special prize of £5 to the rider of the winning horse, and a further special prize of £10 if the winner beat the Royal Sydney record of 6ft 10in. There were 10 competitors, and as old Desmond cantered round the ring he was given an ovation. Jumping started at 5ft 6in. Exchange failed badly twice, and at the third time cleared well. Radium, Alaska, Sunstar, Sunbeam, and Sunray all cleared at the first time of asking. Landlock had to make a second attempt before he got over. Wallaroo refused to take the jump, and was disqualified. Desmond knocked the rail off the first and second time and refused the third time, being disqualified. There was a general "Oh" around the ground when the old grey had to pull out. King Courier had to make two attempts to get over. At 5ft 8in Sunray and Sunstar were both disqualified, leaving half-a-dozen in. At 5ft 10in Exchange, Radium, and Landlock cleared the bar at the first time of asking without an effort. Alaska had two attempts before he accomplished the feat. King Courier and Sunbeam both failed and were passed out. At 6ft three of the four remaining horses each had two attempts before clearing the rail, Alaska failing altogether. At 6ft 2in Exchange, Radium, and Landlock cleared the bar magnificently at the first jump. At 6ft 4in Exchange got over without an effort. Radium only cleared the rail at the third effort, and Landlock had to make two attempts. At 6ft 6in the three horses each failed to clear the bar. The judge called on them to jump once more. Exchange baulked, and both Radium and Landlock got over, but carried the top rail off with their hind feet. Again the judge asked for a fourth trial. Exchange again refused, and Radium knocked the rail off. Then with a superb effort, Landlock cleared the bar. The reception accorded the winner was a magnificent one, every person in the grounds cheering wildly. Then Mr. Eroni announced his intention to try to break the Royal Sydney record of 6ft 10in. Landlock was given a few minutes' spell and a rub down, the bar was raised to 7ft, an dthe winner sent at it. At the first call he cleared with his fore feet, but carried the bar away with his hind feet. He just tipped the bar at the second attempt and dragged it off the pegs. Then he was shown the jump—he could not look over it—and young Eroni took him well back. Sending him hard at it, the great chestnut gathered himself for a final effort. Lifting his great body up with a supreme effort, he shot his front feet high, and crossing his hind feet as he reached the top, he swung clear of the bar and the record was broken. Then the crowd cheered themselves hoarse, and the owner was warmly congratulated by officials and stewards. Landlock, who is by Landslip from a Lochiel mare, is owned by Messrs. Eroni Bros., and was ridden by Mr. G. Eroni. They purchased him from Mr. Weir, a butcher, of Narrandera. Though he has never appeared before in Sydney, Landlock has beaten 7ft. Radium and Exchange divided second and third prizes.

The third heat of the Royal Handicap Trot or Pace in Harness was decided. There were three competitors, and the results were:—

A. Borley's Milkmaid, by Tuxedo—Bella, scratch.. 1
I. Reid's Honest Child, by Viking Junior, 3s beh... 2
I. S. Payne's Sal Jackson, by Ribbonwood, 1s beh.. 3

The winner's time was 2m 26⅕s, and that of the second horse 2m 26⅘s. The winner trotted well throughout, never once breaking.

The Stewart Dawson tandem jumping contest brought out five pairs. The event caused great laughter. James Chittick's pair, Fluco and Masie, cleared the hurdles well, and secured the blue ribbon. J. R. Quilty's pair, Phillip and London, also jumped well, and secured the red ribbon. The three other pairs fairly beat the riders. They either refused to take the jumps, or else one jumped and the other remained on the opposite side of the hurdle. It was highly amusing to the spectators, but the riders were pretty tired of being hauled over every part of the ground, and gave it up.

The Wunderlich Ceiling trotters and pacers in harness brought out 10 competitors, which necessitated the committee running off the event in heats. The results were:—First heat: Lucap, 1; Brooklyn, 2. Second heat: Huon Hue, 1; St. Simon, 2. Third heat: Lucia, 1; Brownonglo Bobs, 2. Fourth heat: The Nut, 1; Star Harold, 2. Fifth heat: Lady Briton, 1; Primrose, 2.

Final.

W. H. M'Donald's b g The Nut, by Brasil .. 1
C. White's br f Lucap, by Mambrino Derby.. 2
J. M'Millan's b h Huon Hue, by Huon Prince 3

The three horses trotted splendidly, especially The Nut, who did not break once in either of his trials. The winner's actual time was 1m 27⅘s; that of the second, 1m 28s; and that of the third, 1m 30 3-8s.

MOTOR EXHIBITS.

AUSTRALIAN BODYWORK.

DEALERS' BUSY TIME.

The motor traders were busy people at the show yesterday.

The wealthy squatter and the impecunious but nevertheless inquisitive small boy, hobnobbed together in the stuffy and overcrowded tents in an endeavour to hear the salesmen discourse on the machines at their disposal. Other visitors strolled among the exhibits "tooting" the motor horns, pulling levers, and collecting reams of literature for perusal more at their leisure.

Many sales were reported during the day. There was a large demand for the moderate-powered and priced models of the high-grade cars, and also for the inexpensive American runabouts. Big luxury cars were apparently not in favour. Commercial vehicle salesmen were inundated with inquiries, and there is abundant evidence that the Australian farmer is now regarding the agricultural motor-tractor—which has been almost universally adopted in wheatgrowing countries—more seriously than heretofore.

The Australian coachbuilder has apparently no reason to fear that the invasion of the all-conquering automobile into the realms of the horse and buggy and waggon, will deprive him of his livelihood. On the other hand, there is every indication that the automobile and commercial motor will provide ample, if not greater, scope than ever for the application of his trade. And, judging from several of the more costly exhibits, it would seem that the local craftsman is quite equal to meet any calls which may be made upon him, even in the execution of the most elaborate designs. The trade, too, is protected by a substantial tariff wall.

The majority of the American cars at the show are equipped with imported bodies. Steel and the lighter sheet aluminium enter largely into their construction, as it is the policy of the American manufacturer to build only bodies, or chassis, for that matter, which can be assembled from component parts produced in large quantities from one set of patterns or "dies." It is claimed that the all-metal body is more adapted to withstand the extremes of climate and rough usage of the bush than the bodywork constructed on the European-Australian plan of part wood and part metal. The European bodies, however, are generally recognised to be the more luxurious and attractive, notwithstanding that a more brilliant and more lasting finish can be given by the coachpainter or enameller to a metal surface.

The agent of an American runabout car, with an unusual but eminently practicable transmission system, had hit upon an ingenious plan for demonstrating its working. The all day long this inanimate "salesman" explained to crowded audiences the why and the wherefore of its peculiarities in a more convincing and educative manner than would have been possible had a dozen active demonstrators been at work.

G. W. HOWE.

S.C.A.T. cars—a product of Italy, and an English Pilot, a 2-passenger light car, driven through friction gearing by a 2-cylinder, water-cooled engine rated at 10-h.p., were exhibited by G. W. Howe, of Redfern. All the S.C.A.T. cars, of which there were three examples, were equipped with the manufacturer's patented air starting system, which is controlled from the dashboard, and delivers air through a rotary distributor to all four cylinders. The air storage tank is located within the chassis frame, and is charged by a small pump driven off the engine. The 22/36 h.p., 4-cylinder model had a five-passenger English body, finished in grey with a deep scuttle dash. The 15/20-h.p., 4-cylinder machine had an elegant flush-sided 5-passenger body by the local firm of Lawrence and Collins, finished in green. The 15/20-h.p. chassis showed that the manufacturers followed the general Italian automobile practice so far as the gearbox and back axle were concerned; the propeller shaft being entirely enclosed, and the casing taking the place of radius or torque rods.

ANTHONY HORDERN AND SONS.

A wide range of Royal Enfield motor cycles was exhibited by Anthony Hordern and Sons in their spacious hall. The display included a 3-h.p. twin-cylinder tour roadster machine, equipped with the Enfield two-speed free engine gear and patent cush-drive hub. The final drive in all models was by chain. Two 6-h.p. sidecar machines had many novel features, and appeared to be most substantially constructed. The attached sidecars were also neatly designed and well finished. The 2-h.p. "Tourist Trophy" roadster model was similar in construction to the standard model, but was built on more racy lines.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY OF AUSTRALIA, LTD.

In addition to the I.C.H. light air-cooled five-passenger machine—the only "motor buggy" on view at the show—the International Harvester Company of Australia were showing a one-ton water-cooled motor truck.

In general design the truck followed motor buggy practice. The wheels, running on Timken roller bearings (greased like buggy wheels) were of large diameter (38in), and fitted with narrow rubber tyres. The 20 h.p. twin-cylinder engine, with opposed cylinders, was mounted transversely in the chassis frame, the power being transmitted first to a cross shaft, and then to the rear wheels by chains. A two-speed forward and reverse gearbox was mounted on the main shaft, between the clutch and main driving sprocket. The gears are always in mesh, the drive being taken up by ingenious dog clutches operated by a side lever. An electrical combination, comprising a low-tension magneto, dry cells, and a master-vibrator, gives no fewer than three systems of ignition. A special system of forced feed lubrication was employed.

The machine, it was stated, was capable of a speed of 20 miles per hour.

HOUSSARD BROS.

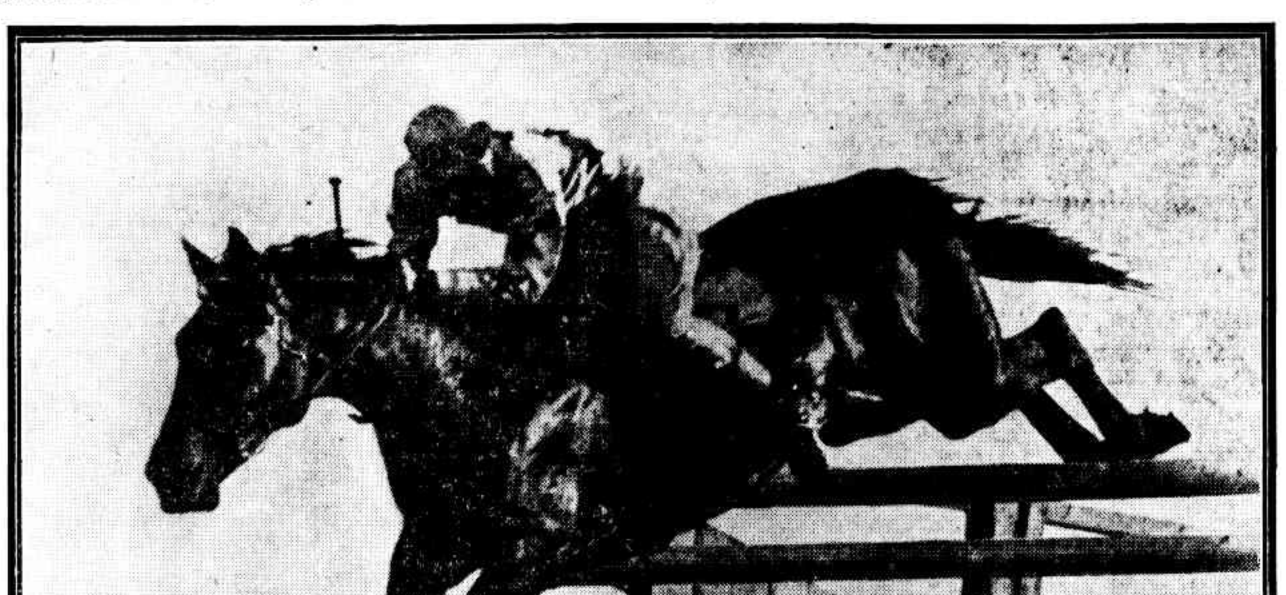
Three Delaugere-Clayette cars, built by the firm of that name at Orleans, were exhibited by Houssard Bros. An 18/25-h.p. four-cylinder car, equipped with an Australian torpedo body, was finished in grey, and a 16/20-h.p. four-cylinder model had a semi-torpedo three-passenger body. A highly-finished 16/20-h.p. chassis was also on view, showing the arrangement of the three-speed gear box, and the methods by which the brakes may be adjusted without the use of spanners. Bosch magnetoes and Claudel carburetters are fitted to all Delaugere-Clayette cars.

C. B. BRADLEY.

C. B. Bradley was exhibiting an American Empire touring car and a Hillman runabout—two recently-acquired agencies. The Empire was a four-cylinder five-passenger machine, finished in black, the accessories including an Eisemann magneto, Holly carburettor, and Prestolite gas tank. The equipment of the Hillman car, a three-passenger Coventry-built machine of 9 h.p., included Sankey detachable steel wheels, Chaudel-Hobson carburetter, Bosch waterproof magneto, and an electric lighting set.

TABRETT AND COMPANY.

In the vehicle pavilion Tabrett and Company, of Sydney and Katoomba, were showing a 15 h.p. Napier car. The English-built five-passenger body, finished in grey, and the equipment generally, were of the highest possible order. This Napier is one of the few English cars on exhibition with a "straight through" or "quadrant" style gear change and three forward speeds. Rudge detachable wire wheels were fitted.



ERONI BROS.' CH G LANDLOCK, BY LANDSLIP—DAM BY LOCHIEL.

Winning the "Denman" High Jump at 6ft 6in, ridden by G. Eroni. Landlock subsequently broke the "Royal" Sydney record of 6ft 10in by clearing 7ft, and securing the special prize of £10.

PRIDDLES, LIMITED.

The Read "30," a moderate-priced American machine, new to Sydney, was shown by Priddles, Limited, Lewisham. The multiple-disc clutch, with 16 discs (steel to steel), and the Read system of lubrication, were the outstanding features of a five-passenger car of considerable promise.

E. E. CARTER.

In the Hall of Industries E. E. Carter, of the Waverley Cycle and Motor Works, had a large and comprehensive exhibit of Waverley cycles and accessories.

BUSINESS TURNOUTS.

The only ring judging yesterday was in connection with the business turnouts, waggons, and lorries. Taken all round they were a fine collection, and gave the judge plenty of work to select the winners. For the four-horse lorry turn-out, there were two entries. The winning quartette was owned by George Hudson and Sons, Ltd., who entered four fine blue greys. They scored 99 points. Webb, Ltd., with four fine roans secured the red ribbon with 85 points.

Only one exhibit faced the judge in the two-horse lorry turn-out, and Mr. McMahon had no hesitation in giving the blue ribbon to L. Thompson. The judge remarked that he had never seen a better horse than one of the pair in the lorry. Four competitors appeared in the one-horse lorry turn-out, the decision being T. G. Smith (100 points), first; the British Imperial Oil Company (95 points), second.

There were three entries in the four-horse heavy delivery waggon turnout, the blue ribbon going to Catward Bros., who obtained 98 points, and the red ribbon to Grace Bros., who scored 95 points.

Seven competitors faced the judge in the timber dray turnout. This section took some weeding out, for the seven entries were really first class. The blue ribbon went to C. Swadling and Sons, who gained 97 points, George Hudson and Son, Ltd., being only two points behind.

In the one-horse delivery cart turnout, John Wilkinson obtained the first prize with 100 points, Hawkins and Abberton being second with 77 points. J. T. Goodwin secured the blue ribbon for the licensed delivery van turnout.

In the pony delivery cart turnout, there was only one entry, and E. Reardon was awarded first prize. Two competitors came before the judge in the light four-wheeled waggon, two horses, and the blue ribbon went to J. Podesta and Sons. There were four exhibits in the light four-wheeled delivery waggon, one horse, Frank Bowman obtaining first prize, and Sargents, Ltd., second prize. There were half-a-dozen entries in the light two-wheeled delivery cart, one horse, the blue ribbon going to the New South Wales Fresh Food and Ice Company, Ltd., and the red ribbon to J. A. Chalker. Four competitors entered an appearance in the turnout for advertising business, and the prize went to Frank Bowman.

COB IN HARNESS.

There were three entries in the cob in harness not under 14.2 hands, and not exceeding 15 hands. The judge had no hesitation in giving the blue ribbon to Mr. Anthony Hordern's g m Belle, a beautiful mover, with Mr. A. S. Speers's b g Rex second.

PONY SULKY TURNOUT.

There were 19 entries in the pony sulky turnout, the pony not to exceed 14 hands. The judge, Mr. J. F. McKellar, expressed himself as highly delighted with the exhibits. He stated unhesitatingly that they were the best lot of ponies he had ever judged in any ring. The sulky turnouts, too, were remarkably good. It was some time before the judge could draft the exhibits out, and even then he could not make up his mind to single out the winner. He put the ponies through their paces again and again, the blue ribbon falling to B. B. Capper's blk g Rook, by Romulus from Mona, a pretty animal, with excellent action. W. H. Shutes's Master Jacabah secured the red ribbon. He, too, had splendid action.

POLO PONY.

There were seven entries for the polo pony, the ponies not to exceed 14.2 hands. The stewards made each competitor go through his paces, then the riders were called upon to act as though they were playing polo. The midgets did well, especially the winner, who appeared to be well trained. She raced, wheeled, and turned about with a rare turn of speed that won warm applause from all parts of the ground. The blue ribbon went to Mr. R. O. Middleton's dark ch m Phyllis, bred at Douglas, N.S.W., and got by Laddie from Dolly. She is about as perfect a polo pony as ever set foot on the show grounds. The red ribbon went to Mr. James Chittick's b g Fluco, by Dynamite, who also showed up well.

WINES.

The wine section of the show possesses many features that lend to a wide interest. Perhaps the interest was to some extent accentuated yesterday because it was Good Friday. On Thursday next the real testing day of the wines of the show will commence, when the annual "wine tasting" will take place.

Earl Grey during his recent visit was very favourably impressed with the quality of Australian wines, and before sailing he placed an order with Penfold and Co., of this city, for a shipment of claret, hock, and Minchinbury sparkling wines, to be sent to his London address.

WHEAT.

A WORKING MODEL ELEVATOR.

The idea of exhibiting a working model of the bulk handling system was well conceived, and should prove of great assistance to the man on the land. It was supplied and erected by Henry Simon, Ltd., of Manchester, having done similar service previously in India. It is a miniature wheat elevator, much the same as that used in America. Each section of the machinery is a copy in miniature of an elevator capable of 40,000 bushels capacity, the model being one-sixteenth of the actual size. The farmer brings in his wheat in drays or waggons—one sees the tiny vehicles drawn up alongside the elevator—and it is taken in at the receiving hopper. Canary seed represents the wheat in the model, and one is shown the grain taken up by the elevator to the automatic weighing machine. Thence it passes to the warehouse separator for cleaning, then through a distributing elevator to the wheat bins. The farmer would receive a voucher for the quantity and quality of his wheat, and in the event of the elevator people selling the wheat it would be taken from the storage bins on to the distributing bins, thence to trucks, according to loading. If the elevator were at a terminal the wheat would arrive in bulk.

HORTICULTURAL SHOW.

Messrs. Anderson and Company have an attractive exhibit near the main entrance, and the beautiful lawns, flowers, trees, and shrubs are a refreshing sight amidst the whirl of machinery. Many fine specimens of ornamental trees are growing in their natural state, and the ornate kiosk contains samples of the finest agricultural seeds. Lovers of the gladiolus will find much to charm them in the display of these blooms.

The Domain fireplace will be available for billy boiling during the Easter holidays. Dry firewood will be provided, and fresh water may be obtained from the fountain near at hand.

SCIENCE CONGRESS.

THE SYDNEY MEETING.

DETAILS OF ARRANGEMENTS.

Active preparations are being made for the great meetings of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, which will be held in Australia in August. Mr. J. H. Maiden, the hon. secretary for New South Wales, stated yesterday that the arrangements were now almost complete.

The overseas visitors, who will number about 400, will reach Adelaide on August 8, on which day the official opening will take place. The first address will be delivered by the retiring president (Sir Oliver Lodge), and will be followed by addresses by Sir Charles Lucas, late head of the Dominions Department of the Colonial Office, president of the geographical section, and Mr. A. D. Hall, late director of the Rothamsted Agricultural Station, and now a commissioner under the Development Act, who is president of the agriculture section.

On Thursday, August 13, the party will reach Melbourne, and the meeting will be continued there till August 19. The main features of the Melbourne programme are the address by Professor William Bateson, the president of the association, and the presidential addresses in the following sections:—Physics, by Professor F. T. Trouton, of University College, London; chemistry, by Professor W. J. Pope, of Cambridge University; zoology, by Professor A. Dendy, of King's College, University of London; economics and statistics, by Professor Gonner, of Liverpool University; and physiology, by Dr. Martin, director of the Lister Institute, London.

On August 20, and for the week following, the meeting will be continued in Sydney, where Professor Bateson, who is one of the greatest authorities on biology and a leading exponent of Mendelism, will deliver the second part of his inaugural address in the Town Hall, and presidential addresses will be delivered in the following sections:—Geology, by Sir T. H. Holland, of Manchester University; anthropology, by Sir Everard im Thurn, late Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner for the Western Pacific; engineering, by Professor E. G. Coker, of the City and Guilds of London Technical College; botany, by Professor F. O. Bower, of Glasgow University; and educational science, by Professor John Perry, late Professor in the Royal College of Science, South Kensington. "These are five splendid subjects for Sydney, and of special interest to us here," remarked Mr. Maiden last evening. He added that it had to be remembered that the exponents of other subjects to be discussed in Adelaide, Melbourne, and Brisbane would also be in Sydney, and would doubtless be heard here too.

The meetings of the sections in Sydney are to take place at the University, but the lectures and the address of the president of the association are to take place in the Town Hall, which has been engaged by the association for every night during this memorable week. The programme includes two classes of lectures. Two of citizens or workingmen's lectures are to be delivered, one on some biochemical subject, by Professor Benjamin Moore (Professor of Bio-chemistry at the University College at Liverpool), and the other by Sir Henry Hardinge Cunynghame, either on "The History of Clocks" or "The Prevention of Explosions in Mines." The Workers' Educational Association, which is affiliated with the Trades Hall, is to be invited to make the arrangements for these two lectures, which will be free. Then there will be two lectures in the Town Hall by Professor Sir Ernest Rutherford and Dr. Grafton Elliott Smith, both of whom are in the front rank of the world's scientific men.

For a number of the visitors private hospitality will have to be provided, and Mr. Maiden states that there has been a generous response to the committee's appeal in this connection. An excursion programme is now being drawn up by the Sydney committee, and will include visits to places of scientific and scenic interest, and opportunities will also be afforded of allowing the visitors to see as much of the resources of the State as possible.

No technical qualification is required for admission as a member or associate of the British association, the terms being as follow:—Life members £10; annual members, attending meetings at more than one centre, that is, for example, at both Sydney and Melbourne, £2; members attending meetings at one centre only, £1; associates attending at more than one centre, or at Melbourne only, or Sydney only, £1; attending at Adelaide or Brisbane only, 10s. Ladies may join on the same terms. Members and associates' tickets entitle the holders, on equal terms, to participate in all general and sectional meetings, evening discourses, etc. Members will receive the handbook of the Commonwealth, which has been specially compiled for the meeting, together with the annual report, giving a complete record of the meeting. Forms of application for admission as member or associate can be obtained on application to the hon. secretary for New South Wales, Mr. J. H. Maiden, and subscriptions should be sent to the hon. treasurer, Dr. Chapman, Royal Society's House, Elizabeth-street.

THE GIRL RIDER.

Miss Grace Waugh, the 16-year-old girl who made the successful overland ride from Melbourne to Sydney on a little Arab pony in 11 days, was the recipient of a valuable astride saddle at Wirth's Circus on Thursday night. The saddle was the gift of Mr. W. Kinnear, Bourke-street, Melbourne.

AMUSEMENTS.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

Holiday matinees of "The Forty Thieves" are announced at Her Majesty's Theatre for to-day and Monday, at 1.45, evening performances beginning at 7.45. The new pantomime has been splendidly put on, with dazzling ballets and transformation scenes. Messrs. Barry Lupino and Edwin Brett, Misses Jessie Lonnen, Dorothy Firmin, Marie Eaton, and other artists are prominent.

THEATRE ROYAL.

On Monday there will be a holiday performance of "Joseph and His Brethren," a drama certain to draw a great audience to-night. The Biblical story has been sumptuously staged at the Theatre Royal. The nocturnal glimpses of the desert and the gorgeous interiors of Pharaoh's palace form the background of a narrative in which Miss Ethel Warwick figures as the enchantress Zuleika.

CRITERION THEATRE.

At the Criterion Theatre there will be matinees to-day and Monday, at 2.15, with evening representations of "Never Say Die" at 8.15, and this laughable American play is certain to attract great audiences. Mr. Fred Niblo appears as the buoyant hero, in love with a prohibited bride, and the latter part is attractive in the hands of Miss Josephine Cohan.

PALACE THEATRE—ALLEN DOONE.

Mr. Allen Doone, not being allowed to attempt records, motored leisurely over to Sydney from Melbourne, arriving here yesterday, and will open his Easter season at the Palace Theatre to-night in a revival of the popular patriotic Irish drama, "The Wearing of the Green." Mr. Doone will be seen in the part of Phillip Fitzgerald, and will sing during the course of the play "Nora M'Namara," "A Four Leafed Clover," "Ireland, My Ireland," and the forbidden song which gives the play its title. Mr. Doone will be supported by Miss Edna Keeley and other members of his company. The box plan is at Paling's, but for Easter Monday the plan will be at the White Rose, near the Palace Theatre.

LITTLE THEATRE.

The last performance of Arnold Bennett's clever and amusing comedy, "The Great Adventure," will be given at the Little Theatre to-night. The main hall will contain the stalls, which have been designed by Mr. Leslie Board, and carried out by Mr. Graham Weatherley. These include a fine representation of the Rialto ("Merchant of Venice"), the stall occupied by the literary committee. The Shakespeare Society will preside over an Old English Shoppe. The prices of admission will be 1s and 6d, except on the afternoon of the official opening.

MISS ELLA CASPERS'S SEASON.

Miss Ella Caspers's return should prove a welcome event to concert-goers here, many of whom joined in the great send-off function in her honour at the Town Hall seven or eight years ago. The Sydney contralto, whose final engagements in London was at the Ballad Concerts at the Royal Albert Hall, two days before she sailed, will make her re-appearance at the Sydney Town Hall on May 7, with a matinee on Saturday, May 9.

SYDNEY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

The committee of the Sydney Symphony Orchestra announce that Herr Edward Goll, the Bohemian pianist, will play the Mendelssohn "G Minor Concerto" at the first concert of the season at the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon, May 2. The programme will also include:—"Symphony in C Major" (Schubert), "Valse Melancolique" (Tchaikowsky), "Midsummer Night's Dream," Scherzo (Mendelssohn), and the "Peer Gynt" Suite (No. 1). On her arrival in London Miss Barnett studied for a time under Signor Valenti, and then with Madame Minna Fischer. Since then she has sung for six seasons with Beecham's Opera Company, both in London and in the provinces. On tour she understudied as Elizabeth in "Tannhauser," and at Covent Garden she has had a part several times in Strauss's "Elektra." Miss Barnett, who found plenty to do during her connection with the operatic stage in Europe, hopes to remain here for about six months.

Paling's, Ltd., are giving an invitation concert in Paling's Hall, Ash-street, on Wednesday, April 15, at 8 p.m., when, in addition to a well-selected programme of Claviola music, the recital will be augmented by the assistance of Miss Leila Jeffery (violinist), and Mr. A. SPENCER'S LYCEUM.

Two months ago an intrepid cinematographer—Mr. Frederick Burlingham—descended the crater of Vesuvius, and secured a series of motion pictures, measuring 1500 feet, which will be screened at Spencer's Lyceum to-day. Never before have similar views been obtained. After illustrating the surroundings of the great volcano, the picture shows a distant view of the two-mile deep pit filled with boiling lava; the edge of the funnel when the crater floor caved in; and the edge of the abyss 1212 feet down—the lowest point to which man can descend in Vesuvius. The dramatic feature in the programme is a four-reel photo-play by the Pathe Freres Company, entitled "A Woman of the People."

"A Day of Days," the story of "one crowded hour of glorious life" in New York, ending with a happy marriage, is to be the feature film of Monday's programme at the Crystal Palace. Other items are Australian Gazette, "Harry Lauder Golfing in Scotland," "Tailing—a novel Swiss sport," and "Up in a Balloon."

The feature of next Monday's change at the Lyric will be "The Dancer," a tale of stage life on "The Great White Way." Topical Budget, "Wiffles Gets Kidnapped," "In Upper Egypt," and "Bidoni in Medieval Times" will also be included.

The new programme at the Colonial Theatre on Monday will include Gaumont Graphic, "The Reward," "Jim's Close Attention," "Polidor and the See-saw," and an Indian story called "The Tigers of the Hills."

Warwick Chronicle, "True Western Hearts," "The Golf Game and the Bonnet," "A Tile Missing," and a story entitled "An American King," concerning a Yankee business man who preferred love to a crown, will be shown at the Empress Theatre on Monday.

WHITE CITY.

Thousands of people visited the White City yesterday, and appeared thoroughly to enjoy the promenade concert provided by the City's admirably trained orchestra. It seems to be generally agreed that Wednesday's carnival was in all respects one of the most brilliantly successful functions held in Sydney for many years. Even "the courts where Jamshyd gloried and drank deep" could scarcely have displayed a more glittering wealth of colour, and certainly never so cosmopolitan and cosmogeneous a mixture of costumes of every age and country. The prospect of a second carnival, to take place on April 15, is regarded with widespread and keen anticipation.

WIRTH'S CIRCUS.

All the world loves a circus, and in the circus at present exhibited by Wirth Bros. at Prince Alfred Park, Sydney has an entertainment which, like Halley's comet, only appears in the local sky once in a while, and is well worth seeing when it does. Besides the numerous artists, such as Madame Bernac and Co., the Rowland Family, Doblados and his trained animals, and a score of others, the menagerie, now greatly enlarged, is, if not altogether a feast of beauty (the most desperate of decadents could scarcely rave over the esthetic thrill aroused by a Hairless Horse or a Blood-sweating Hippopotamus), a joy for ever to the child that never wholly grows up in the hearts even of the oldest among us.

CENTENNIAL SKATING RINK.

One of the charms of the Centennial Park Roller Skating Rink at Bondi Junction is its remarkable coolth, no matter what may be the temperature of the air outside. No doubt this is one at least of the reasons why its huge floor is nearly always filled to its utmost capacity. The enjoyment of the visitor is enhanced by an excellent band, which performs at all three sessions.

THE DANDIES.

"The Dandies," under the management of Mr. Edward Branscombe, who are appearing nightly at the Coronation Hall, Bondi Junction, and Eden Gardens, Manly, have firmly established themselves with the theatregoing public. Fresh novelties are introduced nightly, and the programmes are changed completely every Friday evening. Special holiday attractions are in preparation for Easter week.

VICE-REGAL CONCERT BAND.

On Sunday, April 19, at the Glaciarium, Mr. De Groen will conduct his Vice-Regal Concert Band in a programme full of interest. Foremost will be Tchaikowsky's famous Overture, 1812, in its entirety, the Metropolitan Band assisting in the Grand Finale. Liszt's Rhapsody (No. 14), and Dan Godfrey's arrangement of Verdi's "La Traviata" will also be included. Mr. Frank Miles (from London) will make his first appearance, and will sing excerpts from Faust and Lucretia Borgia. West's, Ltd., have promised a fine programme of pictures. The proceeds will go to the Band's Benevolent Fund.

WEST'S PICTURES.

The holiday attraction at West's Theatres is "The Three Shadows." This brilliant picture is a stirring story of a daring crime, which brought forth many rewards, and included in the long cast is that of the personage of La Ravelli, who is said to be an adventuress of a particularly daring type. "The Three Shadows" will doubtless attract enormous audiences at both performances to-day. On Monday West's will screen for the first time in Sydney a big seascape, entitled "Atlantis." This is said to be 6000ft in length, and is from the studio of Nordisk. There will be the usual holiday matinee at both theatres, starting at 2.30 on Monday. De Groen's Vice-Regal Orchestra will supply the incidental music at both theatres.

PICTURES OF ALASKA AND SIBERIA.

On Good Friday, at the Palace Theatre, hundreds of people viewed a wonderful series of pictures taken by Mr. Beverly B. Dobbs, in the Arctic. Polar bear hunting in the Behring Sea and walrus shooting off Siberia provide something new in the scope of cinematography. Sometimes Mr. Dobbs worked in an atmosphere 45 deg. below zero, when the films were virtually freezing in the camera.

The screen first showed the Eskimo capsizing their kyacks, and righting themselves again. Phases of the All-Alaska dog team championship, over 420 miles, which was won in 74 hours, proved thrilling on the rough snow tracks and in blinding blizzards. One competing team was blown out to sea on an ice floe, but gained safety. Fort Davis and its snow trenches, the City of Nome (which was recently entirely engulfed), the Eskimo seal-hunters on the trail, and in their igloos, and the exciting chase of a polar bear, keep the spectator absorbed in the series. The second and even more remarkable series depicts the cruise of a stout little schooner, "The Sea Wolf," along the north coast of Siberia. On the Sea Wolf's voyage, beautiful ice-bank reflections were secured, and on the frozen sea herds of walrus were discovered. One of the many walrus secured was a bull, weighing 800lbs.

CONCERT AT SPORTS GROUND.

Over two thousand people attended a continental promenade concert given at Sydney Sports Ground by the Sydney Professional Band, under the conductorship of Mr. A. O'Brien. It was the first public concert of its kind held in Sydney for some time, and proved an unqualified success. Chorus songs were sung by the audience with spirit, and the whole of the proceedings had a true continental atmosphere.

The band, which numbered about 50 performers, contributed several delightful numbers, and during the rendering of the grand overture, "Solennelle, 1812," a fireworks display took place. Among the contributors to the programme were Messrs. Harold Williams, E. Tarr, and T. Stannard.

MR. J. J. GILTINAN AND LEAGUE FOOTBALL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have noticed with very deep regret the legal reports in your columns referring to the personal financial troubles of Mr. J. J. Giltinan, the founder of the New South Wales League football. Apparently these troubles originated with the visit of the first league team to England. But, although this pioneer venture ended with a deficit, it "blazed the track" for other successful visits later on. No one will dispute the fact that although it was a financial failure the visit was also a splendid advertisement for Australia and for New South Wales in particular, and no member of the New South Wales Rugby League anticipated that it would end in bringing financial disaster to the founder of the league.

Being connected with the governing body of the league at its origin, and having taken a very prominent part in the reorganisation of the league during the dark days in its history in 1909-10, I would like to state through your columns that had I known then that Mr. Giltinan had given a personal bond to meet the deficit incurred by the first venture abroad of a League team, I would not have been identified with any attempt to oust him from the position of secretary until, at least, he was relieved from this financial guarantee. Unfortunately, Mr. Giltinan, on his return from England, did not take the executive or myself into his confidence. Had he done so the results might have been different.

The secretaryship will become vacant shortly, and, in my opinion, the least that the League body can do is to offer the position to Mr. Giltinan. Every true sportsman will regret to learn of the financial disaster that has unfortunately overtaken Mr. Giltinan, and would be pleased to know that he was relieved of this heavy burden. I am also sure that the majority of the members of the League body still retain some sense of their obligations to Mr. Giltinan, and have no desire to see their game flourish on the financial ruin of its founder. If, however, it would wound their feelings to replace Mr. Giltinan in the old position, the least they could do would be to organise a benefit for him.

I am certain that the Sydney public would respond magnificently if a public testimonial to Mr. Giltinan was organised to clear off this heavy obligation that he has incurred on behalf of the League.

I am, etc.,
ALEXANDER KNOX,
Past Chairman N.S.W. Rugby F.B.L.

AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB.

AUTUMN MEETING.

FIRST DAY.

ANTICIPATIONS.

The autumn reunion of the Australian Jockey Club opens this afternoon, with bright prospects, for favourable weather seems assured, the metropolitan heath never looked better at this time of year, and the verdant carpet covering the track and reserves is more suggestive of advanced spring than late autumn. The track is first-class going, large fields are likely to be the rule, and the equine talent which will be seen out under silk during the afternoon gives promise of high-class racing. The programme includes a hurdle race, a classic event each for two and three years old, a w.f.a. race, the big mile handicap of the autumn, and a contest under welter-weights, and a more varied and attractive bill of fare could not be desired.

The management has made ample provision for the comfort and convenience of the large muster that may be expected at head-quarters this afternoon. With the double-decker grandstand and the space set apart on the official stand for the general public, there should be ample seating accommodation; and as the new "Tea House" capable of seating upwards of 1300 persons will be open there should be no difficulty in that branch of the catering department; while the usual dining saloons in the grand and official stands will be available as usual.

The transit arrangements by rail, and which include special services from Circular Quay via Elizabeth, Pitt, and Oxford streets, and from the railway loop, via Cleveland-street, will be supplemented by a special service starting from St. James'-road, city, and running between 11.30 and 1 p.m. A first-class tram leaves Bridge-street yard at noon, and on the return trip starts from Darley-road platform on the Coogee line, 20 minutes after the finish of the last race, while special services will also be run via Newtown-road Junction and Cleveland-street, from Enmore, Balmain, Glebe Point, and Leichhardt, so that there will be ample means of conveyance to and from the racecourse.

The sport commences at 1 p.m. with the First Hurdle Race, and the contest will be all the more interesting owing to the Victorian and New Zealand horses engaged. North-east, who heads the list, comes from New Zealand with a good reputation, and should be able to give a good account of himself under 12st 8lb, while his compatriot Forest Prince has not been overburdened when asked to carry 11st 10lb. With 4lb less Paymaster appears to have a good chance, and so does Fiddlestring with 11st 2lb; while Hallmark, Loughrea, Clontaft, Briarberry, and Demand each and all appear to have fair prospects. The brunt of the battle may fall to North East, Paymaster, Fiddlestring, Loughrea, and Briarberry, and the places may go to Paymaster, North-East, and Fiddlestring.

An interesting contest is promised for the Autumn Stakes among Aurofodina, Alured, Midnight Sun, Bon Ton, and Audacity, and the numbers may be hoisted for Alured, Audacity, and Bon Ton.

With 16 contestants for the Sires' Produce Stakes, most of whom have already gained the winning list, a great race may be anticipated. The most likely to figure prominently in the final stages are Mountain Knight, Australian Boy, Sir Bobadil, Garlin, Eugeny, and Spica, and the judge may declare for Eugeny, Mountain Knight, and Sir Bobadil, unless separated by Australian Boy.

The first Doncaster Handicap, in 1871, resulted in a dead-heat between Sir William and Lottery, and on that occasion there were 12 runners; the field in the following year was two short of that number, but gradually the musters at the post were increasing, and high-water mark was reached in 1892, when, in a field of 36, the brilliant Marvel was successful under the steadying burden of 10st 4lb, and a similar number took part in the race of 1893, when the late Mr. James Mitchell's Cremorne was victorious. In the meantime the fields have ranged from 21 to 33, so that with 28 eligibles to-day, the field will, in point of numbers, be above the average; and, taken as a whole, the quality of the field ranks among the best in the annals of the race. The battle over the mile will be all the more interesting by the presence of interstate and New Zealand horses to measure strides with the local talent. The race wears a very open appearance. Gigandra, who heads the list, should be well suited with 9st 8lb, but the length of the trip may trouble the son of Ibex. Cider may be trusted to run a good horse under 9st 4lb, and, with an even 9st, Golden Hop has been left with a chance. Aleconner is not attractive, but Iownit should give a good account of himself under 8st 12lb, and, on the same mark, Maltchester should run well. Aurifer must have a particularly good look in with 8st 11lb, and Lilyveil, now that he appears to have regained form, must be regarded as dangerous with 8st 10lb. Gold Brew should act well under 8st 10lb, and, with 5lb less, Rathlea has not been overrated. Bon Reve should act well under 8st 4lb, and with 2lb less, Lochano must take a deal of beating. Among the others whose chances should not be overlooked are Sir Willie, Beau Soult, Owen Roe, Brattle, Sunlike, Averse, Brunnhilda, and Secrete. The most likely to be in the fighting line when the final question is being put are Cider, Golden Hop, Iownit, Aurifer, Lilyveil, Lochano, Sunlike, Brunnhilda, and Secrete, and the judge may declare Aurifer, Lochano, and Iownit, unless separated by Brunnhilda.

The St. Leger Stakes should be a soft snap for Radnor, with Beragoon to escort him past the post.

The Highweight Handicap will bring the afternoon's sport to a close, and the most likely to fight out the finish are Alfred Jackson, Symetris, Erungella, Sound Asleep, and Podonon, and the situations may go to Alfred Jackson, Symetris, and Sound Asleep.

WHEN YOUR BABY GURGLES

you are content, because you know your child is well and happy. It is the non-thriving baby that is fretful, cross, and never smiles, but causes you constant worry and anxiety.

It is the breast-fed baby that has the best chance in life—that is why every mother ought, if possible, to feed her baby from the breast. If the breast milk is insufficient in quantity or deficient in quality it can in most cases be enriched or increased by the mother herself taking Glaxo, or foods cooked with Glaxo, such as boiled rice, rice puddings, cocoa, etc.

Because Glaxo is simply the solids of pure milk, with extra cream and milk-sugar added; and because the Glaxo process causes the nourishing milk-curd to form into minute soft particles, it is easily digested by all babies.

It is only necessary to add hot water to Glaxo for baby to receive at once the equivalent of fresh, clean, germ-free milk.

Glaxo is recommended by doctors and used in Hospitals for Children throughout the world.

NEWS AGENCY and FANCY GOODS, Stamp Agency, and Patterns.—Just imagine, 17,000 (seventeen thousand) papers per week, block run, no sub-agencies. Without brains a money-maker, and with brains a fortune. It has no equal in the State, none so compact, and none so easily worked, the whole district being as level as a bowling green, no district so flourishing, and within a whisper of the twopenny section, and for many years the district has topped the poll for housebuilding, and every additional house means additional papers. Two shops from the leading suburban corner, tram stop right in front of shop door, right in the hub. A sure fortune, and only changed hands once in thirty years. A double-fronted shop of seven rooms, with all conveniences, electric light and gas, and a six and a half years' lease to run at 35s per week. Turnover about £100 per week. Price required for papers £100 per thousand on proved papers only, no goodwill, and stock (about £400) at valuation, including library, cash register, pony and sulky.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

SPECIAL SUMMER SALE OF PIANOS, PIANOLA PIANOS, AND PLAYER-PIANOS.

OVER 100 SLIGHTLY-USED PIANOS, ALSO SOME SLIGHTLY-USED PIANOLA PIANOS AND OTHER PLAYER-PIANOS NOW BEING OFFERED AT PIANOLA HALL.

Special sales of seldom-used Pianos at Pianola Hall have gained a wide celebrity for two things—first, the immediate opportunity they offer the public of securing high-grade Pianos in excellent condition much under their real value; second (and this is equally important), the unmistakable impression that such a collection conveys of the tremendous success of the PIANOLA PIANO, Steinway, Steck, Weber, and Stroud.

Therefore, when a special sale is announced the public has come to understand that it means a real opportunity. These Pianos have come to us for an extraordinary reason, the tremendous popularity and demand for the genuine PIANOLA PIANO. People who would otherwise keep their pianos for years of service are so anxious to secure this new type of instrument which ANYONE can play that they are exchanging their pianos with which they were not merely satisfied, but in which they took great pride prior to the coming of the PIANOLA PIANO. If you could see the homes from which many of these instruments have come you would then understand better the genuine character of the present opportunity.

A remarkable selection of High-class Pianos, some second-hand, the majority only slightly used, at greatly-reduced prices.

USED UPRIGHTS and GRANDS of FAMOUS MAKERS. Here are 7 Lipps, 8 Ronisch, 1 Bechstein, 8 Stecks, 4 Bluthners, 3 Brinsmeads, 2 Feurich, 2 Gors and Kallmann, 2 Victors, Beale, Collard and Collard, Belling, Schwechten, Forster, etc., etc.

Also an excellent selection of Genuine PIANOLA PIANOS, together with a number of slightly-used Player-Pianos. This assortment includes 7 Steck Pianola Pianos, 2 Steinway Pianola Pianos, 2 Stroud Pianola Pianos, 3 Ronisch Claviolas, 2 Auto Pianos, 4 Jansen Angelus, 1 Broadwood Player-Piano, 1 Spencer Player-Piano, and 40 exchanged Pianolas. Themodist and Metrostyle attachable to any Piano at prices from £15, £20, £25, £30, to £45.

IMPORTANT.—Every Instrument at this Sale may be bought subject to the conditions that the full purchase price will be allowed in exchange within three months for any brand new instruments from our stock of over 200—NEW PIANOS AND PIANOLA PIANOS—200.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

A PIANOLA OR A PIANOLA PIANO WILL AFFORD A LIFETIME'S ENJOYMENT.

With the aid of the Pianola you can play at once without any previous study or practice any piece of music, from the simplest song to the most difficult and classical selection.

With a catalog of over 20,000 pieces to select from, you can always have bright new music in the home. The latest successes are added often sooner than the sheet music itself is placed on sale.

THE PIANOLA.
A separate attachment in cabinet form, which may be used with any Piano and removed from the Piano when not in use. Price, 45 Guineas up.

THE PIANOLA PIANO.
An upright Piano of one of the following well-known makes with the genuine Themodist Pianola inside its case. Playable both by hand and with a Pianola Music Roll (65 or 88 note).
STEINWAY PIANOLA PIANO,
STECK PIANOLA PIANO,
WEBER PIANOLA PIANO,
STROUD PIANOLA PIANO,
120 GUINEAS UP.

STEINWAY,
STECK,
WEBER,
285 GUINEAS UP.
Moderate Monthly Payments. Liveral allowance on Pianos of other makes taken in exchange.

PIANOS WITHOUT PIANOLAS.
If you are buying a Piano of the conventional type, do not make your selection until you have visited Pianola Hall. Here are the headquarters of two of the world's most famous Pianos—the STECK and the WEBER. Here will also be found the Stroud, a Piano of widely recognised excellence. From 45 guineas up.
USED PIANOS OF CELEBRATED MAKES.
The Exchange Department presents unusual opportunities. Here are to be found Pianos bearing the names of the best-known makers, such as Bechstein, Bluthner, Steck, Ronisch, Feurich, Lipp, etc. These Pianos have come to the Pianola Hall in part exchange for the Pianola Piano. They have come from Sydney's finest homes, and usually had little or no use, and are practically indistinguishable from new, either in musical quality or appearance. It is now understood that the exchange Pianos at Pianola Hall constitute real bargains in the fullest sense of the word.

IMPORTANT.
Do not make the mistake of supposing that any Piano Player is a Pianola. The genuine Pianola, with its vital and exclusive improvements, the Metro-style, the Themodist, the Graduated Accompaniment Device, etc., can be obtained only in the Steinway, Weber, Steck, and Stroud Pianos. In buying an imitation, the purchaser sacrifices the many important advantages which have given the Pianola its world-wide success.

FARMERS,

INVEST YOUR MONEY IN A HOME OR HOME SITE AT

ROSEBERY, ROSEBERY,

"The Model Industrial Suburb."

If the actual Sales Figures are a true reflection of Investors' opinions about Rosebery, then this fine locality is unquestionably the most popular ever offered in this State; for, since March, 1912—when Rosebery was first thrown open to the public—to date, the Auditors assert to over £100,000 worth of Buildings and Building Sites having been sold.
A substantial portion of this huge sum represents sales of Home Sites, proving conclusively that many are looking to the near future, when their purchase will have almost doubled itself in value—surely a "Gilt-edged" proposition. Why not buy a couple of Sites NOW on our remarkably EASY TERMS?

£5 DEPOSIT WILL SECURE ANY LOT.

Lots measure from 40 to 50 feet frontages x 140 to 150 feet depths—just a nice Building Site. The Balance is payable at £1 per month.

OR ANOTHER MAGNIFICENT INVESTMENT IS A HOME

on this go-ahead Estate. We build to your own design at prices ranging from £695 to £900. No two designs are alike. The terms are £50 deposit, the Balance payable at 25/ per week. You could let a place like this immediately it was finished, make a profit on your outlay, and still have the Home for the time when you decide to live in the City.

You should get the fullest particulars and view Rosebery at once.

SUTTON FOREST, VIA MOSS VALE.
And a pleasant, easy drive or motor therefrom.
ROTHERWOOD, the Country Residence of C. Bennett, Esq., on MAIN ROAD, through the VILLAGE, with 300 ACRES OF LAND, mostly cleared.

ROTHERWOOD is an attractive and commodious FAMILY RESIDENCE, most substantially built of brick, slate roof, having verandahs, noble hall, drawing, dining, and breakfast rooms, library, smoking-room, six bedrooms, linen-room, pantries, tea-room, 3 bathrooms, liquor-room, five rooms for maids, cupboard, etc., kitchen, scullery, servants' hall, made basement as dairy, storeroom, etc. Appropriately placed are beautiful billiard-room, children's playhouse, hothouse for plants.

There are also gunroom, boxroom, and workroom.

There is a community of buildings at the rear, embracing every requisite for the efficient working of the place, such as stabling, garage, and farm premises, man's cottage, together with a neat brick lodge of 5 apartments at entrance gate.

The grounds are a perfect charm as spacious lawns, walks, flower beds, and shrub plants, the whole supplied by water conducted by gravitation from permanent springs on the hill within the property boundary, which also supply water for a SWIMMING BATH—a feature of interest, as its size is spacious, — feet x — feet depth, from 4ft to 8ft of water.

A splendid carriage drive is from gate to house, bounded by well-grown shapely trees, making a nice presentment; indeed, inspection alone will convey to a visitor the excellence of the property, which affords a perfect home and congenial productiveness from the soil, noted for its quality. An excellent orchard and garden minister to house needs.

The climate is proverbial for its health-giving and bracing delight. Train service is good, and road from Moss Vale (5 miles distant) is in good order and easy to traverse.

Area of land is 300 acres, comprising several paddocks. Possession can be given early, and a treaty for private sale entered into prior to auction if desired.

Cards to view on application to Auctioneers.

READY-MADE FARMS.
A NEW SCHEME.
BENEFITS FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Dear Sir,
Under the above heading you mentioned a new idea. Will you allow me to say that the same scheme has been carried out by me for the last seven years to a successful issue, as a visit by someone interested to the WARNER ESTATE will prove. Just as you say, many, after a year or two, have been able to finance their own farms. I have over 300 purchasers on my estate, many of whom have now paid up and now own their own farms. One in particular, who bought 5 years ago, now owns his farm, which he values at £3000, having returns as high as £330 a year, with prospects of double so soon as his citrus trees bear. When first I decided to cut up the estate I noted many had so little money to do the pioneer work that I decided if they could only get a start many a good man would succeed where he now fails. So I determined to get the farms put into order so a man can start at once without the loss of time which means so much capital. The idea I installed was to fence a block, clear, and plough and plant with trees a large area, build a house on it, and in some cases furnish it, and the terms on which I sell are 10 per cent deposit, balance in 5, 10, 15, or 20 years, with half-yearly payments. I also sell virgin farm blocks on the same terms, and as we have a rainfall of 52 inches everything goes well. As further proof of our ideas and progress we now propose to throw a weir over the river to dam back the fresh water, and our levels show that we will be able to back up the water for miles, thus giving the farms an absolute freshwater frontage. Should any of your readers be interested in the above, or wish to secure a farm or block for retirement after the heavy part of life has past, or wish to put a son or relative on the land where they can spend their week-ends with him, then I will be pleased to give them any information by calling on me any day between 11 and 12, except Monday and Saturday, or any time by appointment.

THE FINEST SHOW OF MOTOR CARS IN SYDNEY.

OUR NEW SHOWROOM is admitted the largest and most handsome in this State. In this Showroom can be seen many cars—little ones—pretty ones—big strong ones, and others. You can see them all.

Now, we are not at the R.A. Show—we have been too busy to get there. In March we sold twenty-five Cars. This month we'll sell more.

When you buy from us, you buy from an established reputable firm—a business built up on the satisfaction owners have received from Cars we have sold them—and we have sold many hundreds of Cars here.

YOU can buy satisfaction, too—it goes with all of the following Cars:—

"OAKLAND."

The low-price Car with all the luxury—Delco electric self-starting and lighting system, five interchangeable tyres and rims; fully equipped from Khaki-coloured Hood to Speedometer; grey bodies, deep upholstery, and the gear control levers are NOT in the middle of the Car. No car is more silent or more comfortable.

"DARRACQ."

The Brand New Designs of Owen Clegg—entirely new Cars all through. The 12-15-h.p. model, with four-speed gear and C.A.V. electric lighting set and full equipment, is easily the lowest-priced high-grade Continental Car yet shown on this market. The Car is magnificently finished—has phenomenal power, and extraordinary springing. Come and see it.

"SINGER."

The Baby Runabout—the little "Rolls Royce"—the miniature of the most perfect car ever built. You can see them about the city—little biscuit-coloured cars, with strength and power all over them. Come and see the Car which sells faster than all other Baby Cars put together.

"CHALMERS."

Of course, everybody knows "Chalmers," and everybody knows we sell them—still, you may forget, so we'll simply say if you want the Premier Rough-road Car for Australian conditions it's the "Chalmers." There's no argument—it's settled—250 odd owners in this State will tell you so.

We have some ABSOLUTE BARGAINS in SECOND-HAND CARS—some thoroughly renovated and repainted—some not as good as these. We have about twenty to choose from.

The Standard 18-h.p. Minerva completed the course without the loss of a single mark. We have just opened new season's models in different powers.

SAURER MOTOR LORRY

The Saurer Motor Lorry is world-wide known for its great reliability, economy, and two of its special features, patent carburettor and patent air brake, the advantages of which are no jar on mechanism, no abnormal wear on tyres—cools the engine and saves petrol.

The French and Russian Governments purchased Saurer Lorries after severe tests of other makes, because they found them reliable, economical, easy to control, and because of their high efficiency.

We have in stock ready for delivery a 5½ ton Saurer Lorry, fitted with table-top body.

We will gladly demonstrate or supply any particulars to all interested.

SUNBEAM AND ADLER CARS

AT THE ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SHOW.

Probable buyers will be well advised to visit our Temporary Premises, 71-73 Dixon-street, off Hay-street, Haymarket, where a full line of Cars will be available for inspection.

ADLER CARS.

Have you ever made inquiries about Adlers? We can show you in the 5-13-h.p. two-seater Adler the smartest-looking, best-built light Car yet produced. The finish and workmanship of this Adler Car are of the highest quality. Buyers of small, light Cars have always to remember that the light car is mainly intended for the man who must look after it himself. Then, why buy a time-wasting car? To the professional man particularly it is most essential that the normal work about his car be as simple and cleanly as possible. A sudden call may come for the car when the owner is in the thick of some messy task. Then he will realise the advantage of the Adler Car, which can be kept in order without his becoming as grimy as a mechanic. Call, and we will prove this to you.

SUNBEAM CARS.

Sunbeam Cars need no advertising, but we must let the buyer know where to find us, and keep him posted as to deliveries, seeing that we have in the past always been behind with our orders. We are pleased to say that we have now caught up with these, and have four shipments of Sunbeams on the water at the present time. Call, and let us demonstrate the Sunbeam and Adler to you.

"IMITATION IS THE SINCEREST FORM OF FLATTERY."

Notice how our competitors are TRYING to imitate

CHARRON SIMPLICITY.

WHY? Because Simplicity in Car Construction means a inasmuch as numerous superfluous parts, which need the constant attention of trained mechanics, are dispensed with.

There are other arguments in favour of Simplicity which we cannot put forth here, as our space is limited, so if you are interested, see us at our

THE LORD MAYOR'S CAR.

The City Council recently invited Tenders for the Supply of a Motor Car for the use of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress.

They detailed off their best experts to test and try all the best cars, and after exhaustive test of all the various makes they decided on a WOLSELEY.

This proves that in competition with all makes of cars under the supervision of experts (THOSE WHO KNOW) that the WOLSELEY has no rival, even amongst our highest grade cars.

IF YOU REQUIRE THE BEST, IT MUST BE WOLSELEY.

Wolseley's Own Torpedo Phaeton Body, one man hood, Vickers Patent SELF-STARTER and tyre-inflator, C.A.V., 12 volt dynamo, electric lighting set, etc., etc., are part of the perfect equipment that goes with a WOLSELEY.

LOT 1.—Stock-in-Trade of Machines, Burners, and Accessories, at the Company's Factory, cost price	3,417	6	9

The above Company has been carrying on business for three years, and has supplied a large number of customers all over Australia, who have been thoroughly satisfied with the results obtained. Copies of testimonials may be seen at the Offices of the Company.

The above presents an excellent opportunity for a firm interested in hardware supplies for taking up and pushing this patent, or for an energetic man working it personally, as there are enormous opportunities in the country districts of Australia for this invention if properly canvassed, and the fact that a large number of satisfied customers have given testimonials should be of further assistance to new business.

which has been proved to be the best means to restore the contour of a withering face and drooping complexion. By its means the skin is cleared of retained sebaceous matter, intermingled with dirt and infective germs that cause inflammatory skin lesions, such as PIMPLES, BLACKHEADS, DISCOLOURATIONS, shrivelling, and premature WRINKLING, and at the same time a new life is given to the sluggish circulation with a persistence that eventually builds up the sunken hollows and produces a HEALTHY GLOW and TEXTURE.

CONSULT SPENCER NOLAN.

If the ache is busy at your teeth, you should pay a visit to Spencer Nolan, the Dentist.

Even if only the tiniest twinge is felt, the tooth won't get better of its own accord; but will become worse and worse. If you allow it to remain uncared for, it will certainly contaminate the other teeth—and the breath also.

Spencer Nolan's modern methods have banished the dread of the Dentist's chair. Not the slightest pain is experienced, and the work is always thorough and gentle to a degree.

Don't imagine that you cannot afford it. Spencer Nolan's fees are the very lowest possible for expert Dentistry—just read the following scale of fees; it's an eye-opener to those who are under the impression that good Dentistry is only available to those with well-filled purses.

A BEAUTIFUL SKIN FOR YOU.

(By Ada Goodsell.)

There's a beautiful—beautiful skin for you—the skin you've loved and loved and longed to have and to keep—and keep and keep. A clear, fresh skin with the wistful suggestion of pinky-whiteness in it—a skin that'll make you just the gladdest being in all the world. A little Thermol gently rubbed into the skin at night for a few weeks will remove every freckle and trace of tan and roughness and coarseness, and you'll almost think that the Good Fairy of Skin Loveliness had touched you with her Magic Wand while you slept and dreamed—dreamed of the skin you'd love to have. The biggest freckles vanish before Thermol. For pimples, blackheads, and open pores, Lethol is a sure cure. Thermol is 3/6 (post free 4/1). Lethol is 3/ (post free 3/6), from Burne, Chemists, Pitt-street, Sydney.

CREME SIMON does not produce hair, but it does cleanse and soothe the skin.

READ THIS.

A WRITTEN GUARANTEE

WILL BE GIVEN TO EVERY LADY who is treated by me for the removal of
SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS.

This GUARANTEE is to convince each Lady treated that I am willing to refund their fees if I fail to destroy the hair follicle. FURTHERMORE, I WILL FORFEIT to anyone who can prove I have failed. For fourteen years I have worked day after day, and for nearly ten years offered the above reward. So far it has not yet been claimed. This must convince each of the readers how successful my process is. I shall continue to give every satisfaction, and will be glad to demonstrate to any who are dubious the process of ELECTROLYSIS.

THIS PROCESS IS RECOGNISED BY THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AS PERMANENT. The Demonstration is given FREE OF CHARGE, so come and have a few of your

removed. It will only take a few minutes, and I will also be only too glad to give you showing you how different it is when the hair is removed permanently, and how easily the hair can grow again if the correct treatment is not given.
A FULL EXPLANATION,

SO BE CONVINCED AND COME to the EXPERT OPERATOR OF SYDNEY, WHO has had constant practice at 100 King-street.
NO OTHER ADDRESS FOR FOURTEEN YEARS.

One thing more—I would like everyone who reads this advertisement to understand that this treatment will not, and cannot, stimulate the growth of surrounding hairs—as the electric treatment used for the scalp is entirely different to the process used for ELECTROLYSIS.

FLESH MOLES AND MOLES

OF ANY KIND CAN BE REMOVED IN ONE TREATMENT. Do not stay away thinking it will be costly—that is not so. I GUARANTEE to remove a specified number of hairs for a certain fee, and you can take twelve months to have that number removed.

LOOK TO YOUR SKIN,

for, if you have wrinkles, pimples, discolouration, or blackheads, I have found a cure that will not harm you. It will build up the muscles and restore the contour of a withering face, and give you the soft, fresh complexion you had thought was lost.

LADIES,

Why do you not attend to your skin a little more before retiring? The reply, I know, will be, "Oh, we are too tired." Now, if you gave FIVE MINUTES' ATTENTION AT NIGHT it will make you look years younger. The way is easy. Try a pot of

"NETTOYER"

FACE CREAM. It will clear and cleanse, and give new life to the skin tissue; also remove the secretions which collect through the dirt and defective germs that cause inflammatory skin lesions, such as Pimples and Blackheads, etc. SMALL POTS, 3/6; 6d EXTRA, POSTAGE.

FRECKLES.

I can guarantee to remove for you by NETTOYER FRECKLE CREAM. Only one price, 5s per pot. 6d EXTRA FOR POSTAGE.
